HOUSE PERFECTS BILL FOR BETTING ON HORSE RACES

O'Brien of St. Louis Tries to Amend Finney Measure to Include Wagering on Dogs, but Fails.

NOW ON CALENDAR FOR FINAL ACTION

Put There on Challenged Viva Voce Vote After Stormy Twenty Minutes of Consideration.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 7.—The Finney racing bill, to legalize the pari-mutuel and certificate forms of betting on horse races, was perfected today by the House in a disorderly session, by a non-record vote of 54 to 44, which was questioned as to its accuracy by opponents of the bill. The measure now goes on the House calendar for passage.

Dissension developed among the St. Louis members when Representative O'Brien of St. Louis offered an amendment which would bring betting on dog races under the bill. The amendment was defeated.

Representative Blong of St. Louis, O'Brien's seat mate, immediately opposed the amendment and charged that O'Brien had been employed by a dog track in St. Louis County, which Blong said was [illegible] by Anthony P. (Tony) Foley. The latter operated a gambling establishment in St. Louis County. O'Brien did not answer the charge from the floor. Later he denied having been employed by Foley, but said he had worked for a dog track.

O'Brien's Argument.

O'Brien, in offering the amendment, said the horse and dog tracks should be given "an equal deal," and that the bill should not discriminate against dog racing. "I have been around both horse and dog tracks," O'Brien said, "and dog racing is the most honest of all."

Representative Carroll of St. Louis opposed the amendment, declaring it was designed to kill the [illegible] "The racing bill we had here in the regular session was killed because the dogs were in the bill," Carroll said. "St. Louis does not want dog racing."

The amendment was defeated by a viva voce vote.

Speaker Meredith called for a standing vote on perfection of the bill, and declared it perfected by a vote of 54 to 44.

Vote Challenged.

Representative Talbert of Cape Girardeau County, who opposed the bill, raised a question as to the accuracy of the count by the House clerks and demanded a roll call, which would provide a record vote. The Speaker ordered the roll called, then withdrew the order and ruled the request for a roll call was not made until after the vote had been announced, and was not in time. "This is just perfection of the bill," the Speaker said. "You all will get a chance to vote on a roll call when the bill comes up for passage."

The House was in disorder during most of the 20 minutes the bill was under consideration, with from five to 20 members asking for recognition at once, and others shouting from their seats.

The bill, offered as a State revenue measure, proposes a daily license fee of $800 for tracks operated within 15 miles of St. Louis, and a daily fee of $400 for tracks operated within 15 miles of Kansas City. It also proposes a tax of 20 cents on each paid admission.

AVIATRIX SHOOTS HERSELF WHILE CLEANING PISTOL

Mrs. Josephine Wice Taken to Los Angeles Hospital; Husband Visiting in St. Louis

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Josephine Wice, 29-year-old advertising woman and flyer, was taken to a hospital early today, shot through the breast and seriously wounded. She told police she had shot herself accidentally while cleaning an automatic pistol. Her husband, Frank Wice, X-ray manufacturer, is in St. Louis.

Frank Wice has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Agnes Wice, 5844 Enright avenue, for the last three months on a business trip to St. Louis. He was, he told the Post-Dispatch today, "just about ready to return" to the West coast with his 4½-year-old daughter, who has been with him, visiting her grandmother.

His wife, Wice said, is president of the Los Angeles Advertising Association for Women and formerly was vice-president of the national organization of that body. In addition, he said, she is editor of publications for the University of Southern California.

Crowds Wait in Line to Buy Liquors in New York Stores

Sidewalks Crowded Around Places Where Sales Are Made and Stocks Rapidly Dwindle.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Wine and liquor stores have been so busy in New York yesterday and today that one of them had to call the police to disperse lines of customers at closing time.

Smart hotels were reporting record business. Some, despite large stocks of liquor, found their supplies near exhaustion.

Drivers of liquor trucks worked as long as 24 hours at a stretch. One wine firm had made deliveries of 16,000 cases early today and was still far behind in filling orders.

Department stores selling liquor found their aisles packed like a rush-hour subway train. Most customers asked for rye, but if there was no more rye they took gin; and if no gin, then brandy.

The demand for wines was surprisingly large. Claret and sherry were the favorites, but ports and tokays had their enthusiasts. Even the upper strata beverages—the sparkling burgundies and champagnes—were moving off dealers' shelves at lively speed.

2000 Sales an Hour.

One big store's cash register marked 2000 liquor sales an hour. Another's sales force was quickly augmented so that here, too, an hourly figure of 2000 sales could be handled.

The line in front of a third was four abreast. The liquor department noted 10,000 sales when the closing bell sounded last night.

Imported Scotch was not to be had in package late yesterday afternoon, the supply having been quickly gobbled up—or down. Liners and freighters are arriving daily with cargoes from Europe. The Cameronia of the Anchor Line will dock Monday with 28,000 cases, which is the largest shipment to date.

Wines from the California wineries are pouring in by the carload, and are finding a strong demand.

Signs reading "cocktails are now being served" decorate the windows of restaurants. The Childs restaurant chain is serving beer and wines between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., with cocktails after that hour.

Prices are under the speakeasy scale in most places. Domestic wines are offered as low as 20 cents a glass. Cocktails range from 30 to 50 cents.

Shortage of Dispensers.

A shortage of expert dispensers has been noticeable. An order for a dry Martini cocktail at one restaurant required 20 minutes in fulfillment, and finally arrived with a red cherry nestling where a green olive should have been.

A demand for beer more authoritative than 3.2 was promptly met, the new percentages running between 4 and 6 per cent.

The Park Lane, with its bar-on-wheels, had yesterday the largest luncheon crowd it ever had. The Biltmore reported the greatest luncheon crowd since the Armistice, and the Commodore the same. The Pennsylvania had the joyous experience of observing customers waiting in line at the dining rooms. The Astor, the Waldorf-Astoria and other leading Manhattan hotels told the same story.

ST. LOUIS BANKS ARE URGED TO SELL STOCK TO R. F. C.

Clearing House Association and Associated Bankers Adopt Resolution.

Resolutions recommending that individual banks in St. Louis participate in the national plan for sale of preferred stock or capital notes to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were adopted at meetings today of the St. Louis Clearing House Association and the Associated Bankers of St. Louis.

The Federal Government devised the plan for banks to sell their preferred stock or capital notes to the R. F. C. as a means of enabling banks to strengthen their cash condition for qualification for membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. The R. F. C. has sought to induce strong banks to participate in the plan so as to lend encouragement to banks actually in need of aid.

The Clearing House Association includes six member banks and five associate members, and the Associated Bankers includes 17 member banks in the outlying sections.

POOR WRECK HOUSES FOR FUEL

East St. Louis poor persons, in need of fuel, are wrecking old vacated frame houses, police report. Four instances of frame houses that disappeared have been reported by owners to police in the last month.

Monday night a small frame house at 442 North Third street, East St. Louis, was wrecked. Police said they learned it was pushed over with an automobile truck, and the wood carried away.

3 MEN SLAIN WHEN OFFICERS FIGHT LIQUOR SMUGGLERS

U. S. Border Patrolman One of Victims in Exchange of Fire at El Paso, Tex.

By the Associated Press.

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 7.—Three men were killed and another was wounded in a fight between United States border patrolmen and liquor smugglers at the foot of Park street early today.

The dead: Dorne C. Melton, 31 years old, United States border patrolman, shot through the heart; Francisco Gonzalez, 25, Juarez; Higinio Perez, Juarez.

The fight started when Melton and five other inspectors challenged 16 men who had waded the river with the liquor. When the smugglers reached the American side, the officers leaped out of hiding. Gunfire met their command to surrender. Melton fell at the first volley. The other inspectors returned the fire as the smugglers dropped their loads and backed into the river, firing as they retreated. During the firing a sniper on the American side shot at the officers from behind.

RELIEF BEEF BIDS REJECTED

Officials Say Prices on Canned Products Are Too High.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — The Federal Surplus Relief Corporation is likely to abandon, at least for the time being, its plan of buying 25,000,000 pounds of canned beef for distribution to the needy.

Relief administration officials said today all bids for the beef, submitted some weeks ago, had been rejected as "too high" and that no decision as to whether new bids would be requested had been reached. Specifications for the proposed contract said canned beef already in stock would not be eligible and that bidders must be prepared to buy up live beeves for processing. The administration made known it desired not only to aid the needy, but to reduce the beef surplus.

MISSOURI SENATE PASSES SALOON LIQUOR MEASURE

Control Bill Sent to House for Consideration Tomorrow—Expected Bar Drink Provision Will Be Rejected.

COMPROMISE BY CONFERENCE LIKELY

Joffee Urges That the Views of President Roosevelt and Senator Clark Be Observed.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 7.—The Senate, by a vote of 25 to 8, today passed the liquor control bill providing for sale of liquor by the drink in saloons and for privately operated liquor stores for sale by the bottle.

The bill was sent immediately to the House, which voted to begin its consideration in committee of the whole tomorrow morning. The House continued debate on amendments to its own bill this afternoon.

There had been some discussion among Senate leaders of amending the bill to strike out the sections authorizing saloons, but, in the expectation that this would be done in the House, the Senate passed the bill as it was perfected early Tuesday morning.

Debate today was confined principally to a few Senators who desired to explain their vote.

While the Senate has been working out its bill, the House has been whipping into shape a liquor control measure, but there is little expectation that either the Senate or the House bill will be the act which eventually will be passed.

Looking to Compromise.

A compromise, to be drawn in a conference committee is being looked to to reconcile the differences between the two Houses. This cannot come until after the House takes up the Senate bill, adopts amendments and then returns the bill to the Senate.

If the Senate should adopt the House amendments, there would be little difficulty, but this is not to be expected. When the Senate rejects the House amendments and the House refuses to recede from them, then a conference committee will be appointed.

Usually a conference committee only reports on the amendments, attempting to reconcile the two Houses, possibly approving some amendments and rejecting others, but such a committee has full power to rewrite the entire bill. However, the report of a committee must b approved by both Houses.

Objections in Debate.

Objections raised to the bill in the Senate debate today concerned the saloon feature, the sale by the package feature and the local option provisions.

Senator Joffee of Kansas City urged that the views of President Roosevelt and United States Senator Clark in opposition to the return of the saloon should be observed. Joffee favored the Ontario plan of sale in State liquor stores. Senator Morgan of Unionville objected particularly to the local option provisions, which, he insisted, gave no local option at all.

He pointed out that, while the bill permitted local option on sale by the drink, it permitted no local option on the sale by the package or bottle. He said it would be possible for liquor to be put up in one-drink bottles and sold anywhere in the State, regardless of local opinion.

The provisions giving to each city, town and village, regardless of size, the right to vote separately on the question of sale by the drink, would, he said, be ineffective to prevent sale by the drink in dry counties. He said it would be possible for as few as 10 persons in a community to organize a village and authorize the sale of liquor, although the entire remainder of the county might have voted against liquor sales.

On Sale by the Package.

Senator Henry of Butler opposed the bill on the ground that it permitted sale by the package. He said he believed that system "a thousand times worse than any saloon conditions which ever existed." "You force the man who wants a drink to buy a bottle in many communities in this State," he said. "You in effect force him to take a bottle and go out and get drunk, when he only wanted a drink."

Senator Titus of Joplin, a minister, supported the bill with the explanation that, although many of its provisions did not meet his views, he believed it represented the views of a majority, and that he was satisfied that it was impos-

CAMPAIGN TO RID STATE OF QUACK CANCER DOCTORS

SURVEY PROPOSED AS THE FIRST STEP

New Law on Medical Practice Urged at Session Here to Combat Fakers and Flagrant Offenders.

A movement to "clean house" in Missouri medicine was set afoot last night at Hotel Jefferson in the first meeting of the State Board of Health with its newly appointed advisory committee from the Missouri State Medical Association.

The occasion was a dinner attended by 16 physicians of national distinction to honor Dr. Max Starkloff, former Health Commissioner of St. Louis, who related episodes of his 38 years' service from days when "the only reliable prophylactics were smallpox vaccination and anti-tetanus serum," and medical colleges, of a sort, ground out questionable diplomas "on every corner, like saloons."

A new State law on medical practice was advocated by Dr. E. T. McGaugh, State Health Commissioner, as a goal of the new combination of forces by the State board and the State medical organization. As other jobs for it to tackle he discussed a proposed cancer survey and the need of ridding the State of cancer fakers and other quacks.

Board Can't Prosecute.

"There are flagrant offenses of all kinds in the State, but the board has limited powers," explained Dr. McGaugh. "It is not a law-enforcing body. It cannot conduct prosecutions which, under the law, must be left to the county Prosecuting Attorney.

"The cancer survey represents a line of problems which require the co-operation of the physicians generally as well as the board. Many quacks are operating in the State. They're doing a lot of harm. There's a lot of work to be done. It may be done only if we work hand in hand.

"Let's unite and draw up a medical practice act that will be operative and will have teeth in it. Then we can do something about the violations we have.

"I don't know anybody with more power than the doctors. If you unite, you can go to Jefferson City and get together with the medical department and we'll write a medical practice act of the kind you want and that can be enforced."

Dr. McComas Says "Forward Step."

Dr. A. R. McComas of Sturgeon, who heads the judicial council of the medical association, and was appointed chairman of the advisory committee, described the board's invitation to form the committee as "a forward step I'd never hoped to see."

"Doctors are apt to go to sleep before legislative matters in which they should be interested come before the General Assembly," he said. "I hope that through this co-operation with the board we can, in the interest and to the benefit of the people of the State, get at the men not in the medical profession, the wild-catters." The present law regulates only the regularly licensed physician.

"Always previously," commented Dr. W. H. Breuer, another member of the committee, "those of us interested in medical legislation and higher ideals for the profession have found at Jefferson City a State Board organized along political lines and offering some obstacle to every advance we attempted to put through.

"I believe Dr. McGaugh's idea is probably revolutionary, but it is one that should be carried out in Missouri, and I'm ready to go the limit in support of it."

Advisory Committee.

The Advisory Committee, as announced by President Emmett P. North of the State Board, who presided, includes the heads of the three Class 1 medical schools—Dr. W. McKim Marriott of Washington University, the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla, S. J., of St. Louis University, and Dr. Dudley L. Conley of Missouri University, three past presidents of the association—Dr. McComas, Dr. Breuer and Dr. Jabez N. Jackson of Kansas City, who has also headed the American Medical Association, and Dr. E. J. Goodwin, ex officio as secretary of the state association.

Dr. Bruer, Father Schwitalla, Dean Marriott, Dr. North, and Senior Surgeon J. P. Leake of the United States Public Health Service who made a special trip from Washington to be present, were among those who paid personal and professional tribute to Dr. Starkloff as "dean of American public health officers."

Dr. Leake—himself described by other speakers as "the greatest epi-

LINDBERGHS' PLANE DAMAGED IN FLIGHT

French Company Offers Facilities for Repairs at Natal, Brazil.

By the Associated Press.

NATAL, Brazil, Dec. 7.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today inspected the monoplane which carried him and Mrs. Lindbergh across the South Atlantic yesterday and found its left wing damaged.

He was out in the harbor long before noon, engaged in a personal examination of the big red ship. Air France, the French international flying company which operates in South America, immediately offered its repair facilities to the Colonel, who is technical adviser for the Pan-American Airways, the American international flying company.

While her husband labored on the plane, Mrs. Lindbergh took the opportunity to do a bit of sightseeing. Mrs. Scotchbrook, the wife of the British Consul, at whose home the Americans are being entertained, accompanied her on the tour of the historic city.

Lindbergh later tuned up the motor of his monoplane and it was thought he was preparing to start a return flight to the United States by way of Para (Belem) tomorrow. City authorities said they thought the next Lindbergh flight would be along the northeast coast of Brazil.

The most easterly city of Brazil, Natal usually is the first place in the country to be reached by trans-Atlantic flyers; but the arrival of the Lindberghs—and the singular reserve of the Colonel—topped all other like events in arousing interest here.

The entire population was out along the harbor when the Americans' big hydroairplane roared in from the Atlantic yesterday afternoon. Cheers were deafening. Police struggled to maintain order.

With Mrs. Lindbergh operating their plane's wireless, the famous pair had traveled over the ocean 1875 miles in 16 hours and 10 mintes—she to become the first woman ever to fly in a plane across the South Atlantic.

It was, all Natal thought, an event to celebrate. Yet what were the Colonel's only words to the welcoming delegation which fought its way to his anchored monoplane in the harbor?

"It was a fine trip," he said, and more of the same.

JUDGE ADVISES BOOTLEGGER WHAT TO DO, THEN FREES HIM

Tells Him to Plead That Federal Dry Law Is Unconstitutional, So He Does.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—This question arose yesterday: What about the bootleggers who have been arrested but not yet tried for violating the Federal prohibition law?

Federal Judge Walter Lindley advised one of them, Michael Caruso, yesterday, to plead that the law was now unconstitutional. Caruso did and was promptly discharged.

JOHNSON'S WOMAN AID GETS $5780 A YEAR

"In Many Ways She Knows More Than Anyone Else" About NRA, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — Miss Frances Robinson, administrative assistant to Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, was disclosed today to be getting paid $5780 a year, one of the largest NRA salaries and on a par with the compensation of some of the most expert Government employes.

After publication of the fact in a morning newspaper, reporters inquiring of Johnson were told by him: "I think that was one below the belt."

The story had said Miss Robinson was elevated from a $25 a week clerkship to her present salary in NRA'S short career. On a weekly basis her new salary is about $110.

Johnson's assistant, with him long hours, has made many extended trips across the country with the administrator.

"In the original setup of NRA," said Johnson, "Miss Robinson and Bobby Straus (Robert K. Straus, son of the Ambassador to France) were personal assistants to the administrator at a salary of $5000 a year.

"Miss Robinson came recommended to me as an excellent administrator and executive from RKO (Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation). In many ways she knows more about this law and this organization than anyone else. I am sure that nobody here ever thought she was a mere stenographer or secretary. She has been my personal assistant straight through."

Asked whether he had any objections to publication of the entire NRA payroll, Johnson said he had not and that "I think people will be surprised when they see it."

He added that only Donald Richberg, general counsel, Alvin Brown, administrative assistant, and Boaz Long, newly designated deputy administrator for Puerto Rico, were drawing more than $6000. That is Johnson's own salary.

FINLAND TO KEEP UP FULL PAYMENTS ON WAR DEBT

To Give $229,000 to U. S. on Dec. 15; Is Only Nation to Meet Obligations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Finland will keep its record clean and turn over to the United States on Dec. 15 $229,623, the full amount due on its war debt obligations.

After a visit to Acting Secretary of State Phillips today, the Finish Minister, L. Astrom, said his Government had decided to continue its full payment policy in accordance with its funding agreement with the United States.

Finland stands alone in this respect. It is the only country which has met all its obligations to date.

Great Britain offered $7,500,000 of its total installment due of $117,670,765. This offer was accepted by President Roosevelt. Italy offered $1,000,000 on a total payment due of $2,133,905. Czecho-Slovakia made an offer of $150,000 as a token payment on $1,682,812.

CHASE BANK HEAD TELLS OF LOANS TO H. C. COUCH

Senate Witness Doesn't Show Couch Had Anything to Do With These—$30,000,000 Seaboard Pool Losses—Frisco Deal

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — Testimony that a loan by the Chase National Bank to Harvey C. Couch, now a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, at one time had lacked sufficient collateral and that Couch was asked to put it "in shape," was received today by the Senate Banking Committee.

Charles S. McCain, chairman of the Chase Bank and friend of Couch since 28 years ago, when both lived in the same Arkansas town, told the committee the loan made individually to Couch had since been repaid.

Questioned by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, the witness testified the Couch loan had remained under-collateralized for about six months.

During that period, McCain said, the loan was criticised by the National Bank Examiner. He explained that Couch was constantly putting up additional collateral as the market went down.

Total losses of $30,000,000 in two huge pool operations in Seaboard Air Line securities were described by McCain, who said he and Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at large, were participants in one of the pools. The two pools, managed by Dillon, Read & Co. and others, lost $20,000,000 and $10,000,000, respectively, McCain said.

McCain said he had been given a subparticipation in a $20,000,000 pool in St. Louis & San Francisco stock in 1930 through a half interest held by one of the corporations of Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of Chase National Bank.

Another participant in a Seaboard pool, he said, was the American National Co. of Nashville, an affiliate of the American National Bank, headed by a brother of Davis.

McCain said the pool worked out as a "philanthropic" operation because it paid $20,000,000 to the Seaboard and all participants lost what they invested. He added the participants lost almost all of a $10,085,000 investment, but still held the stock for what it was worth.

Detailed Testimony by Banker on Couch Loan.

Pecora placed a letter into the record from an unidentified Chase officer to Couch, Aug. 24, 1931, asking him "to put his loan in shape."

McCain said he believed the letter was written by James Bruce, a member of the Discount Committee of the bank.

"Almost every time at our Discount Committee meetings in the morning," the letter said, "the loans with a deficiency of margin are brought up.

"Yours has quite a prominent part in the list.

"When Charlie was here it used to be referred back to him, but since he has been on his holiday it has been referred to me to ask you if you would not have the same put in shape.

"This is naturally embarrassing to me, but the fellows here all feel that the loan should be in order, and I am sure you will appreciate the position of the bank in the matter."

McCain also testified that Couch still owed the bank $153,000 jointly with an associate on which the bank holds $220,900 of collateral. The loan was originally a $625,000 advance to Couch and C. N. Moses of Little Rock.

McCain, who said he and Couch were old friends, testified they jointly borrowed $625,000 from the Chemical National Bank a few years ago, but had repaid it.

He testified that he increased his own Chase loan in 1931 to permit Couch to retire some of his under-collateralized loan.

Bank Benefited by RFC Loans.

Evidence was presented that the Chase Bank benefited from several loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to railroads. No evidence was presented that Couch

WALLACE BACKS FOOD, DRUG BILL BEFORE SENATORS

EXHIBITS SHOWN ON COSMETIC DANGERS

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A Senate committee today opened public hearings on the bill designed to strengthen the existing pure food and drug act. The presence of a record crowd of patent medicine manufacturers, drug company officials and their lawyers and lobbyists, compelled the committee at the outset to seek a larger room, and the proceedings eventually were transferred to the Republican caucus hall.

The measure, drafted by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Tugwell and experts of the pure food and drug administration at the instruction of President Roosevelt, would prohibit false claims in advertising of foods and drugs, and would apply the same requirements to cosmetics. It would require manufacturers to label their products with the correct ingedients, and would make them responsible for misbranding.

Practices It Would End.

Proponents of the measure named, among present practices which the bill would end, the advertising and sale of a former horse liniment as a cure for tuberculosis, and of horsetail weed extract as a remedy for diabetes. Cosmetics known to have caused blindness, skin diseases and death, would also be affected.

Thirty-seven ailments are listed in the bill as not being subject to self-medication without danger to the patient, and it would prevent manufacturers from recommending their products for treatment of those ailments. Moreover, 16 narcotic and hypnotic substances are listed which must be described on the label of any product containing them as "possibly habit-forming."

Democratic Committeemen.

Conspicuous among those in attendance at the hearing was J. Bruce Kremer, Democratic National Committeeman from Montana, as counsel for the Drug Institute, and Edward T. Clark, former private secretary to President Coolidge, representing a nation-wide chain of drug stores. The institute and the drug associations are fighting the bill. At least one other Democratic National Committeeman has been retained by interests opposing the measure.

Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican floor leader and a member of the committee, jokingly suggested to newspaper men that "it might be a good idea to open the hearing by calling the roll of Democratic Committeemen. Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York, a physician, who has been appearing on a radio program advertising a food which medicinal properties are claimed, presided at the hearing. The third member was Mrs. Caraway of Arknsas.

Wallace and Campbell.

Enactment of the measure was vigorously urged by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Walter G. Campbell, chief of the Food and Drug Administration, as being imperative to protect the public from worthless and positively dangerous preparations. They asserted that the present law, enacted 27 years ago, is inadequate for that purpose.

Secretary Wallace told the committee that many of the objections advanced against the bill were identical with those made against the present law 30 years ago, but since disavowed by their original authors. He continued:

"There is a greatly increased traffic in foods and drugs today. The cosmetic industry has become of first importance, whereas when the present law was written the cosmetic industry was in its infancy. The effectiveness with which a worthless or dangerous product can be sold today through modern advertising methods was not an acute problem in 1906. New narcotic and habit-forming drugs have appeared on the market. Totally new food constituents and important nutrition elements, like the vitamins, have been discovered.

"I doubt that anyone will wish to appear before this committee in defense of the many abuses which cannot be remedied under existing legislation: there is too much grim evidence of the tragic effects that almost daily result from the Government's inability to prevent the shipment and sale of dangerous and worthless products."

Objectives of Measure.

He stated the objective of the measure as follows:

Cosmetics are brought within the scope of the statute.

Mechanical devices, offered for curative purposes, and devices and preparations claimed to bring about changes in the structure of the body, are included within the purview of the bill.

False advertising of foods, drugs and cosmetics is prohibited.

Definitely informative labeling is required.

A drug which is, or may be dangerous to health under the conditions of use prescribed in its labeling is classed as adulterated.

The promulgation of definitions and standards for foods, which will have the force and effect of law, subject, of course, to court review, is prescribed.

The prohibition of added poisons in foods or the establishment of safe tolerances therefor is provided for.

The operation of factories under Federal permit is prescribed where protection of the public health cannot otherwise be effected.

More effective methods for the control of false labeling and advertising of drug products are provided, and

More severe penalties, as well as injunctions in the case of repeated offenses, are prescribed.

I think it is generally understood that this bill is intended primarily to protect consumers. At the same time it should operate in the interest of all honest manufacturers.

Wallace as Publisher.

Speaking as a publisher of farm periodicals, Secretary Wallace asserted that more enlightened publishers and advertising men would welcome passage of the bills.

"If the purchasing power of readers of their publications is soaked up by worthless or harmful products, it is obvious that essential and wholesome products must suffer the loss," he said.

"There are many enlightened publishers and advertising men who would welcome anything that would raise the standards of advertising, but as long as others take advantage of this 'gravy' as it comes in, they feel that they must accept this chiseling advertising to hold their own."

Campbell told the committee that, while poisons may be added to foods without harmful effects, they often are added in amounts constituting a positive danger. The bill would limit the amounts.

Girl's Face Is Scarred.

Campbell exhibited specimens of candy bonbons containing trinkets and other prizes, also X-ray photographs of the throats of several children showing the prizes lodged in them. He declared that many candies are coated with resinous glazes and even shellac.

Pleading for regulation of cosmetics, Campbell produced the photograph of a pretty young woman before she used a commercial preparation on her eyelashes, and a photograph made shortly afterward, when she was totally blind. A gasp of horror ran through the room as Senator McNary held up the likeness of the frightfully scarred face.

Campbell also produced a jar of a depilatory which, he said, caused thousands of incurable injuries before damage suits and judgments forced the manufacturer into bankruptcy. There was nothing on the jar to suggest that it contained a harmful ingredient. Labels on cosmetics are not covered by the present law.

False Bottoms and Walls.

The hearing assumed a lighter tone when Campbell brought out several packages familiar to housewives. There was a cheese box with a false bottom, a vanilla bottle with thick paneled walls creating an optical delusion as to contents, a package of noodles wrapped in yellow cellophane to give them an egg tint, and an advertisement of an egg container which makes little ones look like big ones. Ripples of laughter waved through the room.

Next Campbell produced several glass jars of "chicken and noodle dinners." The chicken content ranged from 9 to 15 per cent. The jars were virtually the same size and same price.

"Deluded the People."

Campbell said the section of the bill prohibiting patent medicine manufacturers from advertising worthless preparations as "cures" had aroused "a bitter propaganda" and that "it is the source of the principal opposition to this measure."

"These are the people who have cheated and deluded the people for so many years," he asserted. Holding up a bottle of white liquid, he continued:

"Here is something that was originally made as a horse liniment. As horse liniment goes, it was all right. Subsequently, the name was bought and the product is advertised and sold as a remedy for cancer, tuberculosis, common colds, locomotor ataxia and rheumatism. Under the present law, there is nothing we can do about it."

The committee produced a letter written by Couch on RFC stationery to McCain, telling him a loan had been made to the Wabash which owed the Chase Bank $3,000,000.

McCain testified the Wabash, which obtained $5,000,000 from the RFC, owed a group of banks $10,000,000, including the $3,000,000 to Chase.

He said the RFC also made loans to other roads that owed money to the bank, including: Rock Island, $2,000,000; St. Louis Southwestern, $4,500,000; Chicago & Northwestern, $1,000,000.

McCain said the Chase Bank received the following payments from railroads as a result of RFC loans: Wabash, $1,550,000, August, 1932; Rock Island, $2,000,000, June, 1932; St. Louis Southwestern, $4,500,000, April, 1932; Chicago & Northwestern, $1,000,000, September, 1932; Baltimore & Ohio, $1,250,000.

Couch Denies "Irregularity."

Chairman Fletcher placed in the record a letter from Couch denying any "irregularity" in his relations with the Chase bank. The letter follows:

"My dealings with the New York banks have been in the usual course of private business. In that connection by name has been brought into your record. Publicity given these routine business transactions has been of such a nature as to indicate that there was some irregularity about them.

"The letter I wrote to Charles S. McCain of the Chase National Bank will be understood when I tell you that we were reared together in Arkansas. It was a purely personal letter to be lifelong friend and business associate.

"At one time I owned a substantial amount of stock in the Chase Bank. When I was appointed to the board of the R. F. C., I sold my stock at a loss and severed all official connection with the bank. My connection with the R. F. C. was by request and not by application.

"There probably is nothing in this situation that would justify the committee in taking the time to hear me, but I shall be more than willing to appear if you think it desirable."

Committee members said Couch would not be called, but could appear if he desired.

Operations of a $10,000,000 pool in Louisiana & Arkansas Railway stock were described.

McCain said the pool was organized in 1928 to purchase stock in the Louisiana & Arkansas and the Louisiana Railway & Navigation Co.

Participants, he said, were Dillon, Read & Co., R. J. Pack, H. C. Couch, Rogers Caldwell, Coverdale & Colpitts, J. A. Moffett and himself. Each of them, he added, extended shares to some participants.

McCain testified the pool still owes the Chase National Bank $1,289,000.

The pool borrowed $2,295,000 in 1928, McCain said, from the National Park Bank of New York while he was president of that institution. This was increased by $500,000, he added, in May, 1929, and the total of $2,795,000 taken over by Chase in the merger of the two banks in August, 1929.

Pecora cited proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval of the merger of the Louisiana & Arkansas with the Louisiana Railway & Navigation Co.

The syndicate acquired the stock in the latter from Mrs. Sarah Drain Edenborn. (She is a former St. Louisan, the widow of William Edenborn of Shreveport, La., and succeeded him as president of the Louisiana Railway & Navigation Co., after his death in 1926. Several years ago Mrs. Sophie Meier, wife of a St. Louis County farmer, accepted $300,000 in settlement of her claim to a share of Edenborn's estate as an adopted daughter).

Pecora read testimony before the I. C. C., in which Commissioner Woodlock questioned Frank M. Swacker, attorney for the Louisiana & Arkansas.

"You don't mean they got this old lady in a tight place and are proceeding to take advantage of her, do you?" Woodlock asked.

"I suppose I cannot very well deny the fact," Swacker replied. "It is a perfectly obvious one. She is in a position where she has got to have a lot of cash and she must sell. She wants to sell. She is much more anxious to sell than the syndicate are to buy."

Statement by McCain.

McCain read a prepared statement denying that he was responsible for the filibuster conducted by Senator Huey P. Long, against the Glass bank bill.

"I want to state categorically that there is absolutely no truth in this assumption," McCain said, referring to a statement by Glass that he was in constant communication with Long during the filibuster.

McCain added that he had talked several times with Long and felt free to do so because he had extended "some favors" to the Louisianan "in relation to the financing of Louisiana highway bonds."

McCain testified he had tried to get Long to stop his filibuster, but had been unable to get Long and Glass together because the latter did not want to confer.

The banker said he was "hurt" that Senator Glass had felt he was rude to him.

The committee completed its inquiry into the Chase National Bank late today and recessed until Dec. 18, when it will investigate Detroit banks.

URGES EQUALIZATION FUND FOR OIL INDUSTRY

Group Offers Secretary Ickes a Plan to Stabilize Gasoline Prices.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Conflicting factions of the petroleum industry today submitted to Secretary of the Interior Ickes, oil administrator, a plan for stabilizing gasoline prices by using an equalization fund to keep price-depressing excess supplies off the market. Ickes withheld his decision.

Backers of the plan, however, were hopeful that it would both meet Ickes' demands and would make any kind of price-fixing unnecessary. They were represented as believing that prices of crude oil are satisfactory for the time being, and that control of excess gasoline stocks, accumulated in anticipation of the oil code, will serve to correct price maladjustments.

The plan was understood to propose the withholding from the market of many millions of barrels of gasoline by purchase with funds contributed by members of the industry.

Such supplies, estimated at from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 barrels, would then be released slowly so as not to disturb the market.

It was said in one quarter that proponents of price-fixing in the industry were willing to allow a test of the plan for a period of, say, 90 days.

PLAN COMMISSION TO TAKE UP OUSTING OF ENGINEER

The dismissal of Dec. 1 of Henri Rush, an engineer in the City Plan Commission, will be taken up at the next regular meeting of the commission, it was announced after a special meeting scheduled for today was called off.

Rush, appointed last Aug. 7 at a salary of $230 a month, was discharged by Harland Bartholomew, chief engineer of the Plan Commission. Neither Bartholomew nor Rush would discuss the situation, although it was reported that Bartholomew was displeased because Rush recently presented a plan of river-front development to the newspapers. Rush, who lives at 6038 Delmar boulevard, submitted the plan as an individual, not as engineer for the commission.

demiologist in the United States" and "loved by every medical man in Missouri"—congratulated St. Louis on its guardians of public health, as he had known them in fighting a smallpox outbreak in 1921 with Dr. Starkloff and an encephalitis epidemic in 1933 with Health Commissioner Bredeck, who, with Assistant Health Commissioner Zentay, attended the dinner.

As their first joint action, the board and the Advisory Committee indorsed a resolution, adopted by Mayor Dickmann's Medical Advisory Committee and read by Dr. Marriott, expressing, "in the name of the entire medical profession of St. Louis, our gratitude to Dr. Starkloff for his untiring efforts to put into effect every advance medicine has made to prolong the lives, conserve the health and promote the happiness of our citizens."

Reminiscing a little of the advances of public health in nearly 40 years—advances in which he led St. Louis and sometimes the nation—Dr. Starkloff responded, "If I had heard one more such laudatory comment, I'd begin to believe them myself, but in the words of Popeye, 'I yam what I yam, and that's all I yam.'

"You have told me that I have many distinctions. I am proudest of the faith of the medical profession, and to have this testimony of your appreciation is greater than anything else that life, with all its prizes, can offer."

sible to get through the Senate exactly the kind of bill he desired.

He said he believed the local option provisions were the best that could be written.

"I am not alarmed by the saloon provisions," he said. "A bar and a brass rail don't make an objectionable saloon. It is what goes on in the place, the back rooms, the gambling, and sometimes the houses of prostitution which were known in some cases as adjuncts of the saloon. It doesn't make any difference whether they have brass cuspidors or those fancy jardinieres filled with sand.

"I am dry and have always been dry, and I wish that prohibition had worked. But we must assume that the country is wet. They say that Columbus didn't discover America because when he sighted land he said 'I see dry land.'

"I shall support the bill because I believe it was worked out conscientiously and in sincerity, and that it is the best that we can get."

Written for Majority.

Senator Donnelly of Lebanon, majority floor leader, who, with Senator Clark of Richmond, wrote virtually the entire bill as it was reported to the Senate by the Judiciary and Criminal Jurisprudence Committees, said that their efforts had been to prepare a bill which would meet the views of a majority of the Senate.

"Personally I do not agree with all the provisions which we put into the bill, but we were not preparing a bill to meet our personal views, but one which met the views of a majority of the 16 Senators on the two committees which considered it" he said.

Roll Call on the Bill.

Absent—Senator Bates of St. Louis.

There were sufficient votes for the bill in the Senate to pass the emergency clause to make the act effective as soon as passed by both Houses and signed by the Governor. To be effective, however, the emergency clause must receive 100 votes in the House.

House Strikes Out Its Liquor Bill Advertising Restrictions.

The House continued today with consideration of its liquor control bill, which has been before it almost continuously for two weeks.

All restrictions on advertising of intoxicating liquor were stricken from the bill through adoption of an amendment by Representative Roy of Wright County, without a record vote. In its original form the bill prohibited retail permit holders from advertising intoxicating liquor in any manner, but would have authorized manufacturers or distributers to "conservatively" advertise intoxicating liquor in newspapers, periodicals, magazines and through radio broadcasting. Such advertising, however, could not describe or name the retail places where the liquor advertised could be purchased.

The House adopted several amendments making various sections conform to its previously adopted policy of permitting hotels, restaurants, clubs and railroads to sell wine with an alcoholic content not to exceed 12 per cent by weight, and beer, with meals, but prohibiting them from selling intoxicating liquor in any form.

Says "There Is Plenty of Work for Every Man Who Wants to Work.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, today urged everybody to "pitch in and help the President pull the country out of the hole," in a brief amplified telephone address made from Detroit to 1000 dealers of Ford cars assembled in a moving picture theater.

HEALTH OFFICIAL DEFENDS ACTION IN RABIES CASES

'With Nothing Further to Go On,' He Says He Again Would Not Give Pasteur Treatment.

COUNTY DOCTOR FACES REMOVAL

He Is Charged With Dereliction of Duty in Failure to Prescribe for Six Persons, Two of Whom Died

Facing removal from office for failure to administer Pasteur treatment to six persons bitten by a rabid dog last Feb. 28, County Health Commissioner L. C. Obrock testified yesterday before the State Board of Health at Clayton that, on the same grounds, he would do the same thing again.

"If I had nothing further to go on," he stipulated when the question was put to him in cross-examination, on the stand in his own defense in a hearing to determine if his office should be declared vacant for dereliction of duty.

Failure to investigate was an element of the charges brought on complaint of the County Court and the families of Roy Bales, 10 years old, and James Fleming, who died in lack of the preventive treatment after they were bitten by a police pup on a rampage near their homes in Riverview Gardens. Four others bitten by the dog on the same day received the treatment after Fleming died, and they did not take the disease, which, physicians testified, is incurable after the symptoms begin. The board reserved decision pending submission of briefs.

Reason for the Delay.

Curiously it developed that, although the office is technically Deputy State Health Commissioner for St. Louis County, the Board of Health has the right to fire but not to hire. The State Attorney-General ruled that the County Court could not act or investigate. But should the Board of Health sustain the charges brought by the County Court, any new appointment would be made by the County Court and the board would not even have power of confirmation.

In taking the case under advisement, Dr. Emmett P. North, president of the board, said an explanation was due to county citizens of the delay in acting on an occurrence of last spring. The Attorney-General's opinion barring the County Court from proceeding, he related, was handed down in the midst of the encephalitis epidemic, and the case was delayed in order to avoid disrupting the organized fight on the epidemic.

A huge sheaf of commendatory letters on Dr. Obrock's conduct in the encephalitis epidemic was offered in evidence by Dr. Obrock, but rejected by Dr. North with the comment that the board had "not been asleep," and itself knew very well the part Dr. Obrock had played.

Testimony for Complainants.

Testimony for the complainants was that the dog died after biting six residents of Riverview Gardens in one day, and its body was taken to Dr. Obrock for examination and advice. Joseph Milkovitz, one of the four survivors, testified he told Dr. Obrock he didn't think it had rabies, but told him also that it was a neighborhood pet which had suddenly become violent.

Dr. Obrock sent the head to the National Pathological Laboratories and, when Milkovitz and others returned, told them the laboratory report was negative and they had nothing to worry about. Earl Bales, father of the boy who died, testified he then demanded the Pasteur treatment for his son, but Dr. Obrock said he "wouldn't give it to his own brother."

James Fleming died a month later, on April 8. A Coroner's autopsy showed heart disease, but the County Hospital pathologist and two independent bacteriologists reported positive proof of rabies. Fleming's son, Gilbert, and his stepfather, Otto Hale, testified that on April 10 they demanded the preventive but Dr. Obrock refused it and, informed they were sent to him by County Judge Wehmeyer and a veterinarian who said the dog had rabies, asserted he was "running this office." Dr. Obrock started the Pasteur treatment on the four survivors on April 16, the day before Roy Bales died.

Testimony of Dr. Obrock.

On the stand in his own defense, Dr. Obrock said he had only advised against use of the preventive and denied, generally and specifically, that he ever refused to give it. He related that last spring his department had in its observation nearly 1000 persons bitten by or in some contact with dogs in which rabies was suspected, and spent more than $5000 on the preventive serum for indigent persons. He added that rabies in dogs was still prevalent, and he had not yet removed his quarantine on dogs running at large.

He related he advised against the preventive originally on a negative laboratory report on the dog, though it bore the notation that possibility of rabies was not

He added that rabies in dogs was still prevalent, and he had not yet removed his quarantine on dogs running at large.

He related he advised against the preventive originally on a negative laboratory report on the dog, though it bore the notation that possibility of rabies was not precluded, and that he had felt his judgment was confirmed by the autopsy finding of heart disease in James Fleming. His opinion changed, he related, when he saw Roy Bales in County Hospital, diagnosed as suffering from rabies.

Physicians' testimony, disclosing that the laboratory report might be accepted by the ordinary physician as proof that the dog was not rabid, dwelt on the question of whether a public health officer should know more about such diseases than the "ordinary" physician.

Experts Are Heard.

Dr. R. B. H. Gradwohl, bacteriologist, testified that he might have acted as Dr. Obrock did "if I divorced myself from my experience," and Dr. D. L. Harris, city director of rabies control for St. Louis and an international authority on the disease, testified that, in his opinion, the "ordinary" physician did not know enough about rabies to interpret a laboratory report.

Finding of microscopic "Negri bodies" in the brain was positive proof of rabies, Dr. Harris explained. But failure to find them, as in this case, might be due to the fact that in one of 20 cases of rabies, the Negri bodies did not exist. Cases where they were not found, he said, were generally those where the disease ran a rapid course. He added that the dog in question died in two days, whereas the average rabid dog lived three, five or seven days.

For this reason, Dr. Harris related, it was his practice when Negri bodies were not found to communicate with the physician and determine from the circumstances, the behavior and symptoms of the dog, whether rabies existed. He did not believe a health officer should accept a negative laboratory report without inquiry into the circumstances of the bite, but added, "On the other hand, I don't know how much, beyond the average knowledge of the ordinary physician, we should expect from the health officer who accepts responsibility for the control of infectious diseases."

Argument for Defense.

A negative laboratory report on Negri bodies would be "usually accepted by the ordinary physician, not by the expert," testified Dr. John H. Armstrong, called by the defense to introduce a report of a St. Louis County Medical Society investigating committee, which he headed, that Dr. Obrock had acted "as any other health officer or physician would have done under similar circumstances." He said the committee had read the charges and heard Dr. Obrock's answer, without calling other witnesses.

"Is a man supposed to be just an ordinary physician when he is entrusted with the health of 300,000 persons?" asked County Counselor W. H. Bray, on cross-examination, and Dr. Armstrong answered, "Yes."

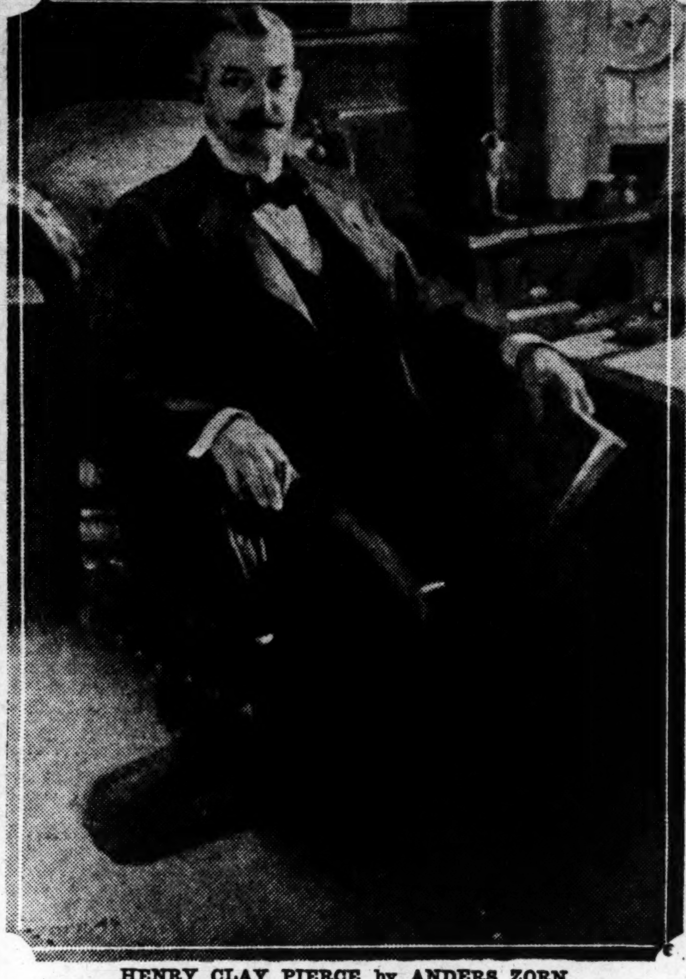
Portrait St. Louisan Said He'd Burn But Didn't, to Be Sold at Auction



HENRY CLAY PIERCE by ANDERS ZORN

TO SELL ZORN PORTRAIT OF HENRY CLAY PIERCE

Bank Orders Auction of Painting That Cost Oil Man $12,000 After Artist Sued.

An oil portrait of the late Henry Clay Pierce, St. Louis oil magnate, by Anders Zorn, noted Swedish artist, for which Pierce paid only after the artist had sued him, and which Pierce announced his intention to burn, will be placed on sale at an art auction in New York next Thursday.

Pierce, the first Mrs. Pierce and their daughter, Mrs. Eben Richards, sat for the artist in 1899 at the Pierce home, 40 Vandeventer place. None of the three portraits proved satisfactory to Pierce, who refused payment until a long list of alterations should be made in all the pictures. The artist made alterations in Pierce's portrait, reducing the size of the legs, and changing other details. But Pierce afterward charged that Zorn refused to alter Mrs. Pierce's portrait, and he refused to accept or pay for any of the pictures.

Zorn stored the paintings with the Noonan-Kocian firm here, retained Charles Nagel and Frederick W. Lehmann as his attorneys, and filed suit against Pierce for $12,000. Zorn returned to his home in Sweden, and when he came to St. Louis later, accompanied by art experts, to present his case in court, Pierce's lawyers took a change of venue to Clayton.

But a few weeks later, in January, 1901, Pierce settled the suit by paying the artist's claim in full, with interest from May, 1899, amounting to $13,200. Thereupon the three paintings were taken from storage, loaded into a wagon and delivered to the Pierce home.

Pierce explained his action by saying that he wished to have the pictures in his possession, in order to destroy them, and that unless he had settled the case the pictures would have been Zorn's property. Pierce said the pictures would be burned, but set no time for the burning, and it did not take place, at least as to the portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, but it was understood that during Pierce's lifetime no one was permitted to see the paintings.

Mrs. Pierce died in the latter part of 1899, and Pierce in 1927. After his death, the portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce were among the art objects removed from the Vandeventer place home, and were in storage for a time. A son, Theron F. Pierce of New York, purchased the father's portrait from the estate, and Mrs. Richards, also living in New York, acquired her mother's picture.

At the time the paintings were removed from the home in 1927, persons familiar with the estate said the Pierce portrait was valued at $30,000, and that of Mrs. Pierce at $20,000.

Theron Pierce died in 1930. The Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co. of New York, as administrator of his estate, has now placed the Pierce portrait on sale at the Anderson Galleries, 30 East Fifty-seventh street, New York. Copies of a catalogue, announcing the sale at the Anderson Galleries next Thursday night, have been received by St. Louis art dealers.

The catalogue contains a picture of the Pierce portrait, which is described as 60 by 42 inches in dimensions, a full-length seated figure, wearing a black suit, with a book in the left hand. The signature "Zorn" and the date '99 appear in the lower left hand corner.

Zorn died in 1920, at the age of 60, at his home in Mora, Sweden, where he painted pictures of Dalecarlian peasants. In his visits to the United States, he made portraits of Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Mark Hanna and John Hay. Some of his best known works were nudes. Zorn's life and work are treated at length in standard works of reference. The Encyclopedia Britannica calls his work in painting "an excellent example of the matured impressionistic group." He won fame also in sculpture and in etching.

25-YEAR PRISON TERM ENDS STRANGE CAREER

The strange career of Thomas M. Bugg Sr. as a manufacturer, banker and labor organizer, often under police investigation, but never, until yesterday, convicted of crime, was revealed by Postoffice inspectors after Federal Judge Faris had sentenced him to 25 years in the penitentiary.

Bugg, who is 52 years old, pleaded guilty of assault of a postoffice clerk in the $3239 robbery of Pretorius Branch Postoffice last Sept. 7 and accepted the mandatory sentence of 25 years in prison.

He was the owner of a stave factory at Vanduser, Mo., in 1916 when the factory was destroyed by fire. An investigation was made by agents of the insurance company and bloodhounds followed a trail from the factory to Bugg's home, but there the inquiry ended.

Former Banker at Vanduser.

Five years later he was the president of a bank at Vanduser when examiners told him it needed new capital. Soon thereafter Bugg reported robbers had locked him in the bank's vault and had stolen $1800.

A few months later examiners were again complaining of the bank's condition. It was dynamited and partly destroyed by fire. Bugg said the loss was $25,000 and that records of cash and notes had been destroyed. The bank was reorganized and a new president took Bugg's place.

The bank was held up three years later by three armed men who took $1375. Captured, they implicated Bugg and said the loot was divided in his farmhouse where he had assisted them in planning the robbery. The four were convicted at Cape Girardeau and sentenced to 10 years in prison, but Bugg won a new trial and acquittal. The bank robbers testified against him at the first trial, but refused to testify at Bugg's second trial.

Organized Bus Drivers' Union.

Later Bugg came to St. Louis and organized a bus drivers' union, of which he was president until his arrest for the postoffice robbery. After that robbery $1180 of the loot was found in the basement of Bugg's home, and about $1000 was recovered from the other participants.

Bugg and the other three, police said, confessed they had planned the robbery to conceal a shortage in the stamp account of a clerk at the station, Angeles Bowman.

Bowman and the two named as the actual robbers, Charles Hines and John Hert, will go on trial for the robbery Tuesday. A stay of commitment for Bugg was issued by Judge Faris yesterday so that he will be available as a witness at that trial.

COMMISSION ON MILK SOLD BY WOMEN CUT

Because of the milk marketing agreement which went into effect two weeks ago, the 28 women who sell cartons of milk for the Child Conservation Conference in downtown office buildings now receive a smaller commission, although the price of the milk to the consumer has been increased.

Formerly, when the carton sold for 5 cents, the women received 2 cents on each carton. Now they receive a cent and a half while selling the carton for 6 cents.

The St. Louis Dairy, which furnishes the milk to the Conference, formerly charged 2¾ cents for both plain and chocolate milk. Now, under the code, it charges 3½ cents for the half-pint carton of plain and 4 cents for the chocolate milk. The price of a quart of milk was increased from 10 to 11 cents under the code.

A spokesman for the dairy explained that the disproportionate increase for the small cartons was made "in order to allow the dairies to get out of the red." He said that 90 per cent of the milk marketed was in quart bottles and that the cent a quart raise there was not sufficient to offset the higher price which must be paid the farmer.

An analysis of the marketing code has shown that out of the cent a quart rise in price to the consumer, the farmer gets only one-tenth cent, while the other nine-tenths goes to the distributor.

An increase in overhead also forced the Child Conservation Conference to increase the retail price. Formerly the dairy supplied it with straws and ice, but it is not allowed to do so under the code.

The conference formerly made a quarter of a cent on each carton sold. Out of this was paid the nominal salary of a secretary and the remainder went to buy vitamin D milk for undernourished children. Last year the conference donated $1300 worth of this milk to welfare organizations, Mrs. Norman Windsor, president of the conference, said.

The women employed to sell milk would, but for that occupation, be on the relief rolls, Mrs. Windsor said. Three have quit since the code went into effect because of lack of profit. Application might be made to the Code Enforcing Committee by the conference for exemption under the code because the conference is a part charitable organization.

Lynching Tree at San Jose Uprooted

THE tree from which John M. Holmes, one of the kidnaper-slayers of Brooke L. Hart, was hanged by a mob in San Jose, Cal., is uprooted from St. James Park, scene of the lynching. The white area on the tree shows how it was stripped of bark by souvenir hunters. This tree and the one from which Thomas H. Thurmond, the other lynching victim, was hanged, were dug up and cut up for firewood on order from the Chief of Police.

ACCUSED IN BANK FAILURE

JOPLIN, Mo., Dec. 7.—Five complaints charging embezzlement, forgery and making of excessive bank loans were filed today by Prosecuting Attorney Ray E. Watson, against John W. Jones, cashier of the Joplin State Bank, which failed Jan. 18, 1932.

Among the charges is that Jones lent more than $8000 to a company of which he was an officer at a time when the company was practically insolvent. The bank received no notes or securities for some of the loans, the complaint charges. Juggling of depositors' accounts, embezzlement of the funds of a depositor for whom he acted as an agent and conversion of the bank's money to his own use are charged in various counts.

DOCTORS REPORT BULLET KILLED RHETA WYNEKOOP

Autopsy Physicians Contradict the Statement Made in Confession of Mother-in-Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—A second examination of the body of Rheta Wynekoop, slain in the basement operating room of her mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, confirms the original report that death was caused by a bullet wound, Coroner Frank J. Walsh announced yesterday.

The examination was made by Dr. James Kearns and Dr. John G. Frost after the body was exhumed from its grave in Indianapolis. The findings coincide with those reached by Dr. Thomas Dwyer, who was discharged by Coroner Walsh without explanation after he had submitted his report.

The conclusions of the physicians are in contradiction to the "confession" of Dr. Wynekoop, held as the murderer of Rheta, that she gave the girl an accidental overdose of chloroform and then fired a bullet into the body.

$500,000 IN COUNTERFEIT BILLS SEIZED IN CHICAGO RAID

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—A half million dollars in counterfeit money and a complete counterfeiting plant were seized last night in a raid by United States Secret Service men on a cottage on Chicago's Northwest Side.

The raid resulted from the arrest two weeks ago of two men on the South Side. One of them had $30,000 in counterfeit bills in his possession. The arrests had been kept secret.

The men in custody were: William E. Davis, 53 years old, a reputed Capone henchman, in whose automobile the $30,000 in bogus money was found, and Henry Harris. Neither Davis nor Harris was believed by Government agents to be a ring leader in the counterfeiting gang. The money found in Davis' car was all in bogus $5 bills.

WALLACE BACKS FOOD, DRUG BILL BEFORE SENATORS

EXHIBITS SHOWN ON COSMETIC DANGERS

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A Senate committee today opened public hearings on the bill designed to strengthen the existing pure food and drug act. The presence of a record crowd of patent medicine manufacturers, drug company officials and their lawyers and lobbyists, compelled the committee at the outset to seek a larger room, and the proceedings eventually were transferred to the Republican caucus hall.

The measure, drafted by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Tugwell and experts of the pure food and drug administration at the instruction of President Roosevelt, would prohibit false claims in advertising of foods and drugs, and would apply the same requirements to cosmetics. It would require manufacturers to label their products with the correct ingedients, and would make them responsible for misbranding.

Practices It Would End.

Proponents of the measure named, among present practices which the bill would end, the advertising and sale of a former horse liniment as a cure for tuberculosis, and of horsetail weed extract as a remedy for diabetes. Cosmetics known to have caused blindness, skin diseases and death, would also be affected.

Thirty-seven ailments are listed in the bill as not being subject to self-medication without danger to the patient, and it would prevent manufacturers from recommending their products for treatment of those ailments. Moreover, 16 narcotic and hypnotic substances are listed which must be described on the label of any product containing them as "possibly habit-forming."

Democratic Committeemen.

Conspicuous among those in attendance at the hearing was J. Bruce Kremer, Democratic National Committeeman from Montana, as counsel for the Drug Institute, and Edward T. Clark, former private secretary to President Coolidge, representing a nationwide chain of drug stores. The institute and the drug associations are fighting the bill. At least one other Democratic National Committeeman has been retained by interests opposing the measure.

Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican floor leader and a member of the committee, jokingly suggested to newspaper men that "it might be a good idea to open the hearing by calling the roll of Democratic Committeemen. Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York, a physician, who has been appearing on a radio program advertising a food which medicinal properties are claimed, presided at the hearing. The third member was Mrs. Caraway of Arknsas.

Wallace and Campbell.

Enactment of the measure was vigorously urged by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Walter G. Campbell, chief of the Food and Drug Administration, as being imperative to protect the public from worthless and positively dangerous preparations. They asserted that the present law, enacted 27 years ago, is inadequate for that purpose.

Secretary Wallace told the committee that many of the objections advanced against the bill were identical with those made against the present law 30 years ago, but since disavowed by their original authors. He continued:

"There is a greatly increased traffic in foods and drugs today. The cosmetic industry has become of first importance, whereas when the present law was written the cosmetic industry was in its infancy. The effectiveness with which a worthless or dangerous product can be sold today through modern advertising methods was not an acute problem in 1906. New narcotic and habit-forming drugs have appeared on the market. Totally new food constituents and important nutrition elements, like the vitamins, have been discovered.

"I doubt that anyone will wish to appear before this committee in defense of the many abuses which cannot be remedied under existing legislation: there is too much grim evidence of the tragic effects that almost daily result from the Government's inability to prevent the shipment and sale of dangerous and worthless products."

Objectives of Measure.

He stated the objective of the measure as follows:

Cosmetics are brought within the scope of the statute.

Mechanical devices, offered for curative purposes, and devices and preparations claimed to bring about changes in the structure of the body, are included within the purview of the bill.

False advertising of foods, drugs and cosmetics is prohibited.

Definitely informative labeling is required.

A drug which is, or may be dangerous to health under the conditions of use prescribed in its labeling is classed as adulterated.

The promulgation of definitions and standards for foods, which will have the force and effect of law, subject, of course, to court review, is prescribed.

The prohibition of added poisons in foods or the establishment of safe tolerances therefor is provided for.

The operation of factories under Federal permit is prescribed where protection of the public health cannot otherwise be effected.

More effective methods for the control of false labeling and advertising of drug products are provided, and

More severe penalties, as well as injunctions in the case of repeated offenses, are prescribed.

I think it is generally understood that this bill is intended primarily to protect consumers. At the same time it should operate in the interest of all honest manufacturers.

Wallace as Publisher.

Speaking as a publisher of farm periodicals, Secretary Wallace asserted that more enlightened publishers and advertising men would welcome passage of the bills.

"If the purchasing power of readers of their publications is soaked up by worthless or harmful products, it is obvious that essential and wholesome products must suffer the loss," he said.

"There are many enlightened publishers and advertising men who would welcome anything that would raise the standards of advertising, but as long as others take advantage of this 'gravy' as it comes in, they feel that they must accept this chiseling advertising to hold their own."

Campbell told the committee that, while poisons may be added to foods without harmful effects, they often are added in amounts constituting a positive danger. The bill would limit the amounts.

Girl's Face Is Scarred.

Campbell exhibited specimens of candy bonbons containing trinkets and other prizes, also X-ray photographs of the throats of several children showing the prizes lodged in them. He declared that many candies are coated with resinous glazes and even shellac.

Pleading for regulation of cosmetics, Campbell produced the photograph of a pretty young woman before she used a commercial preparation on her eyelashes, and a photograph made shortly afterward, when she was totally blind. A gasp of horror ran through the room as Senator McNary held up the likeness of the frightfully scarred face.

Campbell also produced a jar of a depilatory which, he said, caused thousands of incurable injuries before damage suits and judgments forced the manufacturer into bankruptcy. There was nothing on the jar to suggest that it contained a harmful ingredient. Labels on cosmetics are not covered by the present law.

False Bottoms and Walls.

The hearing assumed a lighter tone when Campbell brought out several packages familiar to housewives. There was a cheese box with a false bottom, a vanilla bottle with thick paneled walls creating an optical delusion as to contents, a package of noodles wrapped in yellow cellophane to give them an egg tint, and an advertisement of an egg container which makes little ones look like big ones. Ripples of laughter waved through the room.

Next Campbell produced several glass jars of "chicken and noodle dinners." The chicken content ranged from 9 to 15 per cent. The jars were virtually the same size and same price.

"Deluded the People."

Campbell said the section of the bill prohibiting patent medicine manufacturers from advertising worthless preparations as "cures" had aroused "a bitter propaganda" and that "it is the source of the principal opposition to this measure."

"These are the people who have cheated and deluded the people for so many years," he asserted. Holding up a bottle of white liquid, he continued:

"Here is something that was originally made as a horse liniment. As horse liniment goes, it was all right. Subsequently, the name was bought and the product is advertised and sold as a remedy for cancer, tuberculosis, common colds, locomotor ataxia and rheumatism. Under the present law, there is nothing we can do about it."

had anything to do with the railroad loans.

The committee produced a letter written by Couch on RFC stationery to McCain, telling him a loan had been made to the Wabash which owed the Chase Bank $3,000,000.

McCain testified the Wabash, which obtained $5,000,000 from the RFC, owed a group of banks $10,000,000, including the $3,000,000 to Chase.

He said the RFC also made loans to other roads that owed money to the bank, including: Rock Island, $2,000,000; St. Louis Southwestern, $4,500,000; Chicago & Northwestern, $1,000,000.

McCain said the Chase Bank received the following payments from railroads as a result of RFC loans: Wabash, $1,550,000, August, 1932; Rock Island, $2,000,000, June, 1932; St. Louis Southwestern, $4,500,000, April, 1932; Chicago & Northwestern, $1,000,000, September, 1932; Baltimore & Ohio, $1,250,000.

Couch Denies "Irregularity."

Chairman Fletcher placed in the record a letter from Couch denying any "irregularity" in his relations with the Chase bank. The letter follows:

"My dealings with the New York banks have been in the usual course of private business. In that connection by name has been brought into your record. Publicity given these routine business transactions has been of such a nature as to indicate that there was some irregularity about them.

"The letter I wrote to Charles S. McCain of the Chase National Bank will be understood when I tell you that we were reared together in Arkansas. It was a purely personal letter to be lifelong friend and business associate.

"At one time I owned a substantial amount of stock in the Chase Bank. When I was appointed to the board of the R. F. C., I sold my stock at a loss and severed all official connection with the bank. My connection with the R. F. C. was by request and not by application.

"There probably is nothing in this situation that would justify the committee in taking the time to hear me, but I shall be more than willing to appear if you think it desirable."

Committee members said Couch would not be called, but could appear if he desired.

Operations of a $10,000,000 pool in Louisiana & Arkansas Railway stock were described.

McCain said the pool was organized in 1928 to purchase stock in the Louisiana & Arkansas and the Louisiana Railway & Navigation Co.

Participants, he said, were Dillon, Read & Co., R. J. Pack, H. C. Couch, Rogers Caldwell, Coverdale & Colpitts, J. A. Moffett and himself. Each of them, he added, extended shares to some participants.

McCain testified the pool still owes the Chase National Bank $1,289,000.

The pool borrowed $2,295,000 in 1928, McCain said, from the National Park Bank of New York while he was president of that institution. This was increased by $500,000, he added, in May, 1929, and the total of $2,795,000 taken over by Chase in the merger of the two banks in August, 1929.

Pecora cited proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval of the merger of the Louisiana & Arkansas with the Louisiana Railway & Navigation Co.

The syndicate acquired the stock in the latter from Mrs. Sarah Drain Edenborn. (She is a former St. Louisan, the widow of William Edenborn of Shreveport, La., and succeeded him as president of the Louisiana Railway & Navigation Co., after his death in 1926. Several years ago Mrs. Sophie Meier, wife of a St. Louis County farmer, accepted $300,000 in settlement of her claim to a share of Edenborn's estate as an adopted daughter).

Pecora read testimony before the I. C. C., in which Commissioner Woodlock questioned Frank M. Swacker, attorney for the Louisiana & Arkansas.

"You don't mean they got this old lady in a tight place and are proceeding to take advantage of her, do you?" Woodlock asked.

"I suppose I cannot very well deny the fact," Swacker replied. "It is a perfectly obvious one. She is in a position where she has got to have a lot of cash and she must sell. She wants to sell. She is much more anxious to sell than the syndicate are to buy."

Statement by McCain.

McCain read a prepared statement denying that he was responsible for the filibuster conducted by Senator Huey P. Long, against the Glass bank bill.

"I want to state categorically that there is absolutely no truth in this assumption," McCain said, referring to a statement by Glass that he was in constant communication with Long during the filibuster.

McCain added that he had talked several times with Long and felt free to do so because he had extended "some favors" to the Louisianan "in relation to the financing of Louisiana highway bonds."

McCain testified he had tried to get Long to stop his filibuster, but had been unable to get Long and Glass together because the latter did not want to confer.

The banker said he was "hurt" that Senator Glass had felt he was rude to him.

The committee completed its inquiry into the Chase National Bank late today and recessed until Dec. 18, when it will investigate Detroit banks.

URGES EQUALIZATION FUND FOR OIL INDUSTRY

Group Offers Secretary Ickes a Plan to Stabilize Gasoline Prices.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Conflicting factions of the petroleum industry today submitted to Secretary of the Interior Ickes, oil administrator, a plan for stabilizing gasoline prices by using an equalization fund to keep price-depressing excess supplies off the market. Ickes withheld his decision.

Backers of the plan, however, were hopeful that it would both meet Ickes' demands and would make any kind of price-fixing unnecessary. They were represented as believing that prices of crude oil are satisfactory for the time being, and that control of excess gasoline stocks, accumulated in anticipation of the oil code, will serve to correct price maladjustments.

The plan was understood to propose the withholding from the market of many millions of barrels of gasoline by purchase with funds contributed by members of the industry.

Such supplies, estimated at from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 barrels, would then be released slowly so as not to disturb the market.

It was said in one quarter that proponents of price-fixing in the industry were willing to allow a test of the plan for a period of, say, 90 days.

PLAN COMMISSION TO TAKE UP OUSTING OF ENGINEER

The dismissal of Dec. 1 of Henri Rush, an engineer in the City Plan Commission, will be taken up at the next regular meeting of the commission, it was announced after a special meeting scheduled for today was called off.

Rush, appointed last Aug. 7 at a salary of $230 a month, was discharged by Harland Bartholomew, chief engineer of the Plan Commission. Neither Bartholomew nor Rush would discuss the situation, although it was reported that Bartholomew was displeased because Rush recently presented a plan of river-front development to the newspapers. Rush, who lives at 6038 Delmar boulevard, submitted the plan as an individual, not as engineer for the commission.

As their first joint action, the board and the Advisory Committee indorsed a resolution, adopted by Mayor Dickmann's Medical Advisory Committee and read by Dr. Marriott, expressing, "in the name of the entire medical profession of St. Louis, our gratitude to Dr. Starkloff for his untiring efforts to put into effect every advance medicine has made to prolong the lives, conserve the health and promote the happiness of our citizens."

Reminiscing a little of the advances of public health in nearly 40 years—advances in which he led St. Louis and sometimes the nation—Dr. Starkloff responded, "If I had heard one more such laudatory comment, I'd begin to believe them myself, but in the words of Popeye, 'I yam what I yam, and that's all I yam.'

"You have told me that I have many distinctions. I am proudest of the faith of the medical profession, and to have this testimony of your appreciation is greater than anything else that life, with all its prizes, can offer."

The main part of the spread is divided into states and worked into each are figures showing the majority the President received in that State and the number of electoral votes for the State.

The museum now has 30 objects of various designs, including a crayon portrait of the President.

sible to get through the Senate exactly the kind of bill he desired.

He said he believed the local option provisions were the best that could be written.

"I am not alarmed by the saloon provisions," he said. "A bar and a brass rail don't make an objectionable saloon. It is what goes on in the place, the back rooms, the gambling, and sometimes the houses of prostitution which were known in some cases as adjuncts of the saloon. It doesn't make any difference whether they have brass cuspidors or those fancy jardinieres filled with sand.

"I am dry and have always been dry, and I wish that prohibition had worked. But we must assume that the country is wet. They say that Columbus didn't discover America because when he sighted land he said 'I see dry land.'

"I shall support the bill because I believe it was worked out conscientiously and in sincerity, and that it is the best that we can get."

Written for Majority.

Senator Donnelly of Lebanon, majority floor leader, who, with Senator Clark of Richmond, wrote virtually the entire bill as it was reported to the Senate by the Judiciary and Criminal Jurisprudence Committees, said that their efforts had been to prepare a bill which would meet the views of a majority of the Senate.

"Personally I do not agree with all the provisions which we put into the bill, but we were not preparing a bill to meet our personal views, but one which met the views of a majority of the 16 Senators on the two committees which considered it" he said.

Roll Call on the Bill.

Absent—Senator Bates of St. Louis.

There were sufficient votes for the bill in the Senate to pass the emergency clause to make the act effective as soon as passed by both Houses and signed by the Governor. To be effective, however, the emergency clause must receive 100 votes in the House.

House Strikes Out Its Liquor Bill Advertising Restrictions.

The House continued today with consideration of its liquor control bill, which has been before it almost continuously for two weeks.

All restrictions on advertising of intoxicating liquor were stricken from the bill through adoption of an amendment by Representative Roy of Wright County, without a record vote. In its original form the bill prohibited retail permit holders from advertising intoxicating liquor in any manner, but would have authorized manufacturers or distributors to "conservatively" advertise intoxicating liquor in newspapers, periodicals, magazines and through radio broadcasting. Such advertising, however, could not describe or name the retail places where the liquor advertised could be purchased.

The House adopted several amendments making various sections conform to its previously adopted policy of permitting hotels, restaurants, clubs and railroads to sell wine with an alcoholic content not to exceed 12 per cent by weight, and beer, with meals, but prohibiting them from selling intoxicating liquor in any form.

HEALTH OFFICIAL DEFENDS ACTION IN RABIES CASES

'With Nothing Further to Go On,' He Says He Again Would Not Give Pasteur Treatment.

He Is Charged With Dereliction of Duty in Failure to Prescribe for Six Persons, Two of Whom Died

Facing removal from office for failure to administer Pasteur treatment to six persons bitten by a rabid dog last Feb. 28, County Health Commissioner L. C. Obrock testified yesterday before the State Board of Health at Clayton that, on the same grounds, he would do the same thing again.

"If I had nothing further to go on," he stipulated when the question was put to him in cross-examination, on the stand in his own defense in a hearing to determine if his office should be declared vacant for dereliction of duty.

Failure to investigate was an element of the charges brought on complaint of the County Court and the families of Roy Bales, 10 years old, and James Fleming, who died in lack of the preventive treatment after they were bitten by a police pup on a rampage near their homes in Riverview Gardens. Four others bitten by the dog on the same day received the treatment after Fleming died, and they did not take the disease, which, physicians testified, is incurable after the symptoms begin. The board reserved decision pending submission of briefs.

Reason for the Delay.

Curiously it developed that, although the office is technically Deputy State Health Commissioner for St. Louis County, the Board of Health has the right to fire but not to hire. The State Attorney-General ruled that the County Court could not act or investigate. But should the Board of Health sustain the charges brought by the County Court, any new appointment would be made by the County Court and the board would not even have power of confirmation.

In taking the case under advisement, Dr. Emmett P. North, president of the board, said an explanation was due to county citizens of the delay in acting on an occurrence of last spring. The Attorney-General's opinion barring the County Court from proceeding, he related, was handed down in the midst of the encephalitis epidemic, and the case was delayed in order to avoid disrupting the organized fight on the epidemic.

A huge sheaf of commendatory letters on Dr. Obrock's conduct in the encephalitis epidemic was offered in evidence by Dr. Obrock, but rejected by Dr. North with the comment that the board had "not been asleep," and itself knew very well the part Dr. Obrock had played.

Testimony for Complainants.

Testimony for the complainants was that the dog died after biting six residents of Riverview Gardens in one day, and its body was taken to Dr. Obrock for examination and advice. Joseph Milkovitz, one of the four survivors, testified he told Dr. Obrock he didn't think it had rabies, but told him also that it was a neighborhood pet which had suddenly become violent.

Dr. Obrock sent the head to the National Pathological Laboratories and, when Milkovitz and others returned, told them the laboratory report was negative and they had nothing to worry about. Earl Bales, father of the boy who died, testified he then demanded the Pasteur treatment for his son, but Dr. Obrock said he "wouldn't give it to his own brother."

James Fleming died a month later, on April 8. A Coroner's autopsy showed heart disease, but the County Hospital pathologist and two independent bacteriologists reported positive proof of rabies. Fleming's son, Gilbert, and his stepfather, Otto Hale, testified that on April 10 they demanded the preventive but Dr. Obrock refused it and, informed they were sent to him by County Judge Wehmeyer and a veterinarian who said the dog had rabies, asserted he was "running this office." Dr. Obrock started the Pasteur treatment on the four survivors on April 16, the day before Roy Bales died.

Testimony of Dr. Obrock.

On the stand in his own defense, Dr. Obrock said he had only advised against use of the preventive and denied, generally and specifically, that he ever refused to give it. He related that last spring his department had in its observation nearly 1000 persons bitten by or in some contact with dogs in which rabies was suspected, and spent more than $5000 on the preventive serum for indigent persons. He added that rabies in dogs was still prevalent, and he had not yet removed his quarantine on dogs running at large.

He related he advised against the preventive originally on a negative laboratory report on the dog, although it bore the notation that possibility of rabies was not precluded, and that he had felt his judgment was confirmed by the autopsy finding of heart disease in James Fleming. His opinion changed, he related, when he saw Roy Bales in County Hospital, diagnosed as suffering from rabies.

Physicians' testimony, disclosing that the laboratory report might be accepted by the ordinary physician as proof that the dog was not rabid, dwelt on the question of whether a public health officer should know more about such diseases than the "ordinary" physician.

Experts Are Heard.

Dr. R. B. H. Gradwohl, bacteriologist, testified that he might have acted as Dr. Obrock did "if I divorced myself from my experience," and Dr. D. L. Harris, city director of rabies control for St. Louis and an international authority on the disease, testified that, in his opinion, the "ordinary" physician did not know enough about rabies to interpret a laboratory report.

Finding of microscopic "Negri bodies" in the brain was positive proof of rabies, Dr. Harris explained. But failure to find them, as in this case, might be due to the fact that in one of 20 cases of rabies, the Negri bodies did not exist. Cases where they were not found, he said, were generally those where the disease ran a rapid course. He added that the dog in question died in two days, whereas the average rabid dog lived three, five or seven days.

For this reason, Dr. Harris related, it was his practice when Negri bodies were not found to communicate with the physician and determine from the circumstances, the behavior and symptoms of the dog, whether rabies existed. He did not believe a health officer should accept a negative laboratory report without inquiry into the circumstances of the bite, but added, "On the other hand, I don't know how much, beyond the average knowledge of the ordinary physician, we should expect from the health officer who accepts responsibility for the control of infectious diseases."

Argument for Defense.

A negative laboratory report on Negri bodies would be "usually accepted by the ordinary physician, not by the expert," testified Dr. John H. Armstrong, called by the defense to introduce a report of a St. Louis County Medical Society investigating committee, which he headed, that Dr. Obrock had acted "as any other health officer or physician would have done under similar circumstances." He said the committee had read the charges and heard Dr. Obrock's answer, without calling other witnesses.

"Is a man supposed to be just an ordinary' physician when he is entrusted with the health of 300,000 persons?" asked County Counselor W. H. Bray, on cross-examination, and Dr. Armstrong answered, "Yes."

Portrait St. Louisan Said He'd Burn But Didn't, to Be Sold at Auction

Bank Orders Auction of Painting That Cost Oil Man $12,000 After Artist Sued.

An oil portrait of the late Henry Clay Pierce, St. Louis oil magnate, by Anders Zorn, noted Swedish artist, for which Pierce paid only after the artist had sued him, and which Pierce announced his intention to burn, will be placed on sale at an art auction in New York next Thursday.

Pierce, the first Mrs. Pierce and their daughter, Mrs. Eben Richards, sat for the artist in 1899 at the Pierce home, 40 Vandeventer place. None of the three portraits proved satisfactory to Pierce, who refused payment until a long list of alterations should be made in all the pictures. The artist made alterations in Pierce's portrait, reducing the size of the legs, and changing other details. But Pierce afterward charged that Zorn refused to alter Mrs. Pierce's portrait, and he refused to accept or pay for any of the pictures.

Zorn stored the paintings with the Noonan-Kocian firm here, retained Charles Nagel and Frederick W. Lehmann as his attorneys, and filed suit against Pierce for $12,000. Zorn returned to his home in Sweden, and when he came to St. Louis later, accompanied by art experts, to present his case in court, Pierce's lawyers took a change of venue to Clayton.

But a few weeks later, in January, 1901, Pierce settled the suit by paying the artist's claim in full, with interest from May, 1899, amounting to $13,200. Thereupon the three paintings were taken from storage, loaded into a wagon and delivered to the Pierce home.

Pierce explained his action by saying that he wished to have the pictures in his possession, in order to destroy them, and that unless he had settled the case the pictures would have been Zorn's property. Pierce said the pictures would be burned, but set no time for the burning, and it did not take place, at least as to the portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, but it was understood that during Pierce's lifetime no one was permitted to see the paintings.

Mrs. Pierce died in the latter part of 1899, and Pierce in 1927. After his death, the portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce were among the art objects removed from the Vandeventer place home, and were in storage for a time. A son, Theron F. Pierce of New York, purchased the father's portrait from the estate, and Mrs. Richards, also living in New York, acquired her mother's picture.

At the time the paintings were removed from the home in 1927, persons familiar with the estate said the Pierce portrait was valued at $30,000, and that of Mrs. Pierce at $20,000.

Theron Pierce died in 1930. The Corn Exchange Bank Trust Co. of New York, as administrator of his estate, has now placed the Pierce portrait on sale at the Anderson Galleries, 30 East Fifty-seventh street, New York. Copies of a catalogue, announcing the sale at the Anderson Galleries next Thursday night, have been received by St. Louis art dealers.

The catalogue contains a picture of the Pierce portrait, which is described as 60 by 42 inches in dimensions, a full-length seated figure, wearing a black suit, with a book in the left hand. The signature "Zorn" and the date '99 appear in the lower left hand corner.

Zorn died in 1920, at the age of 60, at his home in Mora, Sweden, where he painted pictures of Dalecarlian peasants. In his visits to the United States, he made portraits of Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Mark Hanna and John Hay. Some of his best known works were nudes. Zorn's life and work are treated at length in standard works of reference. The Encyclopedia Britannica calls his work in painting "an excellent example of the matured impressionistic group." He won fame also in sculpture and in etching.

The strange career of Thomas M. Bugg Sr. as a manufacturer, banker and labor organizer, often under police investigation, but never, until yesterday, convicted of crime, was revealed by Postoffice inspectors after Federal Judge Faris had sentenced him to 25 years in the penitentiary.

Bugg, who is 52 years old, pleaded guilty of assault of a postoffice clerk in the $3239 robbery of Pretorius Branch Postoffice last Sept. 7 and accepted the mandatory sentence of 25 years in prison.

He was the owner of a stave factory at Vanduser, Mo., in 1916 when the factory was destroyed by fire. An investigation was made by agents of the insurance company and bloodhounds followed a trail from the factory to Bugg's home, but there the inquiry ended.

Former Banker at Vanduser.

Five years later he was the president of a bank at Vanduser when examiners told him it needed new capital. Soon thereafter Bugg reported robbers had locked him in the bank's vault and had stolen $1800.

A few months later examiners were again complaining of the bank's condition. It was dynamited and partly destroyed by fire. Bugg said the loss was $25,000 and that records of cash and notes had been destroyed. The bank was reorganized and a new president took Bugg's place.

The bank was held up three years later by three armed men who took $1375. Captured, they implicated Bugg and said the loot was divided in his farmhouse where he had assisted them in planning the robbery. The four were convicted at Cape Girardeau and sentenced to 10 years in prison, but Bugg won a new trial and acquittal. The bank robbers testified against him at the first trial, but refused to testify at Bugg's second trial.

Organized Bus Drivers' Union.

Later Bugg came to St. Louis and organized a bus drivers' union, of which he was president until his arrest for the postoffice robbery. After that robbery $1180 of the loot was found in the basement of Bugg's home, and about $1000 was recovered from the other participants.

Bugg and the other three, police said, confessed they had planned the robbery to conceal a shortage in the stamp account of a clerk at the station, Angeles Bowman.

Bowman and the two named as the actual robbers, Charles Hines and John Hert, will go on trial for the robbery Tuesday. A stay of commitment for Bugg was issued by Judge Faris yesterday so that he will be available as a witness at that trial.

COMMISSION ON MILK SOLD BY WOMEN CUT

Because of the milk marketing agreement which went into effect two weeks ago, the 28 women who sell cartons of milk for the Child Conservation Conference in downtown office buildings now receive a smaller commission, although the price of the milk to the consumer has been increased.

Formerly, when the carton sold for 5 cents, the women received 2 cents on each carton. Now they receive a cent and a half while selling the carton for 6 cents.

The St. Louis Dairy, which furnishes the milk to the Conference, formerly charged 2¾ cents for both plain and chocolate milk. Now, under the code, it charges 3¼ cents for the half-pint carton of plain and 4 cents for the chocolate milk. The price of a quart of milk was increased from 10 to 11 cents under the code.

A spokesman for the dairy explained that the disproportionate increase for the small cartons was made "in order to allow the dairies to get out of the red." He said that 90 per cent of the milk marketed was in quart bottles and that the cent a quart raise there was not sufficient to offset the higher price which must be paid the farmer.

An analysis of the marketing code has shown that out of the cent a quart rise in price to the consumer, the farmer gets only one-tenth cent, while the other nine-tenths goes to the distributor.

An increase in overhead also forced the Child Conservation Conference to increase the retail price. Formerly the dairy supplied it with straws and ice, but it is not allowed to do so under the code.

The conference formerly made a quarter of a cent on each carton sold. Out of this was paid the nominal salary of a secretary and the remainder went to buy vitamin D milk for undernourished children. Last year the conference donated $1300 worth of this milk to welfare organizations, Mrs. Norman Windsor, president of the conference, said.

The women employed to sell milk would, but for that occupation, be on the relief rolls, Mrs. Windsor said. Three have quit since the code went into effect because of lack of profit. Application might be made to the Code Enforcing Committee by the conference for exemption under the code because the conference is a part charitable organization.

THE tree from which John M. Holmes, one of the kidnaper-slayers of Brooke L. Hart, was hanged by a mob in San Jose, Cal., is uprooted from St. James Park, scene of the lynching. The white area on the tree shows how it was stripped of bark by souvenir hunters. This tree and the one from which Thomas H. Thurmond, the other lynching victim, was hanged, were dug up and cut up for firewood on order from the Chief of Police.

ACCUSED IN BANK FAILURE

JOPLIN, Mo., Dec. 7.—Five complaints charging embezzlement, forgery and making of excessive bank loans were filed today by Prosecuting Attorney Ray E. Watson, against John W. Jones, cashier of the Joplin State Bank, which failed Jan. 18, 1932.

Among the charges is that Jones lent more than $8000 to a company of which he was an officer at a time when the company was practically insolvent. The bank received no notes or securities for some of the loans, the complaint charges. Juggling of depositors' accounts, embezzlement of the funds of a depositor for whom he acted as an agent and conversion of the bank's money to his own use are charged in various counts.

DOCTORS REPORT BULLET KILLED RHETA WYNEKOOP

Autopsy Physicians Contradict the Statement Made in Confession of Mother-in-Law.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—A second examination of the body of Rheta Wynekoop, slain in the basement operating room of her mother-in-law, Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, confirms the original report that death was caused by a bullet wound, Coroner Frank J. Walsh announced yesterday.

The examination was made by Dr. James Kearns and Dr. John G. Frost after the body was exhumed from its grave in Indianapolis. The findings coincide with those reached by Dr. Thomas Dwyer, who was discharged by Coroner Walsh without explanation after he had submitted his report.

The conclusions of the physicians are in contradiction to the "confession" of Dr. Wynekoop, held as the murderer of Rheta, that she gave the girl an accidental overdose of chloroform and then fired a bullet into the body.

$500,000 IN COUNTERFEIT BILLS SEIZED IN CHICAGO RAID

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—A half million dollars in counterfeit money and a complete counterfeiting plant were seized last night in a raid by United States Secret Service men on a cottage on Chicago's Northwest Side.

The raid resulted from the arrest two weeks ago of two men on the South Side. One of them had $30,000 in counterfeit bills in his possession. The arrests had been kept secret.

The men in custody were: William E. Davis, 53 years old, a reputed Capone henchman, in whose automobile the $30,000 in bogus money was found, and Henry Harris. Neither Davis nor Harris was believed by Government agents to be a ring leader in the counterfeiting gang. The money found in Davis' car was all in bogus $5 bills.

GOVERNOR BARS EXPORT OF CATTLE FROM N. DAKOTA

Langer Issues Embargo Order to Prevent Sale of Stock at Allegedly 'Confiscatory Prices.'

By the Associated Press.

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 7.—Gov. William S. Langer yesterday declared an embargo on outstate shipments of beef cattle "intended to be processed into human food."

At the same time he lifted for 10 days a wheat embargo in effect, except for six days, since Oct. 19. This embargo, Langer said, accomplished "all I could have possibly hoped for it without the assistance of other states."

He ordered Sheriffs to enforce the new embargo, designed to prevent sale of cattle at "confiscatory prices," by halting loading of cattle for shipment out of the State.

As in the case of the wheat embargo and earlier proclamation declaring a moratorium on foreclosures, he offered Sheriffs the aid of the National Guards in enforcing the order.

"Drain on State Resources."

To permit further sale of beef cattle, the proclamation said, "will constitute a drain upon the natural resources of the State, resulting in the confiscation of human food when thousands of our citizens are asking the Government and political subdivisions of the State for the necessities of life, which they cannot purchase at any price."

Emphasizing his satisfaction with results of his wheat embargo which he said "forestalled any use of force or violence or destruction of property by strikes or picketing in this State," Gov. Langer said he had lifted it to enable farmers to sell grain and buy necessities. He said elevators were filled and some terminals handicapped because of large stocks on hand.

At this season of the year, he declared, "many farmers are in dire need of the necessities of life, such as fuel, groceries and clothing, both for themselves and families, and due to the financial stringency, merchants who would otherwise be glad to extend credit are unable to do so."

Comparative Wheat Prices.

On Oct. 18, the day before Langer declared the wheat embargo, designed to raise prices, December wheat was quoted in Minneapolis at 76¼c a bushel and May wheat at 79⅞c. Yesterday the closing quotations were December 80¾ and May 82⅝c.

Langer, in his cattle embargo order, said animals were being sold at prices representing "only a fraction of the cost of production" and that the embargo woud continue until "the market price shall cease to be confiscatory."

One statistician estimated that about 900,000 cattle would be affected. On Jan. 1, 1933, Government records showed there were on North Dakota farms 1,691,000 cattle, of which about 785,000 were dairy cattle, not affected by the order. The total was 2.44 per cent of all cattle in the United States.

Catholic Masses Tomorrow.

Downtown Catholic churches will have four noon day masses each tomorrow, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception. The churches are St. John's, the Old Cathedral, St. Nicholas and St. Patrick's.

DR. HESS, WHO USED SUN TO TREAT RICKETS, DIES

Also Discovered Exposure of Foods to Ultraviolet Rays Could Develop Vitamin D.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Dr. Alfred F. Hess, who invented the treatment of rickets by heliotherapy and who discovered that vitamin D could be developed in foods by exposure to ultraviolet rays, died Tuesday night of heart disease. He was 58 years old.

Dr. Hess, who was stricken after presenting diplomas to a class of nurses, recently had been engaged in developing irradiated milk.

In his study of rickets he showed the disease was influenced by climate, and introduced a new aspect of nutrition, the interlocking of diet and climate. He demonstrated his discoveries by the exposure of children to sunlight and proving, by means of radiographs, a rapid healing of the bones. He then used mercury vapor lamps and obtained the same results.

Dr. Hess, a graduate of Harvard, was awarded the John Scott Medal by the Franklin Society of Philadelphia in 1927 for his studies "on the operative influence of light on rickets." His widow is the former Sara Straus, sister of Jesse I. Straus, Ambassador to France. Two daughters also survive.

Jack Dempsey as a Newsboy.

By the Associated Press.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 7.—Jack Dempsey, who made millions as a heavyweight boxer, took in $25 as a newsboy here yesterday. He sold autographed newspapers, giving all he took in to the Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children. The papers brought from 50 cents to $1 a copy.

Healthiest of the Nation's Youth

CLISTA MILLSPAUGH, GLENN L. SHERWOOD, SHIRLEY C. DREW.

MISS MILLSPAUGH, a high school girl from Mount Pleasant, Ia., and Miss Drew, from Fayette, Mo., and a freshman at Christian College, Columbia, Mo., were tied for girls in the 4-H Club contest held in connection with the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago. Miss Millspaugh attributes her health to spinach—the more so because she hoes the spinach. Miss Drew is an expert rider having ridden show horses in competition since she was 10 years old. Her mother is a teacher at Christian College. Young Sherwood's home is at Larned, Kan. He is 6 feet tall, weighs 177 pounds, is a farmer's son, never smoked or drank, is a crack corn husker, and attributes his health to the fact that he "is just naturally healthy."

Pauline Frederick Bankrupt.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—Individual bankruptcy petitions were filed in Federal Court yesterday by Pauline Frederick, movie actress, and Morris J. Herbert, attorney-film producer, who last week filed a joint bankruptcy petition in behalf of the Fredericks Productions, motion picture company. Miss Frederick listed total liabilities of $3244, of which all except $20 was in secured claims. Totals assets were listed at $1600.

SHIRT BAND REVEALS FIRE VICTIM'S IDENTITY

Laundry Mark Traced—Former Street Car Conductor Lost Life in Vacant House.

Microscopic examination of a scorched shirt band led to the identification yesterday of the body of a man burned to death in a fire and explosion at a vacant house at 3709 Finney avenue early last Saturday.

The body is that of James M. Whitton, 36 years old, a former street car conductor, according to Glenn Terrell, 4593 Easton avenue, foster brother of Whitton. Identification is based on a broken tooth, and on the circumstances developed by police in their investigation of the fire, which they believe was of incendiary origin.

The body was charred beyond recognition and the clothing was destroyed, except for the collar band of the shirt and shreds of the trousers. Careful washing of the collar band made a laundry mark "Salzgeber" discernible with the aid of a microscope.

Detectives went to the home of R. H. Salzgeber, 3661 Hartford street, secretary of the Hammer Dry Plate Co., and learned that the shirt had been discarded by Herbert Salzgeber, now in California, and had been given by the Salzgeber housekeeper, Mrs. Edith Boudin, to her brother, Jesse Coffel, a janitor employed at 4538 Laclede avenue.

Coffel told the officers he gave the shirt and a suit of clothes to Whitton last Friday. He related that Whitton, known as "Mack" and "Whitney," occasionally spent the night with him. Friday evening, according to Coffel, a man, whom he named, called at the apartment house and furnished Whitton with whisky. The man carried a new octagon shaped flash lantern, Coffel said. He explained that he left Whitton and the second man in his room and, when he returned, they had departed. He was shown a flash lantern found with Whitton's body in the burned house and said it was of the same shape as the lantern he described.

From Coffel the officers learned that Whitton formerly was a street car conductor. Inquiry at the Public Service Co. led to Glenn Terrell. The latter related that Whitton had been adopted into the Terrell family at Winfield, Mo. He described a broken upper tooth, which Whitton had neglected. There is such a tooth in the upper jaw of the burned body, and the body measurements correspond to Whitton, his foster brother said. Police are trying to locate a sister of Whitton living in Kentucky. The identification is strengthened by the fact that Whitton has not been seen alive since Friday night.

The man named by Coffel as the owner of the flash lantern was questioned and admitted having visited Whitton and Coffel Friday evening. He explained that they had several drinks, and he departed. Six men are held in the investigation of the fire, which caused $3000 damage. Police plan to present the facts to the grand jury.

Kills Slayer of His Brother.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., Dec. 7.—In revenge for the slaying of his brother three years ago, J. Jesus Picazo shot and killed Manuel Cuesta Moreno, an employe of the Department of Communications, in a downtown street last night. Seven shots struck Moreno before he had an opportunity to draw his own pistol. Moreno shot and killed Rafael Picazo, a Federal Deputy, in 1930 after a dispute over lands.

NEW YORK EVENING POST SAID TO HAVE BEEN SOLD

No Announcement of Purchaser Made; Publication Recently Issued in Tabloid Form.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—The New York Evening Post was reported sold yesterday, but no announcement of the sale was made by John C. Martin, president of Curtis-Martin Newspapers, Inc., and the New York Evening Post, Inc., or by the publisher, whose identity was not learned. A formal announcement of the sale is expected today.

Frank Lynch, secretary to Martin, who was in Philadelphia, said that the newspaper had been sold and that its publication would be continued. J. David Stern of Philadelphia, publisher of the Philadelphia Record and the Camden, N. J., Courier Post, was generally believed to be the purchaser. He is a Democrat.

Harry B. Nason Jr., Martin's representative, who assumed editorial direction of the paper when it was reduced to tabloid size in September, said: "My belief is that we have a new owner," but that he could not confirm reports of the sale.

POWER TIE-UP IN LONDON

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 7. — Most of Northwest London was thrown into darkness last night from one hour to two hours and a half in one of the most complete power breakdowns in years.

Tramcars were halted in a period of busy traffic until nearly 8 o'clock. A few minor accidents were reported. Stores were quickly sold out of candles.

RAILWAYS OPPOSE BARGE SERVICE EXTENSION PLAN

Term It 'Parasite' and Object to Its Operation Over New Inter-Coastal Waterway.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — Terming the Mississippi Valley Barge Line Co. a "parasite," railroads serving the South today protested to the Interstate Commerce Commission against granting the barge line permission to extend its operations over the intercoastal waterway of Louisiana and Texas.

The barge line company asked permission to extend its operations on the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers between New Orleans and Cincinnati to the newly constructed waterway along the Gulf Coast. They also asked for joint rates with the railroads under the Denison act.

In a protest filed today, the rail carriers asserted "the Mississippi Valley Barge Line Co. since the commencement of its operations has not created one ton of new traffic."

"It has lived as a parasite off of traffic diverted from the railroads," the roads contended. "It affords no service of transportation that is not afforded by the railroads to and from the same points. It is not a common carrier in the same sense that the railroads are common carriers. It does not undertake to handle all commodities from and to all points.

"It picks and chooses its traffic, conducts its operations to and from certain ports only. It affords no essential service of transportation. Its operations can cease tomorrow and no shipper would be inconvenienced, no port would be without transportation service, but would continue to enjoy transportation service far more reliable and adequate than the service that the barge line company affords."

$950,000,000 TREASURY ISSUE PLACED ON SALE

New Block of Certificates, Redeemable in One Year, to Bear Interest at 2 1-4 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Routine methods for raising nearly a billion dollars were chosen by the Treasury today in its first big financing operation since gold-buying began. The Treasury offered the money market 2¼ per cent for funds to meet immediate needs.

Books were opened for subscriptions on $950,000,000 of one-year Treasury certificates, dated Dec. 15 and paying the 2¼ per cent rate. The money will be used to retire $728,000,000 of obligations maturing on the same date—$473,328,000 of 4¼ certificates, and $254,364,000 of bills bearing ¾ of one per cent.

Another portion, $114,000,000, will go to interest payments on the public debt. The rest will be added to the Treasury's cash balance which stands now above $1,000,000,000.

Increase in Public Debt.

By exceeding December maturities by $222,000,000, the financing will push the public debt that much higher. It stands now at more than $23,500,000,000. It reached a low of about $16,000,000,000 from the war-debt peak of $26,596,000,000 in 1919.

Just what effect the gold-buying program had on the form of the refunding issue is disputed between those for and against the gold policy. The former expect no difficulty in disposing of the securities and consider the interest moderate, pointing out that more than half the maturing obligations are paying 4¼ per cent.

Others said the gold policy had created a condition in the bond market which required the Treasury to use short-term credit or pay excessive interest. They said the 4¼ maturities were so high because they were floated at the time of the bank holiday.

The December financing, when completed, will leave considerably more borrowing for the near future. There are $460,000,000 of March 15 maturities.

Called Bonds Still Out.

The financing plans announced today took no consideration of the billion dollars in called Fourth Liberty loan bonds still outstanding. A bond issue offered in exchange for these is expected soon. Of the total of six billion dollars in Fourth Liberties, $1,875,000,000 were "called" in October, meaning that interest payments of 4¼ per cent will cease on March 15.

Text of Announcement.

The Treasury announcement on the new issue said:

"The certificates will be dated Dec. 15, 1933, and will bear interest from that date at the rate of 2¼ per cent per annum, payable semi-annually. They will mature Dec. 15, 1934.

"These certificates will be exempt, both as to principal and interest, from all taxation (except estate and inheritance taxes) now or hereafter imposed by the United States, any state, or any of the possessions of the United States or by any local taxing authority.

"Applications will be received at the Federal Reserve Banks and branches and at the Treasury Department, Washington. The Treasury will accept in payment for the new Treasury certificates of indebtedness, at par, Treasury certificates of indebtedness of series TD-1933 and TD2-1933, maturing Dec. 15, 1933. Subscriptions in payment of which Treasury certificates of indebtedness of series TD-1933 and TD2-1933 are tendered, will be given preferred allotment.

"The certificates of indebtedness will be issued in bearer form only, in denominations of $500, $1000, $5000, $10,000 and $100,000, with two interest coupons attached, payable on June 15, 1934, and Dec. 15, 1934."

FOUR CHARGES DISMISSED UNDER THE BONE DRY LAW

Prosecuting Attorney's Office Sticks to Policy of Ignoring the State Statute.

In keeping with its announced policy of leniency toward violators of the State bone dry law, the Prosecuting Attorney's office today dismissed charges against four persons in the Court of Criminal Correction. Each was charged with possession of intoxicating liquor.

No further warrants will be issued in liquor cases until the Legislature passes a new liquor control law, Assistant Prosecuting Hough said today. Judge Butler in the Court of Criminal Correction has declared that he will discharge every person coming before him charged with violation of the bone dry law.

ROBERT LENTINE, WHO LOST HIS MEDICAL LICENSE, DIES

Dr. Robert Lentine, former St. Louisan, revocation of whose physician's license was sustained by the Missouri Supreme Court yesterday, died Oct. 21 at his home in New York, it was learned today.

His attorney, J. H. Caruthers, said he had been informed of his death in a telegram from a relative. Lentine, he said, left St. Louis several years ago and his case was submitted to the Supreme Court on appeal last May. His license had been revoked by the State Board of Health in 1930 after his conviction in Chicago of participating in the sale of fraudulent medical diplomas.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—McClelland Barclay, artist and illustrator, who spent several days in the Fairfield County jail, Connecticut, for failure to pay his first wife, Nan, alimony due her, has settled with her for $40,000 and a yearly income of $1250 for life.

Negro Fatally Stabs Another.

Richard Tate, 32 years old, a Negro, 1935A Trendley avenue, East St. Louis, was stabbed to death last night by another Negro, who told police Tate insulted his wife in a lunch stand at 1906 Market avenue, and then attacked him, when he resented the insult.

YOUNG WOMAN CHARGED WITH KIDNAPING 7-YEAR-OLD BOY

Arrested in Kansas City With Lad Taken From Home in East St. Louis.

A warrant charging kidnaping without ransom was issued at Belleville yesterday against Mrs. Lucille Adams, 19 years old, in connection with the abduction of 7-year-old Virgil George from his home, 413 Brady avenue, East St. Louis, last Friday.

Mrs. Adams, who failed to return to the George home after taking the boy for an automobile ride, was arrested with him in Kansas City, Mo., yesterday. The boy, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Chester George, has a severe burn on the left hand, suffered recently.

Mrs. Adams, with her husband, Richard, had been rooming at the George home for several weeks. When she and the boy disappeared, Adams said he could not understand her motive. Mrs. Adams' whereabouts were traced through an intercepted telegram, delivered at the George home and addressed to Adams. It was from Mrs. Adams and instructed him to meet her in Kansas City, Kan.

Officers left for Kansas City last night to return the woman and boy. Mrs. Adams waived extradition. The penalty for kidnaping without ransom is one to five years in the penitentiary.

CUMMINGS STATES HIS POST-REPEAL POLICY ON LIQUOR

Attorney-General to Be Lenient With Little Fellows Arrested Before Repeal but Not Yet Tried.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — "Extreme leniency" for the little fellows and unrelenting severity toward the criminally-minded will be the policy of the Department of Justice in the prosecution of prohibition law violators arrested prior to repeal of the eighteenth amendment but not yet brought to trial, Attorney-General Cummings announced today.

The Attorney-General declared that there was no doubt of the Federal Government's power to prosecute violators of the Volstead act and other prohibition laws for offenses committed before the ratification of the twenty-first amendment. He admitted, however, that the department realized that juries would be reluctant to convict first offenders and those whose records indicated that they were not on their way to habitual crime.

As to "Criminally-Minded."

Although the Volstead and the Jones Stalker acts are no longer valid, the Attorney-General said that it would be the policy of the Government to go after the "criminally-minded" by other means, notably the revenue laws. He promised that in the pending cases there would be re-indictments under the revenue laws if the department found that convictions could not be obtained from juries under the prohibition statutes.

"I have repeatedly stated," Cummings said, "that we are trying to get at essential justice. And we are going to get the racketeer and other habitual criminals in one way or another."

Cummings said that the department had divided pending cases into two classes, those in which the offenders were in jail or were awaiting trial on bond and those cases where the investigation had not been completed.

"Where the offender is in jail or out on bond," he explained, "we shall be guided by the type of the offense and the character of the offender. In what we call the racketeering group are the persistent offenders, the criminally-minded. We will go after these offenders with all the resources at our command. The same general principle will be followed where the investigations have not yet been completed. There will be no disposition to prosecute decent citizens."

About 500 Cases Pending.

The Attorney-General estimated that there were about 500 prohibition cases pending in the Federal Courts. He said that he based this estimate on the fact that a total of 2219 criminal cases were pending and that prohibition cases usually averaged about one-fuorth of the total.

He said that a survey, dated Nov. 24, had shown that 3764 prohibition law violators were now in Federal institutions, out of a total Federal prison population of 16,557.

The prison population, he said, is now 6809 less than it was a year ago because of the Government's recent policy to deal "liberally" with prohibition offenders. He added, however, that he did not share the optimistic belief held by many that repeal of the eighteenth amendment would relieve the problem of crime or reduce the prison population.

"It is encouraging," he said with an ironic smile, "to find that the prison population is almost 7000 less than a year ago. But what will it be from now on? During the year just before prohibition, there were pending in the Federal courts, 8000 cases involving alleged violations of the revenue laws alone. It is a fair guess that the coming year will see 10,000 revenue cases, many of which will arise out of liquor violations. There are also the violations that will arise from the protection given in the twenty-first amendment to 'dry' states."

Survey of Prisoners Ordered.

Cummings divulged that he had ordered a survey to determine how many prohibition law violators now serving sentences who could be released by pardon or commutation of sentence. He said that this survey had not been completed. This survey, he said, would list the "relatively innocent." He added that he did not know whether it would be practicable to release any of these offenders.

"I had expected," he said, "to be flooded with applications for pardons and commutations. So far, only the normal number has come in and these were rejected because they came from hardened criminals. The others apparently have not been alive to their opportunity."

Cummings would not comment on proposals that the prohibition enforcement division of the department should be enlarged or curtailed. He indicated, however, that the force might be cut from about 1200 to 700 or 800. He pointed out that it was the duty of the department to protect the "dry" states under the Webb-Kenyon act, adding that the decree of enforcement would depend entirely on appropriations made by Congress for this purpose.

Prohibition enforcement from now on, he concluded, would be much easier than in the past.

"We are now attempting to enforce a proper law," he declared. "There is no division of public opinion, in fact, public opinion will be behind the law enforcing agency. We are entering a happier era and one to encourage those who are trying to get the respect for law."

Filipino Women Get Ballot.

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 7.—In the presence of 60 women and several men political leaders, Governor-General Frank Murphy today signed the women's suffrage bill which he had urged the Philippine Legislature to adopt. The law, effective Jan. 1, 1935, will make Filipino women the first of their sex to get the ballot in the Far East.

WIFE LOSES COURT ACTION AGAINST RUDY VALLEE

Orchestra Leader May Go Any Place He Wishes to File Divorce Suit.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. — Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader and entertainer, may do as he pleases about going somewhere, to Mexico, for instance, and seeking a divorce from Fay Webb.

Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel yesterday denied Miss Webb's petition for an order restraining her husband from going outside of New York State to get a divorce. New York recognizes only one ground for divorce.

"The plaintiff," said Justice Wasservogel, "has failed to establish that the defendant intends to seek a divorce in another jurisdiction, in evasion of the laws of this State, in violation of her rights, or in consummation of a patent fraud."

Miss Webb said she had learned her husband was planning to seek a Mexican divorce, and she protested that her interests under a separation agreement would be jeopardized thereby. Under the separation agreement, she is to receive $100 a week for life in consideration of her promise not to earn money by appearing on the stage, in radio, in the movies or by pursuing "literary work."

Cummings Deplores Lynching.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Attorney-General Cummings told newspapermen today the recent lynchings in the country were "a very distressing thing" for which there was "no possible excuse." "They are injurious to the cause of law enforcement," he said. "They are so reprehensible, so intolerable and so inexcusable that it is difficult for me to speak about them in a parliamentary fashion."

SAYS ST. LOUIS SHOULD CONSIDER CITY GAS PLANT

Associate Counselor Forest G. Ferris, Expert on Utility Rate Cases, Gives Reasons.

Reasons why St. Louis should consider construction of a municipal gas plant were stated by Associate City Counselor Forrest G. Ferris Jr., in an address last night before the O'Fallon Park Protective Association at Holy Rosary Church, Margaretta and Clarence avenues.

Foremost among the reasons he gave were these:

The city has full legal authority, and ample borrowing power, to provide itself with an adequate plant.

The successful operation of the municipal waterworks for 98 years is proof of the soundness of public ownership in St. Louis.

Many Such Successful Ventures.

Ferris, who for several years has assisted in conducting all utility rate cases in which the city has been a party, pointed out that public ownership is nothing new; that there are 6900 publicly owned water plants in the United States; 2581 publicly owned electric plants and 109 such gas plants. Among large cities operating their own gas plants he mentioned Houston, Tex., Richmond, Va., and Omaha, Neb.

"Encouragement for municipal ownership advocates," he said, "is found in the recent policies of the Federal Government; and the utilities themselves, in many cases, are adding momentum to the movement by the continuance of long-standing practices which have been justly criticised time and again.

"The acquision and operation of a municipal gas plant for St. Louis is a matter of policy, to be decided, of course, by the proper city officials. Speaking personally, and voicing merely an individual opinion, the conclusion seems inescapable that St. Louis could furnish a more satisfactory gas servive, and at much lower rates, than could ever be hoped for from the Laclede Gas Light Co."

He added that whether the city should go into the gas business might depend largely on the urgency of other demands for public improvements.

Urges Serious Consideration.

"Regardless of these various considerations," he said, "the acquisition of a gas system should command serious thought."

He cited constitutional, statutory and charter provisions authorizing the construction and operation of public utilities by St. Louis. The Constitution of Missouri provides that cities of more than 75,000 population may issue public utility bonds secured by liens on plants or their earnings, or may pay for public utilities by general revenue bonds. Such cities are authorized to acquire plants by construction, purchase or condemnation.

Utility bonds, which are not payable out of general tax revenues, may be issued up to 20 per cent of the taxable value of property in the city. On this basis, he said, the city has power to issue utility bonds up to a total of $284,861,000. The valuation placed on the Laclede gas plant by the Public Service Commission is about $39,000,000, but city engineers have appraised it at $28,000,000.

General revenue bonds require the assent of two-thirds of the voters, but public utility bonds may be issued on the affirmative vote of four-sevenths of the voters.

Charges Don't Fit St. Louis.

"The greatest hue and cry against municipal ownership," Ferris said, "is inefficiency, waste, graft and similar bugaboo. Whatever may be said of other cities, such accusations cannot be sustained against St. Louis."

He pointed out that the city of St. Louis is the largest corporation in the State, having assets of $265,000,000 and receipts last year of more than $41,000,000, with cash on hand at the close of the fiscal year ending last April amounting to $16,007,653. The city sold $1,700,000 of its 4 per cent bonds last Nov. 1 at a premium of $8.490 for each $1000 bond, he pointed out, adding: "No utility in the city can, of course, make decent comparison with this showing."

The net cost of the waterworks today is $61,362,867, he said, but there are only $9,320,000 of bonds outstanding against it despite the fact that since 1923 the city has spent $11,897,000 for construction of the Howard Bend plant.

He mentioned a number of ways in which the city might effect economies that would result in lower gas rates. There would be no requirement for dividends on stock; for its preferred stock and its common at 6 per cent Laclede pays out $767,000 annually individends, he said.

City Could Save by Borrowing.

The city could save by being able to borrow at lower interest; there would be no holding company to extract hidden profits in the way of charges against the gas system and by selling supplied to it through intermediate corporations.

Ferris cited purchases of more than $2,000,000 worth of coal a year by the gas company from a subsidiary of the parent holding company, without competitive bidding.

Other advantages, he said, would be lower cost for administrative salaries; savings by consolidating billing and other operating functions with the Water Department, and a smaller original investment.

As indicating that the city could charge compensatory rates lower than those of Laclede, he cited the fact that Laclede's rates are about 25 per cent higher than the rates in St. Louis County, and are higher than in many smaller cities in Missouri.

"A Permanent Investment."

"Municipal ownership is a permanent investment," he said. "It is a collective endeavor for mutual benefit at the least cost. Unlike private ownership, it is not subject to the ills of speculation, for which someone always has to pay. In the case of Laclede, control was acquired and sold out within one year by Charles A. Munroe. Obviously, the successors in interest feel that they likewise must come out whole, and the consumer foots the bill if the speculators are successful, as they usually are. . . .

"In the case of St. Louis there would seem to be no legal or economic reason why the people cannot have a municipal gas plant. This may be accomplished by voluntary purchase or condemnation of existing facilities, or by construction. Utility or general revenue bonds, or a combination of both, may be issued in payment therefor. The credit of the city is amply sufficient to support such a program, which may be set in motion either by ordinance or initiative petitions."

Anheuser-Busch Horses Win.

SALES TAX BILL AWAITS RULING ON COLLECTION PLAN

RELIEF DIRECTOR AND RETAILERS ARE HEARD

Senate Attitude Considered Uncertain if Committee Vote, Expected to Be Close, Is Favorable.

BY CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 7.—Action on Gov. Park's 1 per cent sales tax bill was delayed at a meeting of the Senate Ways and Means Committee yesterday afternoon to await an opinion from Attorney-General McKittrick on a question as to the constitutionality of the act.

The constitutional question was raised by Senator Joffee of Kansas City, who requested the opinion from the legal department, and who brought the Attorney-General before the committee to state his opinion. It developed, however, that the opinion had not been prepared. McKittrick said two assistant attorneys-general had been assigned to the subject.

The question which has arisen concerns the right of the State to delegate power to the retail merchants to serve as tax collectors for the State. The bill contemplates at the sales tax should be colected from the customers, although the State collects from the merchant on the basis of 1 per cent of his gross sales. There is a specific prohibition against advertisements by merchants that they will absorb or refund the tax.

Discussing the question, the Attorney-General said that, if it should be decided the act as written was unconstitutional, it probably would be an easy matter to amend it to bring it within the constitution.

The fate of the tax bill in the Senate is in doubt, and from present indications the vote on it in the committee will be close. A nearly even division in the Senate also appears probable if the committee rerts it favorably. The bill passed e House by a vote of 98 to 30.

Wallace Crossley Heard.

At a public hearing yesterday afternoon, the committee heard Wallace Crossley, State Relief Director, who advocated passage of the bill to provide funds for unemployment relief, and members of the State Teachers' Association, who told the committee that, unless additional funds were provided for the public schools, it would be necessary to close or shorten the terms of many schools throughout the State.

Opposition to the measure was iced by G. J. Nooney of St. Louis, president, and M. R. Aaron of Kansas City, vice-president, of the Missouri Retailers' Association. H. R. Mueller, president of the Columbia Chamber of Commerce, advocated the passage of the bill, being the only retail merchant who has appeared for it.

Crossley said that, while the additional relief funds which had been allotted to Missouri recently for public work, amounting to $10,000,000, would relieve the situation somewhat, the indications were that not less than $4,000,000 would be required from the State during the next 12 months.

Other speakers in support of the bill told of the drop in school revenues and of the necessity for proing educational funds. W. H. Justice, superintendent of schools of Newburg, said that in the nine months school term of last winter there had been funds in Newburg to pay the teachers for only two and one-half months. He said the teachers were carrying unpaid salary warrants and were unable to cash them. Saying that his $2000 salary had been cut to $900, he exhibited a sheaf of his unpaid salary warrants. He said school teachers in Newburg had $7995 back salary ue them and owed $1300 in board .

The principal arguments of the opposition were that it was unfair o force the retail dealers of the State to become tax collectors at heir own expense, and that, if a ax was to be imposed, it should not e levied against one class.

"The retailers are ready and willng to do their part," Nooney said, but they believe it unfair to put he whole burden of this emerency taxation on their business."

Senator Casey, a member of the ommittee who is opposed to the ill, suggested at the hearing that he new liquor taxes would produce pproximately $4,250,000 a year. ooney said that this amount would sufficient to meet the estimated lief needs, and that the State uld expect to receive in addition pproximately $1,000,000 of revenue rough the activity of Secretary of te Brown in forcing foreign corrations to pay taxes on the full

He said the teachers were carrying unpaid salary warrants and were unable to cash them. Saying that his $2000 salary had been cut to $900, he exhibited a sheaf of his unpaid salary warrants. He said school teachers in Newburg had $7995 back salary due them and owed $1300 in board bills.

The principal arguments of the opposition were that it was unfair to force the retail dealers of the State to become tax collectors at their own expense, and that, if a tax was to be imposed, it should not be levied against one class.

"The retailers are ready and willing to do their part," Nooney said, "but they believe it unfair to put the whole burden of this emergency taxation on their business."

Senator Casey, a member of the committee who is opposed to the bill, suggested at the hearing that the new liquor taxes would produce approximately $4,250,000 a year. Nooney said that this amount would be sufficient to meet the estimated relief needs, and that the State could expect to receive in addition approximately $1,000,000 of revenue through the activity of Secretary of State Brown in forcing foreign corporations to pay taxes on the full amount of their capital in use in Missouri.

Senator Wisdom of Pike County, chairman of the committee, said he hoped for early committee action on the bill. Although the regular meetings of the committee are held only on each Wednesday, at adjournment the time of the next meeting was made subject to the call of the chairman.

The Attorney-General promised to send each member a copy of his opinion, and Wisdom indicated an intention to convene the committee as soon as the opinion was received.

ROOSEVELT REBUKES 'THOSE IN HIGH PLACES OR LOW WHO CONDONE LYNCH LAW'

In Speech to Church Council He Condemns Mob Killings as "Collective Murder" — Judicial Function "In Need of Repair."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—President Roosevelt is convinced the nation will not tolerate lynch law.

Speaking to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America last night, he made plain his belief that America seeks a government of its own "that will be sufficiently strong to protect the prisoner and at the same time to crystalize a public opinion so clear that government of all kinds will be compelled to practice a more certain justice."

The younger generation, the President added, "is not content with preachings against that vile form of collective murder—lynch law."

In a rebuke, softened only by his failure to mention names, Roosevelt condemned "those in high places or in low who condone lynch law." Gov. James Rolph of California recently gave verbal approval to the lynching of two kidnapers at San Jose.

The judicial function of government, the President reminded his listeners, is the protection of the individual and the community through quick and certain justice. That function, he added, in many places "has fallen into a sad state of disrepair."

"It must be part of our program to re-establish it," he said.

The address was broadcast over both National Chains.

The Speech in Full.

The text of the President's address follows:

I am honored by the privilege of speaking to the delegated representatives of 25 Christian denominations assembled here on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. In this quarter of a century you have surrendered no individual creed, but at the same time you have been creating a much needed union that seeks to better the social and moral conditions of all the people of America.

During a quarter of a century more greatly controlled by the spirit of conquest and greed than any similar period since the American and the French revolutions you have survived and grown. You have come through to the threshhold of a new era, in which your churches and the other churches—Gentile and Jew—recognize and stand ready to lead in a new war of peace—the war for social justice.

Christianity was born in and of an era notable for the great gulf that separated the privileged from the under-privileged of the world of 2000 years ago—an era of lines of demarcation between conquerors and conquered; between caste and caste; between warring philosophies based on the theories of logicians rather than on practical humanities. The early churches were united in a social ideal.

Although through all the centuries we know of many periods when civilization has slipped a step backward, yet I am confident that over the sum of the centuries we have gained many steps for every one we have lost.

Goal of Humanity.

Now, once more, we are embarking on another voyage into the realm of human contacts. That human agency which we call government is seeking through social and economic means the same goal which the churches are seeking through social and spiritual means.

If I were asked to state the great objective which church and state are both demanding for the sake of every man and woman and child in this country, I would say that that great objective is "a more abundant life."

The early Christians challenged the pagan ethics of Greece and of Rome; we are wholly ready to challenge the pagan ethics that are represented in many phases of our boasted modern civilization. We have called on enlightened business judgment, on understanding labor and on intelligent agriculture to provide a more equitable balance of the abundant life between all elements of the community.

We recognize the right of the individual to seek and to obtain his own fair wage, his own fair profit, in his own fair way—just so long as in the doing of it he shall not push down nor hold down his own neighbor. And at the same time, we are at one in calling for collective effort on broad lines of social planning—a collective effort which is wholly in accord with the social teachings of christianity.

New Spirit of Youth.

This new generation of ours stands ready to help us. They may not be as ready as were their fathers and mothers to accept the outward requirements or even many of the ancient observances of the several churches, yet I truly believe that these same churches can find in them a stronger support for the fundamentals of social betterment than many of the older generation are willing to concede.

This younger generation is not satisfied with the exposure of those in high places who seek to line their own nests with other people's money, to cheat their Government of its just dues or to break the spirit of the law while observing its legalistic letter. This new generation seeks action—action by collective government and by individual education, toward the ending of practices such as these.

This new generation, for example, is not content with preachings against that vile form of collective murder—lynch law — which has broken out in our midst anew. We know that it is murder, and a deliberate and definite disobedience of the commandment, "Thou shall not kill." We do not excuse those in high places or in low who condone lynch law.

But a thinking America goes further. It seeks a government of its own that will be sufficiently strong to protect the prisoner and at the same time to crystallize a public opinion so clear that government of all kinds will be compelled to practice a more certain justice. The judicial function of government is the protection of the individual and of the community through quick and certain justice. That function in many places has fallen into a state of disrepair. It must be a part of our program to re-establish it.

From the bottom of my heart I believe that this beloved country of ours is entering upon a time of great gain. That gain can well include a greater material prosperity if we take care that it is a prosperity for a hundred and twenty million human beings and not a prosperity for the top of the pyramid alone. It can be a prosperity socially controlled for the common good. It can be a prosperity built on spiritual and social values rather than on special privilege and special power.

Toward that new definition of prosperity the churches and the governments, while wholly separate in their functioning, can work hand in hand. Government can ask the churches to stress in their teaching the ideals of social justice, while at the same time Government guarantees to the churches—Gentile and Jew—the right to worship God in their own way. The churches, while they remain wholly free from even the suggestion of interference in Government, can at the same time teach their millions of followers that they have the right to demand of the Government of their own choosing, the maintenance and furtherance of "a more abundant life." State and church are righly united in a common aim. With the help of God, we are on the road toward it.

OGDEN MILLS RAKES ROOSEVELT MONETARY POLICY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. — Ogden Mills, who succeeded Andrew W. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury in the Hoover Cabinet and one of those most prominently mentioned for the next Republican nomination for President, declared last night that the Roosevelt monetary policies "involve the threat of uncontrolled inflation." He spoke at a dinner in his honor given by the Women's National Republican Club.

Mills said that in steps taken to raise the price structure "the implication is always present that when moderate measures fail, extreme ones may be attempted." He declared "it can fairly be said that the unequal rise in prices in the domestic market is no greater than would normally have been expected to accompany a gradual emergence from the extreme bottom of a major depression."

Stressing the importance of bank credit in our financial life, Mills went on:

"Any attempt to affect the price level through monetary action which creates distrust and uncertainty will be restricted and may be nullified by limiting the normal creation of commercial credit—the mainspring of which is confidence.

"Monetary manipulation engenders a lack of confidence. And the very measures intended to promote a credit expansion and a rise in prices contain at the moment of birth the seeds of their destruction."

Much of the "failure" of the administration's price-raising program, he said, rests on "fear of the ultimate value of the dollar."

Declaring that he "would at once put in motion an orderly . . . program looking to a return of the gold standard," Mills said he would remove this "fear" by "restoring the dollar to an unassailable position."

A return to the gold standard, he said, would bring into circulation "a flow of the all-important bank credits" and would "remove with finality the unquestioned threat of ultimate devastating and ruinous inflation which the present forces carry."

Ten of 25 Princeton Economists Join in Warning on Inflation.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 7.—Prof. Edwin W. Kemmerer, economist, announces that 10 members of Princeton university's Department of Economics, out of a staff of 25, have signed a declaration warning against currency inflation.

Inflation, the declaration states, would be harmful to the nation at large, adversely affecting: (1) working people whose wages would increase less rapidly than the cost of living; (2) beneficiaries of life insurance; (3) bank depositors, and (4) hospitals, colleges and other institutions whose endowment funds are invested in bonds and mortgages.

The declaration urges early return to the gold standard.

"While we recognize that the gold standard as it heretofore existed is far from being the perfect standard, it is the best standard with which the world has had any extended experience, and the only standard which offers any immediate hope of becoming an international standard," the declaration says.

The statement was prepared by Prof. Kemmerer, who is one of the signers. Others include Prof. Frank A. Fetter, Prof. Frank H. Dixon and Prof. Harley L. Lutz.

FRANK BRANGWYN MURAL IN RCA BUILDING, NEW YORK

BRANGWYN, noted English artist, was commissioned to paint one of four murals for the building in Rockefeller Center, the assigned subject being the Sermon on the Mount. Later executives of the building asked Brangwyn not to include the picture of Jesus in the mural, but to represent Him symbolically. The artist compromised by showing Jesus, addressing a crowd in the picture, but with only His back visible to spectators who look at the mural.

HERRIOT BLOCKS FRENCH NEGOTIATIONS WITH HITLER

Chamber of Deputies Committee Opposes Conversations Over the Saar Territory.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Former Premier Edouard Herriot is blocking the way to direct talks with Chancellor Hitler of Germany. Opposition to negotiations over the Saar Territory, which Germany hopes to recover in the plebiscite of 1935, was declared by the Chamber of Deputies Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday after Herriot had spoken.

AAA CODE ROW TAKEN DIRECTLY TO ROOSEVELT

Farm Administrator Peek Luncheon Guest After President Hears Wallace and Tugwell.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Principals in the dispute which has led to the transfer of various food codes from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to the National Recovery Administration, took their viewpoints directly to President Roosevelt today, but separately.

George N. Peek, the Administrator of the Farm Act who had very definite ideas about codes that conflicted with those of some younger men in the Agriculture Department, had a place at the White House luncheon table.

Before resuming with him where he left off last night, however, the President called in Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his Assistant Secretary, Rexford Guy Tugwell. What developed remained to be announced.

The dispute revolves about several major differences, one of which was described by an Agriculture Department official today as Peek's wish, against Wallace's opposition, to have the Agricultural Adjustment Act removed from departmental jurisdiction.

At the White House, it was said there was no intimation of a resignation by Peek.

Public listing of the codes to be newly put under the NRA was being arranged.

Transfer of codes hitherto in Peek's hands to the NRA was viewed today in some Government circles as a victory for the "practical" wing of opinion within the administration.

Recovery Administrator Johnson, questioned by newspaper men, said he had not known about the plan until 6 o'clock last night, when Secretary Wallace asked if he would be willing to take back the

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

For a Government Banking System.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTE that the bankers object to guaranteeing deposits because they will lose money on the failure of weak banks.

If the Federal Government will start its own banking system, there will be no need of insurance guaranteeing depositors that they will get their money back. Our Government will not then find it necessary to borrow money, as it will have the deposits of 95 per cent of our population, and the profits from Government banks will pay many of the Federal expenses.

There would be no runs on Government banks and there would be no bank failures (excepting private banks existing for deposits of their stockholders and officers). There would be no $250,000 per annum salaries and there would be no chance to sell Government bank stock short.

When our Government took over the railroads during the war, salaries of the higher officials were reduced to $12,000 and $15,000 per year. These officials were the same who operated the railroads before the U. S. Government took them over, and they determined to make Government operation such a failure and so expensive that the people would never consent to Government ownership.

When the railroads were returned to the corporations that owned them, higher salaries than ever were paid, possibly as a reward for loyalty to the corporations instead of to the Federal Government. None of these railroad officers is worth over $15,000 per year.

Typhoid and Public Works.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

REFERRING to the Legislature's delay in authorizing cities of less than 75,000 to issue revenue bonds for sewer construction:

I live in a town you can't judge by the depot. In 30 years, we have had over 57 cases of typhoid. We have three now—the high school principal's wife, a grade school child and a woman of over 60. Congressman Cannon has obtained PWA approval of our loan. I can see no other way to get any money just now.

I shall make a house-to-house and school campaign to try and get the necessary two-thirds vote. I have seen enough of the suffering, physical maiming and economic loss occasioned by this filth-born disease. We have had a total of seven deaths.

I am a one-time victim, and saw the epidemic of five years ago.

A Prediction Come True.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE undersigned predicted in this column several weeks ago that the notorious Hyde Park Club in Venice would open up soon. Saturday, Nov. 18, the Hyde Park Club threw its doors open for business. It has moved to a new location in Venice and has changed its name to the Shepherd Club. According to a talkative gambler, the change of location and name was for the purpose of getting away from some of the "heat" of the "yellow" Post-Dispatch. But it is the same old outfit—it has the same bosses, the same ex-St. Louis policeman bodyguards and the same gunmen and gangsters haunting the place.

Child Labor and Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I NOTE with extreme regret that the Post-Dispatch is supporting the proposed child labor amendment. For many years, you were outspoken in your opposition to the prohibition amendment. Now you are supporting an amendment that would give the Federal Government similar powers, and that would result in many of the same complications with which the country wrestled for 15 years under prohibition.

Comment on Lynching.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MORE frequently than otherwise do we hear lynchings condoned. And why? Is it not because the great mass of humanity sees the fiendish crime in one light only? People argue that the murderer should be punished in the manner in which he has killed his victim. They seem to lose sight of the fact that they are reaching down to the murderer's level to vindicate his deeds.

No matter how horrible a crime may appear, the fiend should be brought before the courts for trial. When he is denied that right by his fellow man, the baser instincts have clouded a higher discernment of justice.

THE UTILITY WAR.

It was impossible that the true intent of the Government through the Public Works Administration should be long concealed from the discerning alarm of the great utility industry, whose investment, real and unreal, is little less, if any, than that of the railroads.

The Wall Street Journal has let the cat out of the bag. The Public Works Administration, with its immense fund of $3,300,000,000, with its proffered aid to every city and town desiring to own and operate its own water, gas, electrical or transportation utility, is a declaration of war upon the utilities, and one made with the consent of Congress itself.

The Journal thinks this is one of the most significant things of our time, and we agree that it is. Indeed, it is one of the greatest of all peace-time revolutions. There are more than 60 such projects in Missouri alone. Enraged by the efforts of the utility lobby to deprive them of the right to a majority vote upon projects under the PWA, 41 towns have just joined in a memorial to President Roosevelt, advising him that his position in this matter is being misrepresented by the utilities.

It is, of course, war. To designate it as anything less would be sophistry. The Journal wonders if the cities and towns which are availing themselves of these offers are in good conscience about it; if they realize that what they are doing must inevitably destroy private investment which has had every right to suppose that it enjoyed the protection of the Government.

That is a fair question. It is one we are glad to answer. There is no sanction in the theory of pure government for any predatory thing. Whether this is the offense of wealth or poverty cannot matter. The people of the United States have been insensible for a long time to a condition which was loaded with political and social dynamite. They have seen the evil-doing of poverty soundly scotched, as it should be, and the evil-doing of wealth enjoying the protection of law and the sanction of society.

We are told by experts that when a volcano blows its head off, as Vesuvius, Pelee and Krakatoa have done, it is because the accumulated gases within them become so pent up that they at last explode. Society is not unlike a volcano. It is said that when Krakatoa, which is near the island of Java, blew its head off in 1883, the dust from the explosion traveled around the world. Its chief characteristic everywhere was a red sunset. The volcano had been inactive for 200 years. It may as truly be said that when France revolted in 1789, the dust from that great explosion, the flying effluvia generated by generations of autocracy, also traveled around the world. France, too, had been suppressed for centuries. It, too, produced a red sunset.

It is useless for the utilities to blame the people in the United States for what has happened. They have themselves to blame. That is not bad conscience and never can be which seeks to destroy what is itself in bad conscience. The people in the growing number of cities and towns which are using the Government's money to acquire their own utilities are quite aware that what they are doing must at least in part destroy the private utilities. This is not always true. Private utilities are successfully competing with public utilities in many places. They can do it by taking a fair return upon their honest investment. They cannot do it by practicing Insullism, by imposing holding charges upon their plants, by overloading them with securities. Had they heeded the warning of those who sought to restrain them and permitted regulation by the states, they would not now face a hostile Congress.

What has happened to the utilities bears a striking resemblance to one of the most picturesque of classic tales. Like Jason, the utilities sought the golden fleece. Like Jason, they also sowed the dragons' teeth, and reaped that army of soldiers which advances upon them in every part of the land. If the utilities can continue that parallel and destroy the army which sprang up from their own sowing; if they can put Samuel Insull back on his throne, and revive all those follies which have been their undoing, they can do more than we believe they can do.

We reap what we sow. Paul said so. It is so.

GEN. SHERMAN'S MONUMENT.

A prominent member of the American Legion in St. Louis has announced a plan to replace the modest stone which marks the grave of Gen. Sherman in Calvary Cemetery with a "suitable memorial," presumably a monument of some sort. While the suggestion will be applauded by some persons, there will be many others who will recall that what impressed them most on their visit to the great soldier's resting place was the complete lack of ostentation and public display. The graves of many famous Americans are distinguished by the same fine quality. Humble stones abound in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge, Mass., which is the burial ground of many of the nation's great, and among the most humble are those of Longfellow and Oliver Wendell Holmes. A few miles away, at Concord, the graves of Emerson and Hawthorne are similarly marked, while that of the individualist, Thoreau, is designated by a small stone with the single name, "Henry," in a family plot. William Tecumseh Sherman's monument is his famous march to the sea and his part in preserving the Union. That is the eloquent testimony of his modest stone in Calvary Cemetery.

NEW YORK HITS A HEALTH MENACE.

The poisoners for profit seem to have overreached themselves in at least one field of their nefarious traffic—that in harmful eyelash dyes. Mrs. Roosevelt's expressions of horror went over the nation when she viewed photographs of a young woman who had been blinded by using a poisonous preparation of this kind. Now the Health Board of New York City has forbidden the manufacture, sale or use of eyebrow and eyelash dyes containing harmful ingredients. Health Commissioner Wynne reports that he knows of 17 cases where eye maladies were caused by these dyes. The board's action undoubtedly has saved many women from serious eye injuries.

This action, the first by any city or state in the country, anticipates one reform sought by revision of the Food and Drug Act, which will be considered by the next session of Congress. The logical remedy, of course, lies in such Federal action, rather than in non-uniform local regulations. It is well for New York to take this step to protect its people, though the attendant publicity may work a hardship upon manufacturers of non-poisonous preparations of this sort throughout the country. It thus becomes both a duty and an act of self-interest for scrupulous manufacturers to work for the reform. The present law, passed in 1906, makes no provision for regulating cosmetics, which at that date were of minor importance. The public is coming to realize that it is entitled to full protection from exploitation by the conscienceless minority in this field.

THE YEARS OF TALK.

As they pile the sod on the eighteenth amendment, to an obbligato of cheers and tears, impartial judgment will have to acknowledge that, as a topic of conversation, prohibition shattered all the records. It practically obliterated the once familiar lull. The moment of silence stretching out, as it sometimes did, to embarrassing vacuum, fled the scene.

Let us admit that not all the talk was interesting. Let us go further. Let us blurt out the naked truth that most of it was terrible. It was dull, stodgy, repetitious. It probably inflicted more pain in the neck than any other theme or thesis since the morning and the evening were the first day. Even so, it may well have had effects farther reaching than we trow.

How many hitherto dumb ones now found their voice for the first time! How many timid, inarticulate little shy-birds discovered suddenly that they could sing! How many pallid souls, among the brothers and the sisters, that were rarely seen and never heard, tossed off their inferiority complex, barged eloquently into the discussion, asserted their opinion with a fluency and sang froid they never suspected themselves of possessing, and, having experienced at last the thrill of the party's attention, have gone on and on to heights undreamed of! Perhaps no survey of this particular sector will ever be conducted, but imagination can at least watch the procession that emerged from oblivion and achieved renown through the latent powers that were vitalized by the noble experiment.

There were individualities identified with the cause that shall not be forgotten. Most dynamic of all was the late Wayne Wheeler, strategist and tactician, whose death seemingly refuted the theory that there is no indispensable man. Certainly his leadership, sagacious in counsel, daring in action, was lost in his passing and, when the movement's melancholy days arrived, no successor was found even approximately to replace him. And here in Missouri, as time drifts on and we find ourselves reviewing the era in the perspective of history, the figure of Brother Shupp will flit across the screen. A noisy, contumacious spirit, occasionally in a mood, it would seem, to light the fagots and enjoyably watch the wretches writhe, but always a maker of news, a congenital front-pager, until, like Euripides, he disappeared among the elm-woods of Macedonia, and Athens knew him no more.

Memorabilia of the drouth! There are songs therein, and sermons, books grave and gay and pictures, and, possibly, the strange, eventful voyage will be sometime narrated in music's thrust and drive.

Now the bell has tolled. And for the moment it suffices to "list the trump of fate and hear a linnet sing."

LINDBERGH FLIES THE OCEAN AGAIN.

The Atlantic again has been conquered in a nonstop flight by Col. Lindbergh, this time by the southern route of 1875 miles instead of the 3610-mile northern course of his New York-Paris flight in 1927. There are other differences in the two exploits. Six years ago, he flew alone; this time with another skilled flyer, Mrs. Lindbergh, who thus became the first woman to fly the South Atlantic by airplane. Six years ago, he was an unknown mail pilot from St. Louis; now, when he lands at an obscure Spanish port and is unrecognized, as happened recently, it is an item of world news. His previous flight was in a land plane, without benefit of radio; this time he used a large seaplane, radio-equipped.

Both flights, however, were made with the same exacting care, the same superb airmanship. The flying Lindberghs waited as patiently at Bathurst, Africa, for favorable take-off conditions as did the flying Lindbergh at Roosevelt Field six years ago. Their entire voyage since they left New York July 9, to follow a zig-zag course over Greenland, Iceland, the countries of Europe and the isles of the sea to Africa and South America, has been distinguished by equal skill and caution.

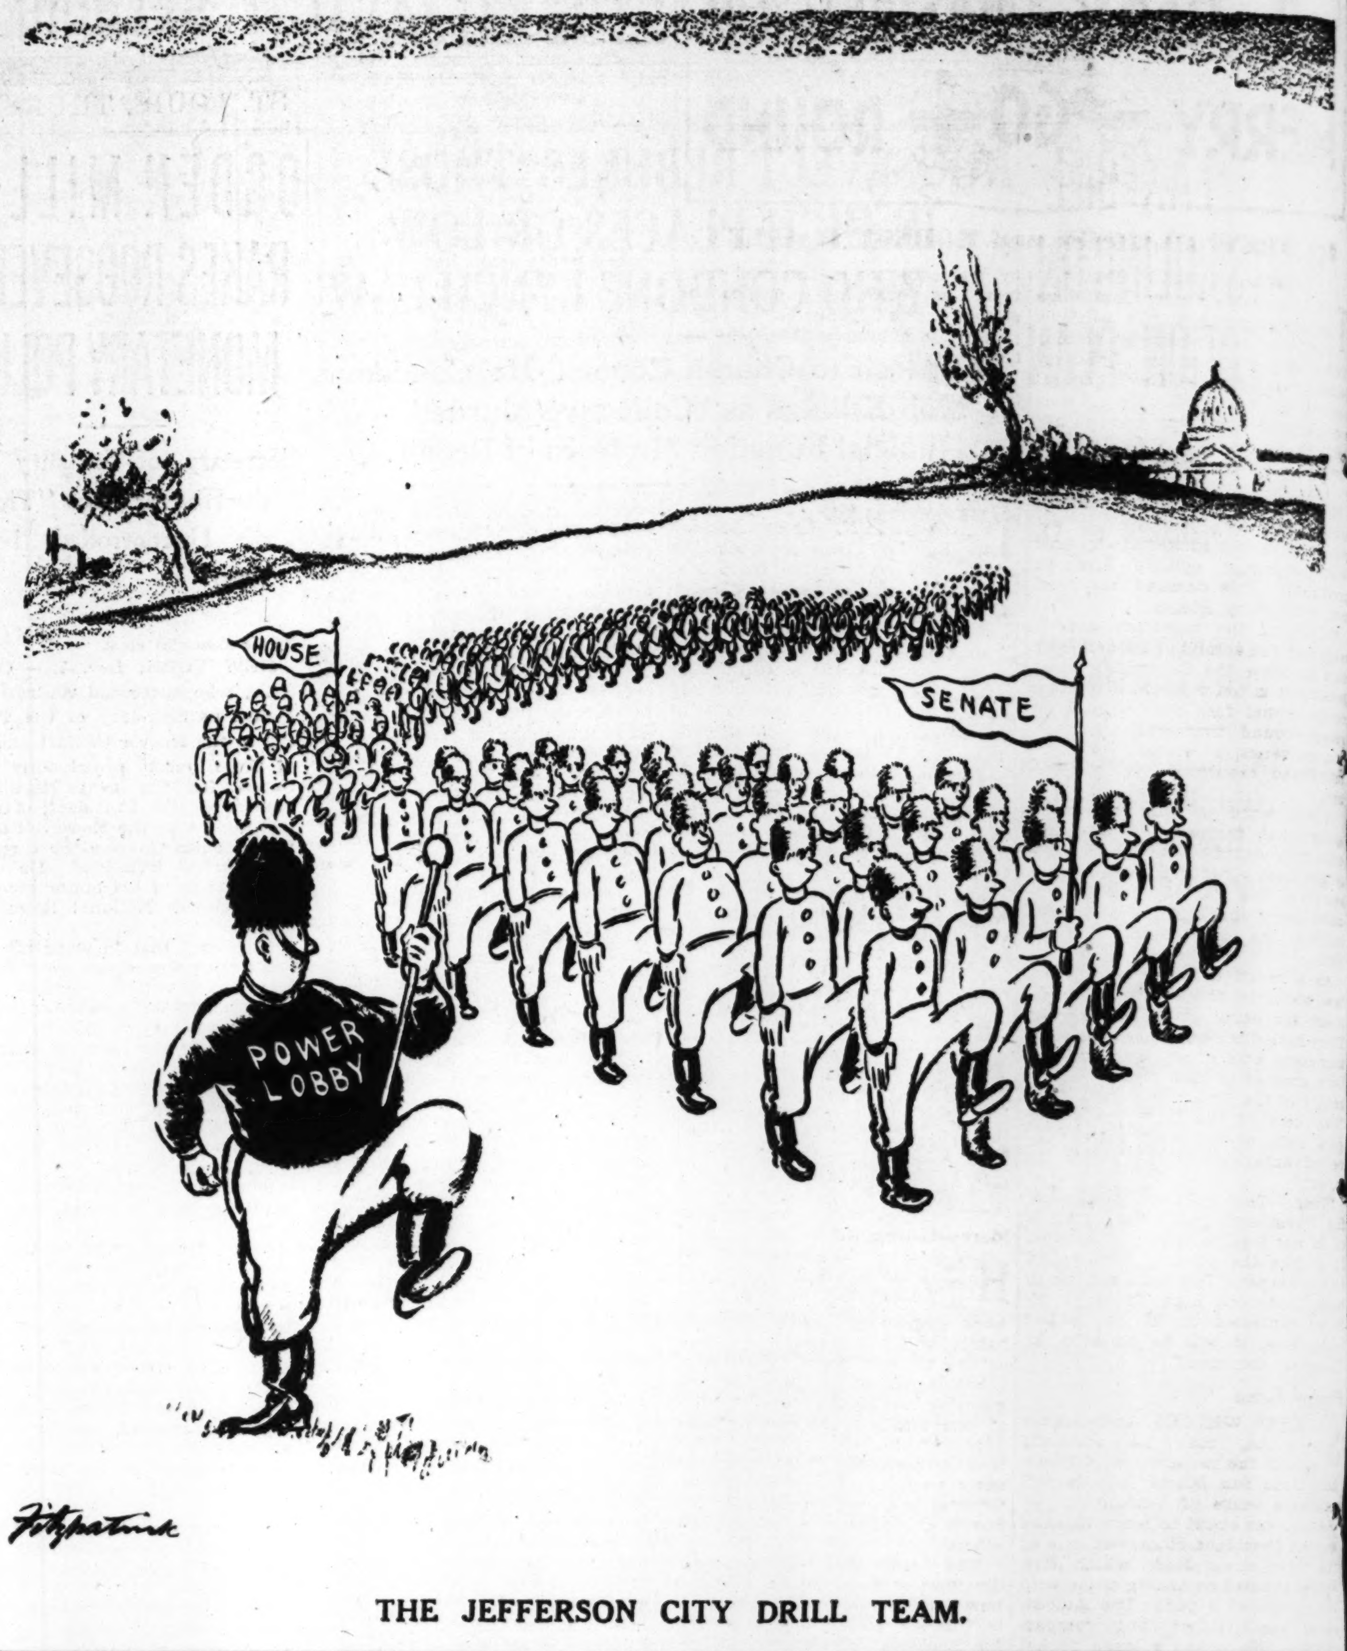
Lindbergh's flight in the Spirit of St. Louis brought him renown. His long record of later flights, climaxed by this latest feat, has not been so spectacular, but has confirmed his title to premier honors in the air.

IOWA AND CHILD LABOR.

By its Legislature's vote to ratify the child labor amendment to the Constitution, Iowa becomes the sixteenth state to approve Federal action in ending a great social evil of our times. Though a predominantly agricultural State, Iowa has disregarded the chief argument offered nowadays by opponents of the measure—that its ratification would deprive parents of their children's services in farm work and household tasks. (The former chief argument, that child labor legislation impaired freedom of contract, is no longer heard, since the public has become conscious of the need for stopping the exploitation of children by unscrupulous employers.) Iowa, it is also interesting to note, has no fear that its children will be taken from their parents and reared in concentration camps, as hysterical opponents of the amendment have recently been saying.

The names of the persons who have signed the latest appeal for ratification by the states should end whatever serious consideration may have been given the contention that the measure is an entering wedge of Communism. Among the signers are Govs. Landon of Kansas, Lehman of New York, Ely of Massachusetts, Pinchot of Pennsylvania; Senators Wagner of New York, Capper of Kansas; such pastors as the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman and Bishop Charles K. Gilbert of New York, and Rabbi Edward L. Israel of Baltimore.

In Missouri, ratification of the amendment has been voted by the House and is pending before the Senate. The example of our neighboring State should be an encouraging one to the Missouri Senate. Its favorable vote is needed if the temporary remedy of the NRA codes in abolishing child labor is to be made permanent before the codes' expiration, in about 18 months. As Senator Wagner has said: "It is absolutely essential to consolidate the gains which have been made under the Recovery Act." To hope that the states would do separately what the amendment will do is to be naive. They have had their chance, and so forfeited their sovereignty in this field to the Constitution.



THE JEFFERSON CITY DRILL TEAM.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

The Reason for Giving

THERE is one subject about which everything has been said many times. But it will have to be said many times more, not only this year, but for some years to come. He who has any money at all must tax himself in order to support the extra burden which, in every large American community, has fallen upon the private welfare agencies. This tax is necessary in order to meet a debt of honor. It is owed to our neighbors. We have incurred it for the simple and conclusive reason that they are our neighbors and are in need.

A newspaper article is hardly the place in which to expound the reasons why those who have must give to those who want. Indeed, there are no reasons which can be set forth in a lawyer's brief or in an accountant's balance sheet. The true reasons for giving are deeper than the calculations of our intelligence. For it can do little more than to explain what an instinctive chivalry of the human spirit declares is the only possible basis of human relations.

But what can be done, and nothing else really has to be done, is to report the facts, to say why money is needed now, and what for.

The specific question which has to be answered clearly is why, in view of all the money for relief which is being spent by the Government, it is necessary also to raise by voluntary subscriptions an emergency fund for the private welfare agencies. What do these agencies do that the Government does not do? Why does the Government not do it?

The best way to grasp the question is to begin with a statement of fact made by the Federal Relief Administrator, Harry L. Hopkins. No one else is so well placed as he to know what are the problems of relief throughout the country. Now Mr. Hopkins finds that people are going back to work. But he finds also that only one in 10 of those who are being re-employed has been on the relief rolls. The nine others are men and women who, though they have been unemployed, have had enough savings or help from their families and friends to survive the crisis without asking for public relief. Anyone who will let his mind and his imagination dwell upon this observation will understand the problem of relief at this stage of the depression.

Why are nine out of 10 who have returned to work persons who never received relief? Many of them, of course, are workers who earned more and saved more because they were more competent and more thrifty. But that cannot conceivably account for all of them. The real reason must be that, having had resources to meet the crisis, they have kept up their health, their spirits and their appearances.

It is no use to pretend that an American who has to take public relief is not wounded by it and that he does not carry scars from the experience which make it harder for him to qualify for normal work. Americans do not take public relief till they absolutely must, and by that time they are weakened by hunger and discomfort and worry. Their virtue, which is to resist accepting the dole, is paid for with their life's blood.

Now all the money that the Government can provide will not take care of them. All the public relief can do is to see that human beings do not starve and freeze. That is not enough. A family of unemployed which has no money cannot be maintained merely by paying the rent and the grocery bill. It needs medical advice. It may need legal aid. It needs distraction. It needs special assistance for its handicapped members.

It needs, in short, a powerful friend who can and will treat it, not as so many bodies to be kept alive, but as a human family to be kept intact. No Government agency can do that. No officials can spend the public money with the kind of discrimination which is necessary once you get above the level of mere subsistence.

There is a man, let us say, who is not dying of hunger, but is dying of despair. That is just as terrible a thing to die of. If he traveled 300 miles, he might find a job. But he cannot afford a railroad ticket, and while he is away, there would be nobody to look after his invalid wife. What can a Government office do for him? It just cannot deal with his peculiar but desperate necessities. That is where the private agencies come in. They alone have the staff which, without fuss, or humiliation to him, or red tape, can help him in the particular way he must be helped if he is to survive as a human being.

Multiply the families (in New York City alone there are about 30,000), imagine the unique character of their needs over and above subsistence, and it becomes perfectly clear why private agencies alone can deal with those unique needs. This is the essence of the matter. That is why the call to support those agencies is imperative among those who have any money to give.

Only those who have not understood the situation will fail to give. Perhaps that is not quite right. There will be some who could give, who do understand, and yet refuse. Let them feel comfortable if they can.

IF NOT NRA, THEN WHAT?

From the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

ALL right, supposing that the NRA isn't perfectly conceived. Probably it has faults, being human. It may squint at Communism or at Fascism or at neither or both. But if it will work, if it will take us out of this depression, let's lend a hand.

But if not?—then what?

Every knock on NRA for any reason just now is liable to be a dangerous knock. For after all, the NRA is the only project that is offered. It is before the house.

To overwhelm NRA now would plunge America into the disaster of despair. Such a course would stop the slow-moving machinery of recovery. It would turn America into one vast hopeless revolutionary collapse.

NRA has the support of the administration. Millions of Americans are back of it, and they are back of no other project. What's more, you can't get them back of any other project. They have their hearts set on this enterprise. It is the only boat crossing the river, and we can't swim. So let's bend to the oar and trust the captain to help the crew.

And with God be the rest.

The Monetary Battle Lines

From the Business Week.

LINES are forming, skirmishing has begun, in a battle over money that may become as exciting and as bitter as the free silver fight of the '90s. Most dramatic incident so far is the resignation of Dr. O. M. W. Sprague. His letter to the President denouncing the dollar devaluation maneuvers is scathing. Its bitter brutality seems to outdo the rudeness of Roosevelt's message to the London conference. Perhaps one begot the other?

But whether the jangling of personalities is screened behind the affair is irrelevant. It is the substance, not the tone, of the letter that matters.

Dr. Sprague concedes that the Warren plan will raise prices—which is perhaps the most surprising thing he has to say. "Doubtless, given time, a depreciated dollar or a devalued dollar will yield a higher price level."

But, he says, this result will come too slowly. In the meantime, he believes the administration policy will destroy the Government credit. That, he says, must force the issuance of additional paper money. "There is no defense from a drift into unrestrained inflation other than an aroused and organized public opinion." To help thus to arouse public opinion, he will devote his time.

Well, any man who believes we are headed for an "unrestrained inflation" with a flood of irredeemable paper money is certainly justified in sounding the alarm. Few things are more terrifying than such a prospect. All wise men of modern and ancient times have warned against the evils of a fiat currency. History is full of horrible examples of nations that have gone smash on bad money.

But history also shows that no country ever has launched upon any such program save as the direct result of war—either to finance armies in the field (as our greenbacks), or to restore life to a war-ruined land (as France and Germany). Again, there is, so far as we know, no record of any nation that has ever run wild with the printing presses while it still had enormous gold reserves. Printing-press money is the last desperate expedient of nations fighting for their lives.

Certainly the United States is in no such desperate extremity. It has ample gold reserves. No responsible person is urging the issuance of fiat money, and we are convinced the President is firmly opposed to any such course.

But it is Dr. Sprague's contention that we shall drift into a paper inflation because, so he insists, the present policy "threatens a complete breakdown of the credit of the Government." Then it would be necessary to meet Government expenditures with new money. This seems an extreme view. It is itself, we think, a more savage assault on the Government bond market than any of the administration's policies, and it had prompt repercussion upon prices.

That the credit of the Government is in present peril, we doubt. That the administration, either deliberately or through force of circumstances, will launch a flood of irredeemable paper currency upon this country seems to us wholly incredible.

What seems much more credible is the hypothesis that the President hopes, by the operation of his present gold policy, to forestall much wilder proposals from a Congress the temper of which, particularly the agrarian bloc, he knows. It would not be astonishing to see the operation completed and some measure of dollar stability achieved before Congress meets.

The DAILY WA
MERRY GO

By DREW PEARSON and R

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.

TALL, amiable Homer Cummings is on a hot spot. To settle a battle of briefs between former Under Secretary of the Treasury Acheson and Stanley Reed, general counsel of the RFC., the Attorney-General wrote an opinion upholding the legality of the President's gold-buying plan. All three documents were secret.

But the Acheson-Reed briefs leaked out, were published in the press. A clamor immediately arose that Cummings' opinion also be produced. This demand has been met with stony silence.

Critics of the monetary experiment say the administration doesn't dare to show the Cummings' brief because it is too vulnerable. Among congressional foes the whisper is going around that when the session convenes, a resolution will be introduced requiring its publication.

It was word of this threatened action that furrowed Cummings' ordinarily placid brow. He promptly got busy, ordered a thorough search of the statute books to uncover every shred of precedent upholding the gold-buying contentions.

As a result a lot of musty old law books in the Justice Department are being given an airing. They have disclosed two unrepealed monetary acts of ancient vintage. One, enacted in 1864, gives the Secretary of the Treasury authority to "buy coin of the U. S., including gold coin, at whatever price may be advantageous to the public interest."

Note:—The question of whether the President's gold-buying plan is or is not legal is largely academic. It is like the prisoner who yelled to his keeper, "You can't put me in here!" As one high Treasury official expressed it, "If it is not legal now, it will be as soon as Congress convenes."

SUMNER WELLES, Ambassador to Cuba, may be adamant against the recognition of President Grau San Martin but he still retains a sense of humor.

As he was about to leave Havana to visit President Roosevelt, one of the three stray dogs which Mrs. Welles insisted on taking home with her, produced a pup. The Ambassador was irritated but compassionate. He sewed a large pocket inside his overcoat, carried the pup back to the U. S. A. En route north

Printing-press money is the last desperate expedient of nations fighting for their lives.

Certainly the United States is in no such desperate extremity. It has ample gold reserves. No responsible person is urging the issuance of fiat money, and we are convinced the President is firmly opposed to any such course.

But it is Dr. Sprague's contention that we shall drift into a paper inflation because, so he insists, the present policy "threatens a complete breakdown of the credit of the Government." Then it would be necessary to meet Government expenditures with new money. This seems an extreme view. It is itself, we think, a more savage assault on the Government bond market than any of the administration's policies, and it had prompt repercussion upon prices.

That the credit of the Government is in present peril, we doubt. That the administration, either deliberately or through force of circumstances, will launch a flood of irredeemable paper currency upon this country seems to us wholly incredible.

What seems much more credible is the hypothesis that the President hopes, by the operation of his present gold policy, to forestall much wilder proposals from a Congress the temper of which, particularly the agrarian bloc, he knows. It would not be astonishing to see the operation completed and some measure of dollar stability achieved before Congress meets.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.

TALL, amiable Homer Cummings is on a hot spot. To settle a battle of briefs between former Under Secretary of the Treasury Acheson and Stanley Reed, general counsel of the RFC., the Attorney-General wrote an opinion upholding the legality of the President's gold-buying plan. All three documents were secret.

But the Acheson-Reed briefs leaked out, were published in the press. A clamor immediately arose that Cummings' opinion also be produced. This demand has been met with stony silence.

Critics of the monetary experiment say the administration doesn't dare to show the Cummings' brief because it is too vulnerable. Among congressional foes the whisper is going around that when the session convenes, a resolution will be introduced requiring its publication.

It was word of this threatened action that furrowed Cummings' ordinarily placid brow. He promptly got busy, ordered a thorough search of the statute books to uncover every shred of precedent upholding the gold-buying contentions.

As a result a lot of musty old law books in the Justice Department are being given an airing. They have disclosed two unrepealed monetary acts of ancient vintage. One, enacted in 1864, gives the Secretary of the Treasury authority to "buy coin of the U. S., including gold coin, at whatever price may be advantageous to the public interest."

Note:—The question of whether the President's gold-buying plan is or is not legal is largely academic. It is like the prisoner who yelled to his keeper, "You can't put me in here!" As one high Treasury official expressed it, "If it is not legal now, it will be as soon as Congress convenes."

Puppy Grau.

SUMNER WELLES, Ambassador to Cuba, may be adamant against the recognition of President Grau San Martin but he still retains a sense of humor.

As he was about to leave Havana to visit President Roosevelt, one of the three stray dogs which Mrs. Welles insisted on taking home with her, produced a pup. The Ambassador was irritated but compassionate. He sewed a large pocket inside his overcoat, carried the pup back to the U. S. A. En route north by train, he made frequent trips from his drawing room to the mother in the baggage car in order to provide nourishment for the canine offspring.

The pup now resides in luxury at the Ambassador's palatial home overlooking Mount Vernon on the bank of the Potomac. He has been named "Grau San Martin."

Employment Plan.

THE Administration has another big employment plan up its sleeve. It is in the railroad field.

Frank C. Wright, director of the Transportation Loan Division of the P. W. A., has completed a report estimating that the carriers are in need of $1,000,000,000 worth of repairs and replacements. According to his figures:

228-277 freight cars need extensive repairs, 10,735 engines require overhauling, hundreds of bridges, trestles and thousands of miles of trackage are in sore need of improvement; much roundhouse equipment is obsolete and outworn; practically all Class 1 roads need new engines.

The National Industrial Recovery Act contained a specific provision for government loans to the carriers for new equipment and repairs. So far $135,000,000 has been extended for these purposes.

The plan now under consideration is to greatly increase these loans so that the railroads can begin buying. Their wants lie entirely in the capital goods industry—one of the weakest spots in the industrial situation—and the result from such large scale orders should be stimulating.

Merry-Go-Round.

HENRY L. MENCKEN, the sage of Baltimore, who first lashed the residents of Salisbury regarding their lynching habits, will not spend his vacation on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. . . . A lot of people have been guessing as to the chief subjects of conversation between Maxim Litvinoff and Big Jim Farley when they crossed the Atlantic on the same boat. . . . The Postmaster-General is an ardent Catholic. The Soviet Commissar is an ardent atheist.

The last politically-appointed diplomat of Republican vintage has now been recalled by Roosevelt. He is Charley Hart, former reporter for Spokane, Minneapolis and Indiana newspapers. . . . Charley lasted a long time. He was appointed by Harding 14 years ago, served in various posts. . . . Last job in Persia. . . .

Billy Phillips, circumspect Acting Secretary of State, has overflowed his office into four rooms. This is more than his chief, Mr. Hull has. . . . Phillips is now running the State Department with almost no assistance. . . . Irwin Laughlin, Pittsburgh steel king, has moved back into his palatial house alongside Eugene Meyer. . . . In Madrid, where Laughlin served as Hoover's Ambassador, he will be remembered a long time. He started a Dolly Gann social war by insisting that he come in to dinner ahead of the Speaker of the Córtes. . . . Spain almost asked for his recall. . . . Genial Ray Baker of Reno, one-time director of the Mint, is sitting in his new house in Washington, while his wife, the former Delphine Dodge, takes piano lessons in Paris. Ray says she is studying eight hours a day.

Louis XIV chandeliers, plaster cupids, gilded furniture and all the trappings of the Czar will disappear from the old Russian Embassy before the Soviets move in. . . . The regal building, once the scene of Washington's gayest balls, is to be redecorated in keeping with the tastes of a government which believes in the welfare of the proletariat. . . . Chief decoration in the present unofficial Soviet embassy is a huge bust of Lenin. . . .

Word from the Midwest is that Spanish War Veterans are placarding stores with pleas to repeal the Economy Act. Just a slight indication of the veterans' drive to be made on Congress. . . . "Sec" Hull is a Spanish War Veteran. . . . Secretary Ickes is gradually opening Boulder Dam construction work to Negro workers. For a long time they were barred. . . . Some of the "rubber money" boys in the Treasury Department are suggesting that their "hard rubber" colleagues be relegated to the Island of Yap, where money takes the form of hundred pound stone discs. A pole through the middle of the disc permits it to be carried on the backs of natives. . . .

Mrs. Roosevelt has reduced the staff of White House servants from 32 to 23. She intimates she has to live within her budget.

ROOSEVELTS TRY NEW RECEPTION PROCEDURE

Complete Innovation for Formal Parties Will Be Used Tonight.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt have decided to change the procedure for formal White House receptions and will try out a new system tonight.

Change No. 1 will be the serving of sandwiches, cake and coffee in the state dining room instead of ice water as in the past.

Change No. 2 will have the guests moving through the rooms clockwise instead of counter-clockwise; that is, they will start in the East room and walk through the Green room into the Blue room, where the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will stand facing the windows, and on into the dining room.

Mrs. Roosevelt has promised to remain downstairs for the dancing in the East room after all the guests have shaken hands, whereas, in years past, the President and his party retired with Marine band accompaniment up the grand stairway before the dancing started.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt will informally greet assembled cabinet members in the private dining room and proceed with them to reception positions. The cabinet has been assigned the Red room. To the speaker of the House and foreign affairs dignitaries, the Green room has been allotted.

Church to Hold Celebration.

Eden Methodist Episcopal Church, Nineteenth and Warren streets, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the dedication of its building at next Sunday morning's service. Ben Weidle, a member of the Board of Education, will be the principal speaker. The church celebrated the eighty-fifth anniversary of its founding last March.

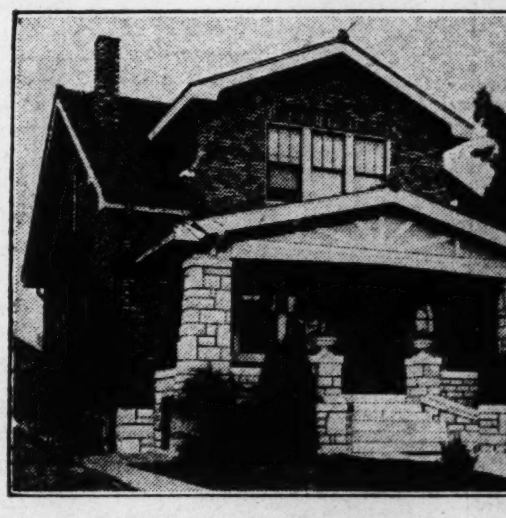
TO HEAT THIS HOME WITH GAS



Last season, from October to May, this 6-room house on Bowen Street enjoyed the comfort and convenience of gas heat. These folks had no furnace troubles, no fuel worries, no janitor problem. Their home was comfortably heated with clean, healthful heat entirely free from all soot and grime. Yet their heating cost was only $82.31. That certainly doesn't sound like an exorbitant price to pay for the convenience, the satisfaction and the peace of mind you enjoy when your heating problems are turned over to the gas company.

If you've thought some of automatic heat but haven't yet done anything about it why not get an estimate on the cost? You can do this without any expense or obligation and then you'll know what gas heat will cost in your home. Just telephone CEntral 3800, ask for the house heating department. One of our engineers will make a heating survey of your home and give you an estimate on the cost of heating your home with gas. This service is free and involves no obligation whatsoever.

Your present heating system can be changed over to gas in a few hours. You pay only $5 down and have 40 months to pay the balance.

TWO COAL MINING FIRMS CITED AS CODE VIOLATORS

Names of Missouri and Iowa Operators Given to Department of Justice for Possible Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7. — The Recovery Administration has widened the scope of its campaign for code compliance in industry, calling for the first time on both the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice as active aids in enforcement work.

To the Department of Justice it cited two bituminous coal mine operators from Missouri and Iowa for prosecution, if the evidence warrants, on charges of code violation by charging prices and paying wages below those required.

The Trade Commission, deep in investigation of reported code violations, announced it had won a promise of compliance from an ice manufacturer in San Antonio, Tex., who had been found to be engaged in forbidden trade practices. From now on its agents will be principal enforcement factors for NRA where industries are not ready to do their own police work.

Hearing on Cleaning Prices.

NRA itself demanded that alleged leaders of a movement to encourage violation of the prices established under the dry cleaning code appear at a public investigation next Monday.

In addition 33 more retail dry cleaning establishments were notified that at next Monday's hearing reports charging them with ignoring minimum prices set for their territory would be investigated. The list so summoned stands at 160.

The coal operators cited to the Justice Department were Moore Coal Co., Putnam County, Mo., and Seals Brothers Mining Co., near Centerville, Ia. Affidavits submitted to NRA charged both with selling coal across state lines at prices below those quoted for the territory involved. This was the first action of its kind taken under the coal code, and was preceded by repeated efforts on the part of code authorities to obtain compliance.

Chairman March of the Trade Commission, outlining his unit's part in enforcement, said commission investigators would try to settle complaints unadjusted by NRA or code authorities, but failing, would arrange for public hearing and commission orders to end unfair practices. Enforcement of such orders should be up to Federal prosecuting attorneys. The dry cleaning code is the first involving extended use of the Trade Commission investigators.

Four Cafes Lose Blue Eagles.

The NRA today ordered one more restaurant, the Green Front Cafe at Joplin, Mo., to surrender immediately its Blue Eagle for alleged violation of the President's re-employment agreement. Charges against the cafe were that it was exceeding both maximum hours and minimum wages prescribed for labor, and that the owner had ignored repeated efforts on the part of the Joplin Compliance Board to adjust the complaint.

The administration yesterday ordered three restaurants in Chicago and Evanston, Ill., and Grand Island, Neb., to surrender Blue Eagles for violation of wage and hour limit.

Monday's hearing will not be a tribunal session to deal out punishment. All individuals complained against will be given opportunity to protest against the prices established and if they can produce evidence that these are too high, revision may result.

NRA officials say they believed many of those complained against were not aware that the code required them to charge the established minimum and that once they did understand their obligations they would correct the situation. Any, however, who persist in charging lower prices will be turned over, either to the Federal Trade Commission or the Department of Justice for prosecution.

Grocer Cancels $3500 in Bills.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's oldtime enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" —bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

codes dealing with farm product manufacture and distribution which had been given to the farm unit months ago at the request of officials who wished to insure that the farmer obtain the maximum benefit from these industrial agreements.

Unlike NRA, which has put through a tremendous number of codes, the Farm Administration has not been able to get its batch completed, apparently due to lack of harmonious viewpoint among those at work on the problem.

This has been ascribed to policies backed particularly by Assistant Secretary Tugwell, which involved much stiffer Government supervision than has been imposed by NRA.

Johnson, while saying there had not been the great strife between the two organizations pictured in some published accounts, pointed out that it was preferable to have uniform policies in handling all industries. He said Wallace agreed with him.

Among the points insisted on by farm officials which prevented approval of codes were:

Requirements that all members of code authorities be chosen with the approval of the administrator while NRA lets industry do that by itself, naming only one to three Government representatives who have veto power over the authority's act.

While NRA requires the submission of such figures as are necessary to carry out purposes of the recovery law, the farm men wanted all books of all companies involved open at all times to Government agents.

Tugwell's attempt to have food codes carry provisions of his proposed pure food and drug law which has not yet been put before Congress. NRA has taken the view that congressional action on such point should not be anticipated.

Johnson said he was not certain how the codes would now be handled by NRA, whether new hearings on such important ones as food and grocery wholesale and retail trade would be necessary, or whether the records accumulated by the Farm Administration would cover the fair trade practices which NRA regards as most important item of code regulation. He did not believe, however, that he would have to take over any of the Farm Administration code personnel or that any new division would have to be created within NRA.

MOVIE SALARY WRIT REFUSED

Stockholder's Motion Charged Officers' Pay Was Excessive.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel today denied a motion to restrain the officers of Universal Pictures Co. from receiving what were termed too large salaries.

The motion was made by Benjamin Graham, a stockholder, and was against Carl Laemmle and Carl Laemmle Jr., and other directors of the film company. "On the papers submitted," the Court said, "the Court would not be justified in substituting its own judgment for that of the directors of the corporation defendant with respect to the salaries here involved." The amount of the salaries was not disclosed.

PHONE CO. FIGHTS STATE SUIT

Demurrer to Action to Bar Its Conduits From Highway.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 7.—The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. filed a demurrer with the Missouri Supreme Court yesterday contesting an ouster suit brought by Attorney-General McKittrick, who is seeking to deny the company the right to the use of U. S. Highway No. 40 for its St. Louis-Kansas City underground conduit.

The telephone company contends that its use of the highways of Missouri is authorized by the laws of Missouri and that this use has been accepted by the public and recognized by those in charge of administration of its laws for over 50 years. McKittrick filed the ouster suit several weeks ago.

RABBI SHANKERMAN KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Knocked Down by Owen Aubuchon's Car at Clara and Easton.

Rabbi Jacob Shankerman, 1414 Shawmut place, was killed last evening when knocked to the pavement by an automobile at Clara and Easton avenues.

Owen Aubuchon, 5988 Minerva avenue, the driver, told police he was driving south in Clara avenue at 5:20 o'clock, made a boulevard stop at Easton avenue and turned west. As he made the turn he felt a jolt, and looking to his left, saw the Rabbi lying in the street. He expressed the opinion that Shankerman, hurrying across the street, ran against the side of the automobile. Shankerman was taken to City Hospital, where he died of a fractured skull two hours later.

Rabbi Shankerman, 60 years old, was born in Russia. For 20 years he taught Hebrew in St. Louis, for the last five years at Zihin David Congregation, 1526 Belt avenue. Surviving are his widow, Rose, two sons and a daughter.

Funeral services were held this afternoon from the residence. Interment was in Chesed Shel Emeth Cemetery.

New Beauty, Health and Energy, the Welch Way

Excess fat comes from eating foods too rich in fat-producing elements. But in order to reduce healthfully and at the same time maintain your energy, it is not enough to substitute low-calory foods. Scientists have now discovered that you must also supply the body with a certain amount of easily-burnable sugar—so that the body can burn up its fat.

That's why Welch's Grape Juice—always Certified-Pure and Pasteurized—belongs on every reducing diet. Welch's satisfies that craving for sweets and rich, fattening foods... actually helps you lose weight! In the Welch process all the sugar in the juice is predigested, hence quickly and easily burned; it actually helps to burn up fat! As you follow the Welch Way, week after week, it not only gives you slender lines, it restores a lovely natural color to your cheeks. You feel "made over"...full of new vitality.

Welch's on Every Reducing Diet

Start right in today. Along with your reducing diet, drink a glass of Welch's with or between meals, and before retiring. Meanwhile, write for free booklet, "Keeping Your Weight Down."

Welch's is not a diluted beverage. The exclusive Welch process retains in the bottled juice the healthful properties of ripe grapes so essential to the system. Only Welch's Processed is Certified-Pure and Pasteurized. It is aged three months to permit the excess tartaric acid to settle out of the juice. It contains no adulterants, no synthetic flavors, no artificial coloring, no preservatives, no added water. And it sells today at the lowest price in 35 years.

FREE Send your name and address to the Welch Grape Juice Co. Dept. 2047. Westfield, N. Y., for free Booklet, "Keeping Your Weight Down." Also an Autographed Photo, 7x10, of Irene Rich, with a letter from her telling you how at 42 she keeps her weight the same as at 16. All sent prepaid.

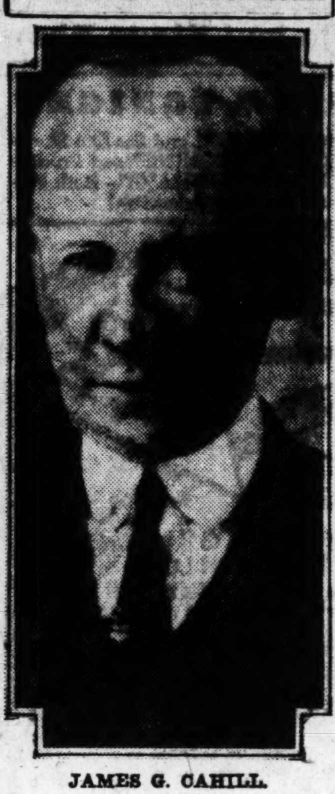
SECURITIES DEALER VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA



JAMES G. CAHILL.

JAMES G. CAHILL DIES; INVESTMENT BROKER

Succumbs to Pneumonia at 74; Helped Found St. Louis Stock Exchange.

James G. Cahill, investment securities broker and one of the organizers of the St. Louis Stock Exchange, died of pneumonia last night at his home, 4475 Lindell boulevard. He was 74 years old.

Since he suffered a paralytic stroke last Jan. 8, he had been confined to his home most of the time. A second stroke followed March 18 and pneumonia developed last Sunday.

The son of Daniel Cahill, contractor, who died in 1899, Mr. Cahill entered an investment broker's office as a young man, later becoming connected with Louis A. Coquard, broker, as general manager. For the past 36 years he had been in business by himself with offices in the Mississippi Valley Trust Building.

More than 30 years ago he was one of 50 men who organized the St. Louis Stock Exchange. Until illness confined him, he was president of the Cahill Realty Co., which managed the family's properties.

A daughter, Miss Lenore J. Cahill, attracted attention in August, 1924, when she was chosen as a dancing partner by the Prince of Wales as he was coming to the United States on the S. S. Berengaria. She was returning from a European trip.

Also surviving are his widow, Mrs. Lillie Cornet Cahill; another daughter, Mrs. Marie C. Sullivan, 4540 Lindell boulevard; a son, Edgar D. Cahill; a brother, Daniel W. Cahill, 5976 Cote Brilliante avenue, and a sister, Mrs. William P. Burke of New Orleans.

The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Saturday morning at the New Cathedral. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

ADOLPH KLAUBER, HUSBAND OF ACTRESS JANE COWL, DIES

Former Dramatic Critic and Theatrical Producer Had Been Ill Several Years.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 7.—Adolph Klauber, 64 years old, former dramatic critic, theatrical producer and husband of Jane Cowl, actress, died in a hospital today. He had been ill for several years.

He was dramatic critic of the New York Times from 1904 until 1914 when he was succeeded by Alexander Woollcott. Before that, he had been Sunday editor of the old Tribune.

After he left the Times, he became a theatrical producer with the Selwyn brothers, and later, a casting director in the New York offices of the Goldwyn motion picture company. He retired from active production work several years ago, suffering a collapse and had been in Louisville since.

He married Jane Cowl in 1902 and is given much credit for her success as an actress.

MURDER CHARGE FILED IN ST. JOSEPH LYNCHING

Former Policeman Named by Witnesses as One of Leaders of Mob.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 7.—John Zook, a former policeman, has been charged with first degree murder in connection with the lynching of Lloyd Warner, 19 years old, Negro, here last week. Two other men are in custody on lesser charges, one having pleaded guilty, and investigators continue a roundup of men alleged to have directed the mob's action.

Zook denies he took part in the lynching, but officers said he had been identified by witnesses as a leader. He is alleged to have thrown gasoline on the Negro's body before it was burned, after the hanging.

Since leaving the St. Joseph Police Department several years ago, Zook has worked for a packing plant.

Zook pleaded not guilty today. Judge J. V. Gaddy ordered him held without bond. Zook told the Court he would ask for permission to appear before the grand jury next week.

W. O. Sawyers, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of the investigation, said today a policeman who was in the crowd at the county jail the night of the lynching had identified a man who bought the gasoline used. The policeman said the gasoline was obtained from a filling station across the street from the jail.

Sawyers also said he had found the owner of the truck used by the mob and that the chain used in pulling down the jail door was identified as stolen from a garage eight blocks from the scene of the lynching.

Judge Gaddy today said 125 names would be drawn from the grand jury list, instead of the customary 40 for the forthcoming invesigation. This will permit wider choice in the selection of the 12 to sit as the grand jury. The jury is called for next Monday.

EXPECTS CLOSED BANKS TO PAY 'CONSIDERABLE SUM' BY JAN. 1

Marion C. Early, chairman of the Frozen Deposits Committee of the St. Louis NRA Committee, said he believes "a considerable sum" will be available to depositors in closed St. Louis and St. Louis County banks by Jan. 1, following a meeting of his committee yesterday at City Hall.

The meeting was attended by liquidators of about 20 closed banks and was an executive session. Early said "nearly all" liquidators had made applications to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for loans on bank assets for the benefit of depositors. He declined to name the banks which had applied or to estimate the probable amount which might be distributed.

Twenty-five banks, with deposits of $44,000,000, are closed in St. Louis and the county.

There Was No Price She Wouldn't Pay FOR LOVE

True Story Editor writes:

"The Duncan story will, to a large degree, represent 'escape' literature to our readers. Isadora Duncan was a woman who daringly lived a life which was a complete escape from the accepted codes as well as a challenge to them. I am sure it will fascinate our millions of woman readers to see how her revolt turned out. It had a tragic ending, and therefore will sum up big in affirming those social codes by which most women desire or are obliged by circumstance to live. But no matter how our readers may criticize and disapprove of Isadora Duncan's actual deeds, there is one characteristic of her life that will win their deepest admiration; that is, her tremendous belief in and devotion to—love."

BERNARR MACFADDEN

THEY called her "the holy Isadora." They called her the scarlet woman of our century. They placed the laurel wreath upon her brow in Athens. The mob waited outside her theatre to stone her in Buenos Aires. She was hailed with acclaim in staid old London by an adoring throng; she was driven out of staid old Boston by an indignant populace.

Perhaps no other woman ever ran such a gamut of experiences as this penniless little girl from San Francisco who became the greatest dancer the world has ever known, who was adored by some of the world's greatest men, and who had a different father for every child.

No writer could possibly conceive such a thrilling story in fiction as this true story of Isadora Duncan's life.

ISADORA'S LOVES AND MOTHERHOOD

IN PARIS, in that dawning year, she became fascinated by statues of the world's greatest living artist, the mighty sculptor, Rodin, before whom all Paris bowed. And finally she found her way to the great Rodin himself.

"I am Isadora Duncan," she said.

"He turned upon her strange eyes. Something spoke between them . . . In her studio she slipped into her famous white tunic and stood before him, her lovely arms and exquisite legs . . . She began to dance. His eyes were burning as he stared at her. Suddenly, the man moved forward, head lowered, eyes blazing. His powerful hands, in which lay his art, touched her, caressed her.

"She was face to face with her greatest lover . . . "

Thus does this almost unbelievable true story start upon the most amazing series of episodes that have ever found their way into print.

We next find her in Vienna with her Romeo, her perfect lover. Then back with a rush to her own famous art, and people are unhitching the horses from her carriage and drawing it through the streets with their own hands.

Then with almost a kaleidoscopic turn, we find her with Gordon Craig, famous son of the famous Ellen Terry. And Isadora and Gordon have decided upon their first child. It was to be a girl. And it was.

Then back to her art. Then another turn and she is with her millionaire lover—another child is born. Such luxury as is only found in story books follows fast, and these three—two children and the mother—have yachts and motors and castles at their command, with all the famous people of the world at their doors.

Then without warning, tragedy swoops down, tragedy in the most terrible form that any mother can know. And this strange woman finds herself again alone, utterly alone, friendless, penniless, almost insane, wandering at night on the seashore, trying to find courage to end her life, till she falls unconscious at the water's edge, with the waves lapping at her feet.

Out of the darkness a young sculptor stumbles upon her and raises her up.

"I am just in time to save your life," he says.

"You can do more than that," she answers, as she opens her eyes. "You can save my reason."

"How can I do that?" he asks. And this amazing creature, looking up at him long and steadily, answers:

PENSION ASSOCIATION SOLICITING FUNDS

About $75,000 Given to Society Which Seeks Congressional Action for Aged.

The solicitation of memberships at 10 cents each by the Old Age Pension Association, with headquarters in Washington, has been called to the attention of Missouri members of Congress by St. Louisans who have received its literature.

J. E. Pope, "permanent president and executive chairman" of the association, has informed a member of the Missouri delegation that it has acquired 750,000 members, which would indicate receipt of $75,000 in membership fees.

The association, Pope said, plans to agitate at the coming session of Congress for Federal old age pensions. Literature of the association describes it as a non-profit organization which pays no salaries to its officers.

Each member, when enrolled, is sent five application blanks and urged to obtain new members. Membership fees, according to the literature of the association, are to be used to create a fund from which is paid "office and operating expenses, such as rent, postage, printing, advertising, mailing, travel and moderate living expenses while in Washington or away from home, and to carry out a gigantic publicity campaign." The travel and living expenses presumably are those of the "permanent president."

Aside from its purpose to obtain pensions for the aged, a circular of the association states it intends to "look after the interests and protection" of members until pension payments begin, but in what manner that is to be done is not specified.

NAZI CHEERS AT STEUBEN SOCIETY MEETING IN NEW YORK

Eleven Men and Four Women Removed From Madison Square Garden.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Nazi cheers were heard last night as 20,000 gathered for the long-delayed German day celebration of the Steuben Society of America at Madison Square Garden.

Fifteen persons—11 men and four women—were hustled from the hall by police when they attempted to demonstrate. All were released after the meeting. The crowd cheered good-naturedly as the officers quickly pounced on disturbers, and there was a minimum of trouble.

LEGGE WILLS $500,000 FOR FARM FOUNDATION

Late Head of International Harvester Has Already Given $400,000 to Project.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The late Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester Co. and first chairman of the Federal Farm Board, provided in his will for an agricultural foundation, it was announced yesterday.

Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden made the announcement after the funeral of Mr. Legge and said that his will, to be filed soon in Du Page County, would include a $500,000 bequest to the foundation in addition to previous donations amounting to $400,000.

Research and experimental work in problems of production, marketing and purchasing with the idea of effecting a co-ordination of agriculture with the industrial, financial and mercantile life of the country, was listed as one of the objectives of the foundation.

Other objectives were listed as: Encouragement and development of co-operative effort and community organization; encouragement, financial or otherwise, to universities or to other groups undertaking research; acquainting farmers with information developed from surveys and study; encouraging the intellectual and cultural interests and opportunities of rural life through community action.

Lowden said the foundation was free of political alliance and was formed as a free agent devoted to trying out and testing ideas for the improvement of agricultural conditions.

Lowden said the governing body, which he heads, was a board of 21 trustees and included such national figures as Bernard M. Baruch of New York; Charles C. Teague of Santa Paula, Cal.; Owen D. Young of New York; Malvin A. Traylor of Chicago; Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey of New York; Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington Lines, and Robert E. Wood of Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Of the trustees seven were selected at large, five to represent farmers, a finance member, a manufacturing member, merchant member, a transportation member, a farm press member, a radio member and three university members.

DR. BUTLER HONORED IN TOAST

Hailed as One Man Most Responsible for Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, was toasted in champagne last night as the one man most responsible for the repeal of prohibition. He expressed satisfaction. "Those of us who have dealt with this fight," he said, "have saved the Government from complete revolution. For continuance of the 18th amendment in the Constitution would have meant within another generation the end of American Government as we know it." He spoke at a dinner given in his honor by the Association for Foreign Press Correspondents.

APPROVES PEASANT GIRL'S CLAIM TO $1,000,000 ESTATE

Widow of Samuel Slater Loses Fight in American Court, as She Had in French Tribunal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 7.—A long fight over the $1,000,000 estate of the late Samuel Slater of a wealthy textile mill family ended yesterday, when Judge Frederick M. Chamberlain, in Probate Court, allowed Marie Louise Durand, French peasant girl, full claim to the estate.

Slater, who died in Paris two years ago, left his entire estate to Mlle. Durand for rescuing him in 1912 from the hands of extortionists, according to a document read in court by her attorneys. Since his death, Mrs. Alice S. Slater, his widow, has fought to set aside the will. When she lost her fight in the French courts she took it to American courts. Mrs. Slater is now a resident of Derby, England.

SHIPPING FIRMS PLAYED POLITICS FOR MAIL AWARDS

H. B. Arledge of Lykes Bros. Tells of Campaigning for Promotion of U. S. Officials.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A story of how a representative of several big shipping companies campaigned for the promotion of officials dealing with mail contracts in the Postoffice Department and Shipping Board was related yesterday to a Senate investigating committee.

H. B. Arledge, a Washington representative of the Lykes brothers and various other interests, including the Waterman, South Atlantic, Seatrain, Dixie and other companies, also testified to preparing at least one memorandum which was identical to a recommendation signed by former Postmaster-General Brown.

On questioning by Chairman Black (Dem.), Alabama during consideration of the Tampa Interocean Steamship Co., a Lykes concern, Arledge said he asked Senators and Representatives to support E. R. White, in charge of foreign mail, for Second Assistant Postmaster-General, who has supervision of mail contracts.

He told the committee he also obtained indorsements for Commissioners E. C. Plummer, now dead, and R. K. Smith of the Shipping Board, and waged a campaign among Congressmen and shipping officials for promotion of J. Caldwell Jenkins in 1930 from vice-president to president of the Merchant Fleet Corporation.

"Best Qualified," He Says.

He said in each instance his interest was prompted by belief they were best qualified for the places, but agreed that he opposed another possible candidate for the postoffice place because of fear that he would be unfriendly to foreign mail contracts.

Correspondence to show the Lykes interests worked for Jenkins' promotion were read into the record by Black, who had developed that Jenkins favored lump-sum contracts for operating Shipping Board vessels and that they were under his jurisdiction.

C. H. McDaniel, assistant comptroller of the Shipping Board, lent to the committee, testified that this form of agreement resulted in a loss to the Government of $15,324 a voyage on the average, compared to only $14,097 under the 1924 operations agreement of payment on a tonnage basis.

J. M. Lykes, president of the Lykes' companies, said he did not deny trying to get Jenkins promoted but, with his brother, J. T., and R. E. Tipton, did not recall the circumstances.

Many Dealings With White.

Arledge said he had a great many dealings with White. Asked if it was customary for him to prepare reports for White in connection with shipping matters, Arledge said it was not, although he had suggested memoranda for the Postmaster-General.

The one on which he identified photostats of his memorandum and Brown's recommendation to Chairman T. V. O'Connor of the shipping board concerned willingness to eliminate a section of the proposed contract for the Lykes Brothers' Ripley Steamship Corporation so as to provide for acceptance of the sales contract in lieu of bond.

Black asked whether White, while attending the international postal conference in Spain in 1931, with Assistant Postmaster-General W. Irving Glover, "performed any services there for Lykes brothers," or if Arledge arranged with Lykes companies abroad to entertain them.

Arledge said White did not, that he knew of, and that he only suggested to Lykes that they be shown the same courtesies accorded other Government officials.

The chairman also questioned Arledge on whether he talked to anyone attending a White House conference March 20, 1933, right after new shipping board members had been sworn in. Black quoted from a letter written by Arledge that he had been told by a person at the conference the question of transportation reorganization was coming up. Arledge said possibly he talked to "Judge Davis of Tennessee."

Farley Signs Letters.

Arledge also testified he had suggested on several occasions that all mail contracts be reviewed with a view to the economy program announced last spring by the new administration. Black read a letter of Arledge's quoting White as saying he had prepared several letters strongly supporting ocean mail subsidies which Postmaster-General Farley signed without question. Arledge told the committee there had been queries received about whether the mail contracts were subsidies.

The committee also sought to learn from Arledge and the Lykes officials whether A. Lane Cricher, former head of the transportation division of the Commerce Department and Secretary of the Interdepartmental Subcommittee on mail contracts, tried to obtain employment with the Lykes companies or other shipping interests while on leave from the Government. Black pointed out Cricher had given a dissenting opinion on a mail contract for the Lykes Mississippi Shipping Co., but that by 1932 was "in harmony" with the Lykes' position on contracts.

Arledge said Cricher told him he had received a 15 per cent pay cut and wanted some overtime job during enforced furloughs from the department. Black also brought out correspondence to the effect that the aid of Arledge and Lykes interests was sought to help Cricher keep his post with the new administration.

CIVIL WAR SOLDIER

WILLIAM ARMISTEAD WALL.

W. A. WALL, VETERAN OF CONFEDERACY, DIES

Former State Commander Was 87—Was One of Mosby's Raiders.

William Armistead Wall, a courier of the Confederacy, died last night at Masonic Home Hospital of heart disease following a paralytic stroke suffered six months ago.

A former State Commander of United Confederate Veterans and head of St. Louis Camp 731, United Confederate Veterans, Mr. Wall was 87 years old and remembered vividly war-time days when he served in Stuart's cavalry.

Joining the cavalry when he was 16, he rose to the command of his company "The Little Fork Rangers," became one of Mosby's raiders, surrendered two months after Lee laid down his arms at Appomattox.

He recalled participating in a midnight raid at Fairfax Courthouse, Va., when 17 of Mosby's men captured Brigadier-General Stoughton as he lay abed. And he told of bearing messages from Lee to Longstreet and other of his Generals along Seminary Ridge, when the fate of the Confederacy was determined. Three horses were shot from under him on the field at Gettysburg.

"But the most exciting day of the war to me and the saddest day of my life," Wall observed to a Post-Dispatch reporter on Decoration day two years ago, "was a day when I rode up to a squad of Union cavalrymen and surrendered. Sometimes it seems like yesterday."

A Virginia farm boy, Wall came to Missouri after the war and farmed near Clark, Mo., remaining there until entering the Masonic Home several years ago. He is survived by two sons, William D. and Ernest W. Wall, both of Clark.

Funeral services will be conducted there.

Lawyer Indicted on Arson Charge.
By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Henry A. Beckerman, 51-year-old Cleveland attorney, held here for Cleveland authorities, ascribed his arrest today to a "revengeful attitude." He declared he did not know why he had been arrested. Dispatches from Cleveland said Beckerman had been indicted, charged with arson in connection with attempts to burn an office building.

MUNICIPAL BASKETBALL LEAGUE ON VERGE OF COLLAPSE

ONLY 3 ENTRIES RECORDED THUS FAR; LAST YEAR 29 FIVES PLAYED

Municipal basketball is tottering and may collapse this year after eight seasons of play, according to an announcement made this morning by Al Fleishman, director of recreation. The official announcement as to the pastime's future, from a municipal standpoint, will be made tomorrow night when the three teams that already have signified their intention of competing, meet to make their report at Sherman Park.

Private and A. A. U. promotion of basketball has been the ruination of Municipal League, in the opinion of Fleishman. The Sisler League, which operates nightly at the Coliseum, cut down the number of prospects for the municipal association and the newly formed St. Louis A. A. U. League, caused the number to dwindle by seven.

As it stands now, the three organizations which are interested in forming a municipal league are the Shells, the Golubs and the North St. Louis Turners. The first two clubs have teams in the St. Louis A. A. U. League, so the presumption is that the teams will be listed as Shell No. 1 and Golub No. 1 in the Municipal Association.

Twenty-nine Teams Entered in 1932.

Last year there were nine teams entered in the Municipal League and 20 in the Y. M. H. A. League, which was affiliated with the Municipal Association. In order to be affiliated, it was necessary that the teams pay a considerable entry fee, so the affiliated leagues withdrew this year in order to cut down expenses.

The matter of expenses is one which worried some of the teams which contemplated entering in municipal competition, since it cost a club $45 to enter. The fee in the Sisler League is $15 and in the St. Louis A. A. U. League, $25.

According to Roy D. Newsom, president of the A. A. U. circuit, the entry fee will be returned at the end of the season and is designed only to prevent forfeitures, for if a team drops out of the league it loses its $25.

Muny A. A. Loses on Basketball.

Although $45 seems an exorbitant entry fee, Fleishman cited figures to show that the Municipal Athletic Association operated under a deficit during the basketball season of 1932-33. The sum of $520 was taken in by entry fees and $214.75 through admissions, making a grand total of $734.75.

It cost the association $905.20 to operate. This takes into consideration the furnishing of basketballs, timers, referees, donation of medals and trophies and the sending of the St. Louis champion to participate in the National A. A. U. tournament at Kansas City. The deficit was $170.45, which was compensated for out of the funds derived from soccer and baseball.

Fleishman's attitude on the matter is that while it would be unfortunate if municipal basketball should die in St. Louis, there is nothing the recreation department can do about it, since the department is not in the business of sport promoting and only is interested in filling the need of those groups which want to play basketball under the supervision of the department.

It is understood that if the plans of the recreation department fall through and that there is no municipal basketball league, a tournament will be held next spring among the A. A. U. organizations which now exist to determine the team that will represent St. Louis in the National A. A. U. event.

It was the first defeat Greenleaf has suffered in three years.

Kelly recently won the U. S. championship tournament from which Greenleaf and others were exempt.

The present tourney at Chicago is for world's honors.

Suburban Group in County Basketball League Opens Season Tomorrow With One Title Game

The Suburban Division of the St. Louis County Basketball League will open its championship season tomorrow night, with Clayton playing at Ritenour in the opening league game. In a non-league game the same night, Maplewood entertains East St. Louis, while on Saturday night, Soldan goes to Webster Groves, and Clayton to Principia.

The County Division continues its schedule with four league games scheduled for tomorrow, Jennings playing at Bayless, Ferguson at Fairview, Eureka at Riverview Gardens, and Brentwood at Hancock. County Division schools opened league play last week, Ferguson, Brentwood, Fairview and Jennings winning from Hancock, Riverview Gardens, Bayless and Eureka, respectively.

There are two new coaches in the Suburban League this year. C. P. Harris, Cape Girardeau Teachers' College, is coaching at Webster High this year, and Lawrence Reid, Monmouth College, is at Normandy. Both coaches have good records at other high schools, but are faced with a dearth of veteran material this year.

Harris coached at Training High School, Cape Girardeau, for the past three years, his teams winning 54 games and losing 17. Last year Training High lost only four out of 25 games played, all four losses being decided by a one-point margin, and three of them being overtime games.

Reid coached at Coulterville (Ill.) High School for the last five years. Coulterville has an enrollment of about 90 students, but, despite the lack of material, Coulterville played the larger schools in Southern Illinois and last season won 16 of 21 games played.

Maplewood, defending champion in the Suburban League, has a wealth of material this year out of which to build another championship machine. Seven lettermen return, including Bernart Anstett, who was selected as an all-district forward last year. In addition to this group, Coach Wahlbrink has a group of eight sophomores who have been crowding the veterans for regular positions.

Clayton and University City also have many lettermen returning and are expected to give Maplewood its hardest games during the season.

In the County division, Ferguson and Brentwood are the standouts and the title in that division is expected to lie between those two schools.

Coach Armin A. Wahlbrink of Maplewood is inviting all junior high schools in the district to enter his second annual junior high school basketball tournament to be held Jan. 8, 9, 10, 11 and 13 at the Maplewood Senior High School gymnasium. Only 16 schools will be allowed to enter, because of the State rule on the number of teams in a tournament. Students in the seventh, eighth and first half of the ninth grades are eligible for the tournament. University City won out over Maplewood last year.

OHIO STATE PUBLICATION ASKS FOR DISMISSAL OF COACH WILLAMAN

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7.—Declaring the "usefulness" of Sam Willaman as head football coach at Ohio State University "is at an end," the Ohio State Lantern, campus daily, in an editorial yesterday asked for his dismissal.

"Sam Willaman, we contend," the editorial said, "has proved himself lacking the first requisite of a coach; he cannot handle players. The season has been marked by dissension on the team, resignations from the squad, petty jealousies between players and by a general want of respect for the coach.

"A big league coach would have a knowledge of fundamental football. We believe Sam Willaman has it. However, we maintain he lacks a certain type of leadership and diplomacy that are necessary, and peculiar to the position he holds.

"We thought that Willaman would realize before this that he should resign—which would have been the best solution to a difficult problem. Since he hasn't taken that step, there is the other alternative—dismissal."

Willaman said he had no comment to make on the editorial.

McLarnin Plans Tour of Europe

By the Associated Press.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 7.

JIMMY McLARNIN, welterweight titleholder, has announced plans for a European tour, with a "little fight or two," next year.

Jack Hood, leading English welterweight, and Marcel Thil middleweight of France, may offer the opposition, he said.

"I have wanted to go to Europe," he explained, "and now I am going to do it. As to whether my title will be at stake or not depends upon whom I fight.

"Hood is a welter and a bout with him probably would be a title affair, but Thil is much heavier, and it would be an overweight battle unless he risked his title."

McLarnin expects to leave for Europe in January.

RAY STEELE AND JIM M'MILLEN TANGLE AGAIN

Ray Steele, winner of that two-touchdown engagement with John Pesek on the last Arena wrestling card, will do his stuff against Jim McMillen, and Everette Marshall will oppose Fred Peterson, his former training partner ,in two finish events on tonight's Arena program.

The Steele-McMillen engagement, it has been told, is being held to determine the "logical contender" for a meeting here with Jim Londos. As McMillen met Londos just about a month ago, in Chicago, some of the boys will be mildly surprised if the result of tonight's event wouldn't indicate that it's Steele's turn at Jimmy.

Besides, Steele has already been "eliminated" from a Londos bout elsewhere in recent weeks. This "elimination" took place at the hands of Everette Marshall, in Philadelphia, where Marshall later pinned Jim McMillen, last Friday night, to clinch a meeting in Philadelphia with Londos. This event is scheduled Dec. 15.

Two preliminaries will precede the finish events on tonight's card. Hans Kampfer, recently returned from Germany, will meet Dick Daviscourt, and Henry Piers, who says he's from Holland, will clash with Tommy Marvin, a Tennessee product.

Tonight's Program.

FINAL EVENT—Ray Steele, Glendale, Cal., vs. Jim McMillen, Chicago. One fall, to a finish. Weights—Steele 218 pounds, McMillen 220 pounds. Referee—Charles Rentrop, Memphis, Tenn.

CURTAIN-RAISER—Henry Piers, Holland, vs. Tommy Marvin, Columbus, Tenn. One fall. Time limit, 30 minutes. Weights—Piers 220 pounds, Marvin 212 pounds.

TIGERS OPPOSE VESS IN SOCCER FEATURE

The Grady Tigers, leaders in Sisler's American Soccer League, engage the tail-end Vess eleven tonight in the opening game of the doubleheader at Sisler's North Side Park, Grand boulevard and Florissant avenue. The Winklers and North St. Louis Business Men meet in the second contest. The Tigers have a record of five victories and no defeats.

Soldan High Winner.

Soldan High School's basketball team gained a 25 to 20 victory over East St. Louis High in a practice game on the East Side courts last night.

GREENLEAF LOSES FIRST MATCH IN THREE YEARS IN TITLE TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The world's pocket billiard tournament was in a state of turmoil today following the sensational defeat of the defending champion, Ralph Greenleaf of New York, 125 to 85, in 25 innings, by George Kelly of Philadelphia.

The stunning upset occurred last night and knocked Greenleaf, 12 times champion, out of a five way tie for first place and gave the winner his first victory in the tournament. It was the champion's first defeat in three years and until last night it hadn't seemed possible to the other contestants that he could lose.

However, Greenleaf had his moment of glory when in the fifteenth inning he had a run of 51 to topple Kelly's best efforts a few innings later by amassing a high run of 30.

In the first five innings Greenleaf had taken the lead, 13 to 0, having run 14 balls in the fourth inning, scratching on his fifteenth attempt. For the next nine innings he failed to score while Kelly had counted a net total of 24 balls. Greenleaf returned in the fourteenth inning with nine more and then registered his high run of 51 in the fifteenth frame to take the lead, 69 to 40.

Kelly Forges to the Front.

The Philadelphia boy regained his stroke in the eighteenth inning and came within one point of evening the score when he run 27, the score reading, Kelly 71, Greenleaf 72. The champion played safe for the next three innings while the recently crowned national-champion added 30 more points to his score to lead, 101 to 72. From then on Kelly kept out in front adding a 12 and an unfinished run of 13, while the best Greenleaf could do was a 13 and one, minus a scratch.

Following are the standings:

WRAY'S COLUMN

Browns' Still Fishing.

ALTHOUGH the Browns' baseball club has been dangled before our eyes for several weeks, no big fish has struck at the more or less tempting bait. There have been a few nibbles of the explorative sort—nothing to take down the hook, line and sinker.

And so, the club is still unsold, still on the market and so far as can be learned, likely to remain so for a while. The estate would like to dispose of the club, but the market is dull and cash hard to raise.

Indications are that the estate and the board of directors will try to build up the club by deals and render it more attractive to the purchaser.

The greatest deterrent to prospective purchasers is the necessity, after paying for the club, of spending a pot of money to rehabilitate its personnel.

The certainty that this cannot be done in one season is not helping the situation.

What! Sell "Spinach"?

THE club will be represented by Hornsby, McEvoy and perhaps other officials at Chicago. If possible, trades will be made to round out the club; but purchases of expensive talent are most unlikely, in view of the deflated condition of the club's treasury.

Gossip to the effect that Melillo and other stars may be used to bait the hooks for a trade is circulating. But while even parting with "Spinach" might be profitable, St. Louis fans hope it will not be necessary.

This great player has been the strongest factor in holding together the really good defense of the team, and in saving its shaky pitchers from more frequent annihilation.

It will be many a day before another Melillo can be found. The records show that he is practically without a defensive equal in any league.

Carideo to Stay.

MISSOURI UNIVERSITY may not be satisfied with Frank Carideo as coach, but it is certainly treating him handsomely. The famous quarterback of other days will have a third try at turning out a great team at Columbia next year.

The discouraging feature to alumni is that Carideo's second year at Columbia proved even more disastrous than his first. Apparently the recruiting system at Missouri has broken down completely.

The situation reached the low ebb where only 35 players were listed on the squad—considered very few for a university with a 3000 enrollment.

Carideo was so desperate that he placarded the town during last season, asking for help. Students who criticised were invited to come out in uniform and try to do better.

But although a few responded, they turned out too late to help.

Next year it may be different, although the outlook is not so keen. Upstate boys have changed their allegiance to other Missouri schools and teachers' colleges. The low prestige of football at our State university in recent years is responsible for that, so the story goes.

The real fact seems to be that the State university officials relaxed in their efforts to interest good high school players in Missouri as an alma mater, with the result that stars went elsewhere.

That makes for an unhappy 1934 situation for Carideo, although it is hardly possible that any Missouri eleven can sink below the 1933 team's level.

"Pop" Warner Pops Off.

IN THE opinion of Coach Warner of Temple University, for years coach at Stanford and alleged father of the so-called Warner system, Stanford chose a "setup" for its Rose Bowl opponent.

"There are at least eight better clubs in the East than Columbia," Warner is quoted as having said.

The Middle West and the South could supply as many more, Pop.

Worth-While Racing.

LEGISLATORS contemplating legalizing race track betting in various states will probably read with pop-eyed amazement the sums realized at Eastern race tracks, notably those of Maryland and New Hampshire.

Reports recently issued show that New Hampshire received more than $425,000 from Rockingham track, the only race course at present operating in the state. The track conducted two meetings for an aggregate of 53 days, which means that the State received approximately $8000 for each day the track was open!

In Maryland, the results will leave you groggier still. Four tracks, racing 92 days in all, yielded the State $819,490, or an average of about $9000 daily.

The income in Maryland was derived from a $6000 daily tax and a 1 per cent take of the mutuel betting. That doesn't sound like much until you learn that the total sum wagered at the four tracks was $26,624,000, an average daily handle of about $300,000. That little old 1 per cent meant $266,240.

It's Different Here.

BUT, lest our Missouri legislators take fire and rush to vote for legalizing mutuels and a similar tax, the situation is entirely different in this vicinity.

Take Fairmount, as an example. A daily tax of $2500 was found to be too much for Fair-

CARL HUBBELL WAS STANDOUT HURLER, RECORDS FOR 1933 SHOW

By Herman Wecke

That Carl Hubbell, star southp of the Giants, was the "KING" the National League pitchers f 1933 is clearly evinced by the o ficial records, released today.

Hubbell, statistics show, stoo head and shoulders over all his ri als. He allowed but 1.66 earne runs per game, the lowest figure i the National League since 191 when Grover Alexander, then at hi best, showed the way with 1.55.

Bill Terry's mainstay for the 19 season allowed but 57 earned ru in 309 innings during the season

Hubbell was the "king pin" the twirlers in several departme other than efficiency. The rounds he worked made him th iron man of the league; he scor 23 victories, more than any oth twirler. He lost 12 decisions, whic placed him third in the matter o games won and lost. He contributed 10 shutouts to the cause o the world champions to lead hi rivals in whitewashing. He pitche 22 complete games to rank fourt in this respect.

Walks 47, Fans 156.

The deeds of Hubbell, howeve do not end there. The records sho that he yielded but 256 safeties i his 309 innings, an average well u der one an inning. A total of 1 batters faced the left-hander, in cating that he held his rivals t measly batting average of Hubbell also carried off the control title, since he walked on 47 batters. He struck out 156.

That Bill Terry had some sensational pitching from his "big four, which in addition to Hubbell wa made up of Hal Schumacher, Fre Fitzsimmons and Roy Parmelee, i shown by the fact that in 1038 in nings, this quartet stopped the e emy with 277 earned runs, or 2. a game. Schumacher ranked thi in the league with 2.15; Fitzsimmons was eleventh with 2.89 a Parmelee fifteenth, with 3.18 ear tallies a game. On top of this, Giants also received some gr work from Herman Bell and Ado Luque in the relief role. Bell a lowed 2.06 runs a game and Luq 2.07. Bell pitched 105 innings a Luque 80.

Dean Led in Strikeouts.

Despite the great work of Hu bell and the remainder of th Giants' pitchers, there was som honor for the Cardinals. Diz Dean, who won 20 and lost 1 games, was the strikeout king f the second successive season, fa ning 199 batters in 293 innin Dean established a new record o July 30, when he struck out 1 members of the Cubs. Dean, wi 26 complete games pitcher, tied f honors in this respect with Lo Warneke of the Cubs.

Tex Carleton, who won 17 a lost 11, and allowed 3.38 earne runs a game, was found for th greatest number of earned tallie 104, while Bill Hallahan proved th wild man of the circuit, walking 9 batters. Hallahan, winning 16 a losing 13, allowed 3.50 earned ru a game to rank twenty-second the league.

Bud Tinning of the Cubs with 13-6 record was the leader in gam won and lost, followed by B Cantwell of the Braves, who h 20-10. Cantwell was sixth in ciency, stopping the opposition 2.61 earned runs a game, wh Tinning yielded 3.19 to finish N 16 in this respect.

Dean, Carleton and Hallah were the only members of the Re bird staff able to go the comple route on more than 10 occasion Among the other pitchers, Je Haines, who pitched in only 1 innings, was most effective, sto ping the enemy with 2.50 earn runs in each nine rounds. Car ton, with four, was the Cardina pace setter in shutouts.

New Record.

In addition to his other fea Hubbell chalked up a new N tional League record when pitched 46 consecutive scoreless nings from July 13 up to and cluding Aug. 1. The previous ord of 44 was made by Ed Re bach of the Cubs in 1908.

The records show that ni pitchers, six more than in 19 pitched 20 complete games. Th were Hubbell, who had 22 to h credit; Warneke 26, Schumach 21, Bush 20, Root 20, Brandt 2 French 21, Dean 26 and Lucas 2

That Paul Derringer's record but seven victories against 27 d feats, the greatest number of los for any pitcher, was not so bad it would at first seem, is show the fact that in efficiency he the best pitcher on the Cincinn staff, ranking No. 17 in the leag The former Cardinal in 248 innin allowed 91 earned runs, an av age of 3.30 a game, to rank ahe of any Cardinal hurler exc Dean.

SURVEY

26 HELD TO BE ATTRIBUTABLE T) GAME; GIRL'S NAME IS LISTED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Despite increased participation by high school and sandlot players, deaths from football in the season just closed show a decline from the high marks of 1931 and 1932 in a survey made today by the Associated Press.

Reports from all sources show 26 deaths directly attributable to the game and 10 more in which injuries in play may have been a contributing factor. One of the deaths was that of a 13-year-old girl. These figures compare with 0 deaths recorded in 1931 and 38 last year.

Not one college varsity player is on the list and only five college freshmen, of which number only two can be listed as definitely having died from injuries received in supervised games or practice.

The deaths, including the 10 "doubtful" fatalities, are segregated as follows: College, five; high school, 16; sandlot, 13; semi-pro and athletic clubs, two.

The record leads Floyd R. Easterwood, of New York University, who conducted a similar survey for the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, to the conclusion that: "On the whole, the game appears to have been played more safely this year than ever before. New rules and newly devised safeguards for the players seem to be accomplishing their purpose."

Easterwood estimated there were approximately 1,100,000 students enrolled in American colleges this fall and nearly 5,000,000 in the high schools, a greater number than in 1932. The sandlot players "run into the millions."

"The game has taken hold as a popular general sport greater than ever before in history," he said.

The girl reported in the fatality list was 13-year-old Wilma Kelly, of Helena, Mont. While playing with a neighborhood group of children she fell and received a fractured nose, dying 14 days later of an infection growing out of her injury.

The two university players killed were Arthur Ehlers, of the University of Iowa, and Hoot Wilson, of Howard College, Birmingham, Ala. Both died of brain hemorrhages suffered while practicing with the freshmen team against the varsity.

The three deaths among college players, which doctors said could not be directly attributed to football injuries, were Jack Cicuto, of John Carroll University, Cleveland; Theodore Kauerz Jr., University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., and Harry Tipton, Southwestern University, Memphis.

CARL HUBBELL WAS STANDOUT HURLER, RECORDS FOR 1933 SHOW

By Herman Wecke

That Carl Hubbell, star southpa of the Giants, was the "KING" the National League pitchers f 1933 is clearly evinced by the o ficial records, released today.

Hubbell, statistics show, stoo head and shoulders over all his riv als. He allowed but 1.66 earne runs per game, the lowest figure i the National League since 1916 when Grover Alexander, then at hi best, showed the way with 1.55.

Bill Terry's mainstay for the 193 season allowed but 57 earned run in 309 innings during the seaso

Hubbell was the "king pin" o the twirlers in several departmen other than efficiency. The 30 rounds he worked made him th iron man of the league; he score 23 victories, more than any othe twirler. He lost 12 decisions, whic placed him third in the matter o games won and lost. He contrib uted 10 shutouts to the cause o the world champions to lead hi rivals in whitewashing. He pitche 22 complete games to rank fourt in this respect.

Walks 47, Fans 156.

The deeds of Hubbell, howeve do not end there. The records sho that he yielded but 256 safeties i his 309 innings, an average well u der one an inning. A total of 120 batters faced the left-hander, in cating that he held his rivals t measly batting average of .21 Hubbell also carried off the be control title, since he walked onl 47 batters. He struck out 156.

That Bill Terry had some sensa tional pitching from his "big four, which in addition to Hubbell wa made up of Hal Schumacher, Fre Fitzsimmons and Roy Parmelee, i shown by the fact that in 1038 in nings, this quartet stopped the en emy with 277 earned runs, or 2.3 a game. Schumacher ranked thir in the league with 2.15; Fitzsim mons was eleventh with 2.89 an Parmelee fifteenth, with 3.18 ear tallies a game. On top of this, Giants also received some gre work from Herman Bell and Adol Luque in the relief role. Bell a lowed 2.06 runs a game and Luqu 2.07. Bell pitched 105 innings an Luque 80.

Dean Led in Strikeouts.

Despite the great work of Hub bell and the remainder of th Giants' pitchers, there was som honor for the Cardinals. Dizz Dean, who won 20 and lost 1 games, was the strikeout king f the second successive season, fa ning 199 batters in 293 inning Dean established a new record o July 30, when he struck out members of the Cubs. Dean, wi 26 complete games pitcher, tied honors in this respect with Lo Warneke of the Cubs.

Tex Carleton, who won 17 a lost 11, and allowed 3.38 earn runs a game, was found for t greatest number of earned tallie 104, while Bill Hallahan proved t wild man of the circuit, walking batters. Hallahan, winning 16 a losing 13, allowed 3.50 earned ru a game to rank twenty-second the league.

Bud Tinning of the Cubs with 13-6 record was the leader in gam won and lost, followed by B Cantwell of the Braves, who h 20-10. Cantwell was sixth in ciency, stopping the opposition w 2.61 earned runs a game, wh Tinning yielded 3.19 to finish N 16 in this respect.

Dean, Carleton and Hallah were the only members of the R bird staff able to go the compl route on more than 10 occasio Among the other pitchers, J Haines, who pitched in only innings, was most effective, st ping the enemy with 2.50 earn runs in each nine rounds. Car ton, with four, was the Cardina pace setter in shutouts.

New Record.

In addition to his other fea Hubbell chalked up a new tional League record when pitched 46 consecutive scoreless nings from July 13 up to and cluding Aug. 1. The previous ord of 44 was made by Ed Re bach of the Cubs in 1908.

The records show that n pitchers, six more than in 19 pitched 20 complete games. Th were Hubbell, who had 22 to credit; Warneke 26, Schumach 21, Bush 20, Root 20, Brandt French 21, Dean 26 and Lucas

That Paul Derringer's record but seven victories against 27 feats, the greatest number of los for any pitcher, was not so bad it would at first seem, is sho the fact that in efficiency he the best pitcher on the Cincinn staff, ranking No. 17 in the lea The former Cardinal in 248 inni allowed 91 earned runs, an a age of 3.30 a game, to rank ah of any Cardinal hurler exc Dean.

POST-DISPATCH FREE BOXING SCHOOL

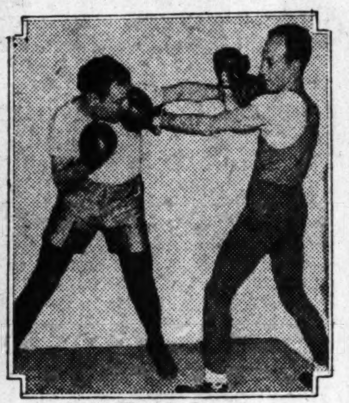

FIG 2

No. 12—COUNTERING.

THE illustrations needed to explain the science of counter blows are so numerous, that it will be impossible to pictorialize them all in this brief course. Through experience most of the important counter blows will come to you.

Much of your success when sparring depends on your ability to counter effectively. If you succeed in making your opponent miss, by side-stepping, slipping ducking why then counter swiftly to the best opening. Again, if you have blocked his lead, it is imperative that you counter swiftly and accurately.

The illustrations accompanying this article show three simple counter blows after blocking leads. Figure 1 (myself on left—Harry Kessler on right) shows me countering with a left jab at Harry's head, after I have blocked his left jab to my own head. This is one of the most important counters in boxing. Learn it.

Figure 3 (I am on the left this time)—this shows me blocking a right swing or hook to the head and countering with a short straight right hand blow to Harry's face. The illustration looks as if my counter blow might be a right uppercut. However, my arm is in that half-bent position because the blow was so short.

I am listing a number of other counter blows that you can practice.

1. Counter with left hook to head, after blocking right hook to head.
2. Counter with right to body after ducking or slipping left to head.
3. Side-step to right and counter with left hook to body.
4. Counter with left hook to body, after pushing left jab to the inside.

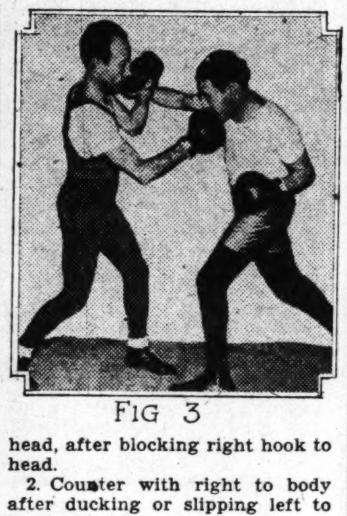

FIG 3

Master all of these counters, if you want to become a good boxer. There are other complex counters that come with experience.

Announcement also was made that Mel Nickel and Gottfried Rau had been named co-captains for 1933.

mount to get away with. It had to be cut to $1500. Even then the track had a struggle. Its average daily handle was not over $70,000.

Missouri tracks will not, therefore, bear anything like the tax that Maryland and New Hampshire tracks are capable of paying. A total daily revenue to the State of $1500 is about all that could be expected at this time.

That would mean, for one local track of 50 days, an annual revenue to the State of only $75,000, out of which would come administration costs, salaries of State inspectors, etc.

The Finney bill, now under consideration, seems altogether too lenient, with a maximum of only $800 daily for St. Louis tracks. If racing is to be legalized in this State, the fair way to levy a State tax would be on the amount of money handled by the track, or on the daily income of the track from the mutuels.

Two per cent of the "handle," up to $50,000, and a graded per cent beyond that, would about fill the bill.

The ability of any business to pay is the basis of all taxation. It would seem that ought to apply to racing as well.

Swenson, Defense Star, Joins Flyers; Plays Tomorrow

"Swede" Swenson, defense man, has been obtained by the St. Louis Flyers from the Detroit club of the National League. Swenson was recommended to Coach Hughes by George Massecar, formerly of the Flyers, and now a member of the Detroit club. He arrived in St. Louis today and will play against the Oklahoma City team in tomorrow night's game at the Arena.

The Oklahomans now are leading the American Association with three successive victories with the Flyers second. Work by the Flyers this week has been mainly on an offense which can pierce the Oklahoma defense.

Sukeforth Is Reinstated.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. — Clyde Sukeforth, Dodger catcher, who retired rather than go to the minors last year, was a member of the Brooklyn club again today. He was reinstated yesterday by Commissioner Judge K. M. Landis, and will probably be second-string receiver next season.

ALL-STAR TEAM TO BATTLE STIX CLUB IS NAMED

When the Stix, Baer & Fuller eleven lines up against an all-star club picked from the other three elevens of the St. Louis (professional) League in a charity match at Walsh Stadium next Wednesday night, the national champions will be up against no easy task in an effort to gain victory.

The team selected to face the title holders is made up of the brightest stars of the rival aggregations. It will show four players from each the Andersons and Kavanaughs and three from the Ben Millers.

The lineup to face the Stix will be as follows: Johnny Hamm, Ben Millers, goal; Milt Zenson and "Dutch" Gockel, Kavanaughs, fullbacks; Ray Egan, Kavanaughs, and Earl Fay and Elmer Benoist, Andersons, halfbacks; Tal Mulroy, Ben Millers; Pat Reidy ,Kavanaughs; Larry Kickham, Ben Millers; "Dinty" Moore, Andersons, and A. Garcia, Kavanaughs, forwards. The reserves are Bernie Chartrand, Kavanaughs; Mark Selby, Andersons and Benny Nash and Manuel Cueto, Pen Millers.

In the opening game of the program, which will start at 8 o'clock, the German Sport Club, champions of the Municipal League, and the Clearys, finalists last season, will fight it out. Proceeds of the double header will go to Father Jimmy Johnson's old St. Malachy's Parish. Tickets sell for 35 cents or three for $1, with 75 cents for box seats.

St. Henrys Win Title.

The St. Henry eleven won the championship of the Concordia Park division of the Parochial School Soccer League, defeating St. Agathas, 2 goals to 1, in a match at Carondelet Park. St. Agatha finished in second place, a game behind the title winners. Heil and Kotroba scored for the winners, while Brinkman tallied for the losers. St. Henry will play St. John the Baptist, Carondelet Park winner, in the first round of the elimination series at Forest Park tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The winner will play St. James of Forest Park for the South Side title next Tuesday.

In the first game of the eliminations, St. Marks of Sherman Park and St. Matthews, Fairground, battled to a scoreless tie and will battle again tomorrow afternoon in an effort to reach a decision. Forward Dalton and "Goalie" Comer starred for St. Matthews, while Center Half "Bubbie" McCarthy and Forward Strassberger looked best for St. Marks.

Two Miller Players Out.

Two of the three members of the Ben Millers injured in last Sunday's professional soccer matches, will be missing when the team lines up against Phil Kavanaugh's Minit Rubs at Sportsman's Park, Sunday. Cubs Give Three Players and Cash For Coast Hurler

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The Chicago Cubs today outbid four other major league clubs in purchasing Dick Ward, 22-year-old pitcher star, from the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League for cash and three players.

The players exchanged for Ward were Frank Demaree and James Mosolf, outfielders, and Ray Henshaw, a left-handed pitcher, who came to the Cubs from the University of Chicago. Demaree and Mosolf were sold outright, while Henshaw was released on option.

Ward, a strapping 185 pounder, nearly six feet tall, lead the Pacific Coast League last season in games won and lost, winning 25 and losing nine. He has been playing professional baseball only two years, starting out with Wichita, Kan., a year ago. His home is Everett, Wash.

NOTRE DAME, NEBRASKA AND OTHERS MENTIONED FOR BIG TEN BERTH

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—With the proposed merger of Northwestern and Chicago Universities nearing fruition it appeared almost certain today that an invitation will be extended to a Middle Western university to become a member of the Western Conference and round out the Big Ten.

As to which university the bid might be extended, the matter was open for speculation. Notre Dame, Nebraska, Iowa State, Michigan State and Marquette were among the possibilities. All have furnished Big Ten football and basketball teams with stiff competition in the past.

Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Western Conference, said no official consideration would be given the problem until Northwestern and Chicago are actually combined into one institution.

Duquesne Will Use All-Star Team In Local Contest

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 7.

HIGH above the Steel city, on the bluffs of old Duquesne, Coach Elmer Layden is preparing his Duquesne all-stars, a team composed of varsity seniors and former Red and Blue warriors, for their charity football clash with the seniors of St. Louis, Washington and Missouri universities at St. Louis Sunday. The team will depart for St. Louis tomorrow night.

Meanwhile, Layden is priming his regulars for their post-season scrap with the University of Miami at Miami New Year's day.

SCHIELE, TIGER CAPTAIN, WILL JOIN ALL-STARS

With his squad intact for the charity game Sunday with the Duquesne University players, Coach Chile Walsh has given out assignments to the 24 senior and alumni players on the composite all-star team. Two late arrivals to the training camp today will be Capt. Charles (Chick) Schiele, former East St. Louis High athlete, and Peroy Gill, both from Missouri University.

Four senior gridders from Missouri and Washington U. will be unable to compete in the game Sunday, it was learned late yesterday by the Rev. Charles Maxwell, director of the Boys' Club and sponsor of the charity affair Conference regulations forbidding athletes to compete in post-season chopped Capt. Glynn Clark and Joe Walka of Washington, and Woodie Hatfield and George Stuber of Missouri U. off the all-star roster.

Additions to the composite eleven yesterday bolstered it in every position, however, and Coach Walsh, who is schooling the team in the Notre Dame system, said a versatile aggregation would face the powerful Duquesne squad.

Coach Elmer Layden will leave Pittsburgh tomorrow with a squad of 30 Duquesne players.

In order to add strength and experience to the all-star team, several former Billiken stars were recruited this week and have been drilling at Walsh Stadium, where Sunday's charity game will be held. George McGowan, end; Harry Bockrath, tackle; and Russell MacLeod, all senior members of the St. Louis U. 1932 team, will be in the starting lineup.

Recent additions to the squad, brought about by the loss of Washington and Missouri players through the conference ruling that would lift their athletic eligibility for the remainder of their varsity careers, included Tom Howland, halfback from the 1933 Billikens, and George Heitmeyer of the Bears.

Father Maxwell, to facilitate the sale of tickets for the charity game, announced the opening of another office on the mezzanine floor of the Arcade building. Reserved seats may be purchased there at $1 and $2. More than 380 box seats have been sold for the game, the director said.

The present all-star squad includes:

Center—Russell MacLeod (St. L. U.); Gus Erspamer (Washington).
Right guard—Ralph Beck (St. L. U.); Erspamer (Washington).
Right tackle—Don Philpot (St. L. U.); Percy Gill (Missouri).
Right end—Marion Spehr, Harry Minkey (St. L. U.).

CALLS ROSE BOWL GAME ROMAN HOLIDAY FOR LOS ANGELES BUSINESS

By the Associated Press.

MOORHEAD, Minn., Dec. 7. — President Lotus D. Coffman of the University of Minnesota termed the Rose Bowl football game played annually at Pasadena, Cal., "a Roman holiday staged for the commercial interests of Los Angeles," in a talk last night.

He said he was opposed to any modification of Western Conference rules making it possible for Big Ten teams to play in the classic and criticised leaders of the nation for failure to provide education for unemployed youth.

Charley Gelbert Tosses Cane Into Football Bonfire

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Dec. 7.—On the bonfire celebrating the Gettysburg College tie for first place in the Eastern Pennsylvania Football Conference was tossed a handsome and stout hook-handled cane, the contribution of the Bullets' backfield coach, namely, Charley Gelbert.

The throw-away of the trusty cane which he used for trudging the gridirons and campuses all fall was his celebration of his doctor's verdict after the last examination of the wound in his left leg, his trophy from the 1932 hunting season.

In the past month the invalided Cardinal shortstop made such rapid progress with his walking that he took a flying trip to Philadelphia, to consult Dr. Horace Ewing of the surgical staff of Hahnemann Hospital, where he was taken following the accidental shooting a year ago last November, which severed a muscle just above his left ankle.

"Considering the leg's condition in September," stated Dr. Ewing, "the regeneration progress since I last saw it has been nothing short of rmarkable. I believe that with proper exercising there is a chance that Charley may regain the full use of his left leg by the time baseball season starts."

Gelbert, overjoyed at the news, immediately made plans to go to Florida about the first of the year. He plans to go to Bradenton, where the Cardinals trained last year, to join a small colony of baseball players who are spending the winter there. He has wired to Jimmie Wilson, Cardinals' catcher recently traded to the Phillies, instructing Wilson to secure him a cottage and to get ready for some strenuous golf games.

Due largely to Gelbert's services as backfield coach, Gettysburg won all but one of its conference gridiron games this year, tying with Muhlenberg for the conference championship.

PING PONG TITLE TOURNEY STARTS TOMORROW WITH A RECORD ENTRY

A record-breaking entry of over 240 ping pong players was received for the annual St. Louis District ping pong championship, which will be held Friday and Saturday in the gold room of the Jefferson Hotel. One hundred and thirty-five entered the men's singles event, 45 in the women's singles and 32 men's doubles teams.

Although the committee expected an increase over last year, the unexpected entry of over 240 caused the tournament committee, making the draw Tuesday night, to work until after 3 o'clock Wednesday morning before completing its work.

Improvements Shown.

The improvements in the playing ability of a number of players will make this year's event one of the outstanding events in local ping pong competition. While in previous years several of the outstanding ping pongers were always pre-tournament favorites, this year there are at least 10 top-ranking players who have an eye on the title and stand a chance to win.

Vernon Tietjen, defending champion, and Joyce Portnoy, Missouri State titleholder, seeded No. 1 and 2, respectively, dominated the field for several years, but will find plenty of opposition this week. John Toedtman, Missouri Valley titlist, and his brother, Russell, M. A. A. titleholder, and next in the seed, are at the top of their game and should cause the two leaders plenty of trouble.

The women's event is conceded to Mrs. Ethel Baer Schneider, Missouri State title and fifth ranking feminine ping pong star in the United States.

Three well known sportsmen of St. Louis will try their hand at competitive tournament play for the first time, although being adept at the game. Adalbert von Gontard, member of the Bridle Spur Hunt Club; Joseph L. Werner and Virgil Lewis, St. Louis Country Club stars, are entered in the tournament. Werner and Lewis will also play in the doubles event.

Play starts promptly at six-thirty

Toronto Soccer Team Beaten 2-0 In Chicago Game

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.

THE Toronto Scottish soccer team was defeated last night by Wieboldt's Wonderbolts 2-0 after making a valiant fight before a crowd of 2000 in the 124th Field Armory.

Both the goals were made in the second half by the Wonderbolts after both teams were held scoreless in first half and 15 minutes of the second period.

Stevens, Scottish center, almost scored on two or three occasions, but the ball was knocked by fast defense work by Wonderbolts.

Weir and Phillips, defensive players for Toronto, were visitor's stars.

GUNNERS' LINEUP FOR CINCINNATI GAME UNDECIDED

Because all his Gunners have been playing such a great brand of football in practice this week, Coach Gwinn Henry will not be able to name his starting lineup until after the final "heavy" workout tomorrow afternoon for the Mound City pros' contest with the Cincinnati Reds of the National League Sunday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium.

With games with the Reds, Green Bay Packers and Chicago Bears coming in order, the local players have been taking all their workouts seriously and there has been little to choose between the advertised first-stringers and the so-called reserves.

La Presta and Kyle.

Benny La Presta and Winton "Cowboy" Kyle, fleet backs who came out of last Sunday's game nursing injuries, yesterday romped through training sessions for the first time this week and, judging from the brilliant exhibitions they gave in practice, will be available to participate in the coming contest. La Presta and Kyle drilled with both the first and second-string attacking quartets and held their own with both combinations.

Don Moses, quarterback; Chester "Swede" Johnston, fullback, and Dick Frahm and John Breidenstein, halfbacks, who have been starting in most of the games, impressed Henry with their all-round performance, but Joe Spudich, Blake Workman, La Presta and Kyle also came through beautifully. There is a possibility that Henry will re-arrange his ball-lugging department.

The Gunner coach is well satisfied with the linemen who have been starting recently but he is also highly impressed with the way the other members have been performing and it is likely that there will be one or two changes along the front wall in the game with the Reds.

Charley Malone, pass-snatching and tackling end, and Mack Gladden, whose work on the defense has been of the highest order, are almost certain starters, but they will have to keep moving at a fast clip to keep George Rogge, whose injured leg is healing rapidly, and Chuck Delmege from breaking in on them. Delmege also has been on the hospital list, but he reports his chest ailment will not bother him by the week-end.

The Gunner players claim there is no better tackle in pro football than Sandy Sandburg, who is slated to be in the lineup Sunday. But Marion Broadstone, Babe Lyon and Joe Moore, all big 240-pounders, have been playing on even terms and it is a toss-up as to which of them will be on the other side of the line.

Ray Jennison has been chasing down punts and making big openings in the enemy lines since his shoulder has healed, and Leonard McGirl and Homer Reynolds, a pair of real guards, can consider themselves lucky if they are picked ahead of Jennison to start at the guards' places. Cecil Muellerleile's work has improved so much at center that he will alternate in holding down the pivot berth with Eddie Kawal, who is in line to be in the opening Gunner lineup.

Eight in a Row.

The Gunners, who have won eight straight games and 10 this season, and the Reds, who are scheduled to work out here this afternoon, have not suffered a setback since they battled earlier in the season. Ted Reds, with 18 players on their roster, are due today, and the David Ranken Jr. School field, located on Finney and Newstead avenues, will be the scene of their local workout. Their training sessions will take place in the afternoons and the Gunners will work out in the mornings.

Since Gil Lefebvre, former Gunner ace, made a sensational 98-yard run for a touchdown against Brooklyn last Sunday to win the game, the midget back is crowding the regular ball-packers for a starting position in the Cincinnati backfield in the coming contest, according to word received here from Mike Palm, the Ohioans' coach.

CHICAGO GIRL ATHLETE WILL APPEAR HERE IN BASKETBALL CONTEST

Annie Goldstein, Chicago greatest girl athlete, will be in the starting lineup of the Spencer Coals when the Chicago girl basketball champions oppose the Maplewood American Legion cage squad, greater St. Louis champions, at the new Maplewood High School Gymnasium Saturday night.

Only 5 feet, 3 inches tall, Miss Goldstein is considered one of the best ball handlers in the Chicago district. She leads her team in scoring, but doesn't confine her efforts entirely to basketball. During the past summer she gained all-star honors while playing with the championship amateur indoor baseball team at the Chicago World's Fair.

This will not be Miss Goldstein's first appearance here. Four years ago, while playing with the Jewish People's Institute five of Chicago, the Spencers' star forward performed against the Crystal City club in a two-game series. Two of her present teammates, Rae Levine and Rose Olbur, played in that series.

Marie Madison, Maplewood guard, who has been named on the greater St. Louis all-star team for five straight years, and Betty Carpentier, a teammate, played against the Chicagoans in their series here in 1929.

AMERICAN GOLF BODY TO CONSIDER BRITISH CODE AT ITS MEETING

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Although the revised amateur code adopted by the ruling body of British golf, the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, is even stricter than the one now in effect in America, there is little possibility that the United States Golf Association will make any changes in its present rulings when it meets here in January.

John G. Jackson, vice-president of the U. S. G. A., said that the Executive Committee would consider the British code, adopted a few days ago and forwarded here for information, when it meets before the annual convention, but that he knew of no agitation to make the American rule conform.

Gorman Named Coach.

Marty Gorman, former McBride High and St. Louis University basketball star, has been named coach of the South Side Catholic High School quintet, Brother Vincent Brand announced yesterday. This is the South Side school's first year in competition.

Why Winter instead of Spring should be the Tire-Buying "SEASON"

A VERY considerable number of people still think of spring as the tire-buying "season."

This became a habit long ago—when most people owned open cars—when cars and roads were both uncertain—when tires lasted only a few thousand miles and summer was the accepted "touring" time.

But today, with cars almost universally in all-year use and tire mileages piling up to tens of thousands, it is hardly sensible to risk winter-travel on smooth thin rubber or to let an outworn habit rob you of safety when you need it most.

In winter, streets and highways are more often wet and slippery.

In winter, tire-changing is harder and more disagreeable, with fingers numbed with cold.

So comfort and safety both counsel that you avoid these needless hazards by riding on new All-Weather Goodyears with their sturdy strength and their sharp, clean, sure-footed grip at their best.

There is a thrifty reason too.

Goodyears put in service now, when highways are cool and when the friction of rubber on roads is reduced by rain and snow, deliver an average of 30% more total mileage.

That means you can buy these great tires now, enjoy their safety during the winter, and still have plenty of deep-cut powerful traction and dependable mileage for hot weather driving when summer returns.

COUNTY COURT SEEKS FEDERAL SEWER GRANT

Applies for $3,923,000 to Be Used in Project Costing $16,901,000.

Application for a $3,923,891 Federal grant for an extensive sewer system in St. Louis County was filed with Hugh Miller, State engineer of the Public Works Administration, by the County Court yesterday. The court estimates total cost of the system at $16,901,597 and would raise the rest by revenue bonds, which would be supported by charges for use of the sewers.

This is a rival proposal to that filed last week by the County Organization for Business Recovery, sponsored by the County Chamber of Commerce. The County Court, or administrative body, would control construction and operation under its plan, whereas the Circuit Court would have control under the other plan. A bill to authorize the County Court plan has been set aside in the Legislature and is not likely to pass, but House bill No. 88, for the Organization for Business Recovery plan, has made headway.

Miller accepted the County Court request tentatively, which was the way he received the other application. He announced the State Advisory Board of the PWA would be asked to decide which one to consider finally. Should the board fail to make a choice, Miller probably would ask the business recovery group and the County Court to agree on a single application. New legislation would be required to authorize issuance of revenue bonds, Miller said.

Sanitary sewers, storm sewers, sewage disposal plants "etc." would be included in the County Court plan, the court announced. C. R. Kammerer, the court's agent, used drawings prepared for the seven sewer districts set up under the abandoned Ralph law in drafting the new scheme. An announcement by Kammerer and Associate Judge Schumacher of the court asserted construction of trunk line sewers alone did not seem feasible or adequate. They said trunk, lateral, feeder and other lines would be built in incorporated and unincorporated territory, but that the towns would have charge of work within their limits.

The proposal depends on passage of a "satisfactory" enabling act, they added, expressing a hope the Legislature would amend the enabling bill to meet their ideas. They said the work would require four years and employ 3000 men. Schumacher said the Organizaton for Business Recovery had no right to file its application.

A loan of $5,400,000 to pay for trunk line sanitary sewers is sought by the Organization for Business Recovery. It also asks for a $1,075,000 grant to apply on interest and principal of ad valorem bonds for the first three years. These bonds would be supported by taxpayers generally. Plans for this system were drawn by W. W. Horner, widely known consulting engineer and member of the PWA Technical Board of Review.

Miller's office has been studying this plan and applications of five county towns for local sewers. Some of the latter proposals do not fit the general layout, Miller declared.

MISSOURI STATE LIFE CLAIMS

The time for filing claims against the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. has been extended from Dec. 15 to Feb. 15 by Circuit Judge Hamilton on petition of State Superintendent of Insurance O'Malley.

In asking the extension, O'Malley said he had not completed mailing of notices to policyholders, stockholders and other creditors until Dec. 1. The claims will be heard by Joseph F. Holland, special master.

BRONX BOSS DECLARES HE IS THROUGH WITH TAMMANY

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader of the Bronx and supporter of President Roosevelt, has broken definitely with Tammany Hall.

"So long as I remain county leader in the Bronx," he told a county committee last night, "the Tammany Tiger does not cross the Harlem River bridges."

There was a time, Flynn said, when the borough of Manhattan dominated New York in size and population.

"Today," he said, "we have the example of the boroughs of Brooklyn, Queens, Richmond and the Bronx far outnumbering numerically the voters in the borough of Manhattan; and yet in order to meet the test of 'regularity' we are supposed to bend our knees and our heads to a man or a group of men selected by the County Committee of New York County. I for one will resist as long as I am in politics the domination of the county of New York (Manhattan) over the county of the Bronx."

Flynn has been at outs with Tammany for several months.

SHOT BY BROTHER-IN-LAW, MAN DIES OF THE WOUND

Henry Wisdom Fatally Wounded by Shotgun Fired From Second-Story Window.

Henry Wisdom, 38 years old, died at City Hospital last night of a gunshot wound of the chest and abdomen suffered last Thursday night when he was shot by his brother-in-law, Joseph Nelson, 10A Marion street.

The shooting occurred in front of the Nelson home. Wisdom, who resides at 1820 South Seventh street, said Nelson fired at him with a shotgun from a second-story window.

Nelson, who has been held since the shooting, told police he feared that Wisdom and two other brothers of Mrs. Nelson had come to punish him for quarreling with her earlier in the evening. He said that when he had put her out of the house, she went to the Wisdom home, returning shortly afterward with the brothers.

Police said Nelson told them he fired one shot in the air and one in the "general direction" of the brothers but had not known that he wounded anyone.

MONTEVIDEO PARLEY SEEKS PEACE IN CHACO

By the Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 7.—Delegates of Bolivia and Paraguay, the two nations at war over the Gran Chaco in Central South America, thanked the Peace Committee of the Seventh Pan-American Congress today for its efforts to promote peace between them.

The delegates of other nations applauded as spokesmen for both the belligerents said they were interested in any means to obtain a just and reasonable conclusion of the war.

The Mexican financial project, including the discussion of Latin-American debts, was sidetracked for the time being, at least, by consent of Dr. Jose M. Puig Casauranc, the Mexican Foreign Minister, after the United States specifically opposed discussion of private debts by the conference.

The Mexican project, which proposed the formation of an inter-American banking system and establishment of an inter-American currency, as well as debt moratoriums, is to be referred to the inter-American High Commission, which long has been inactive but may be revived to consider the Mexican plan.

The High Commission was formed in 1915 in Washington by Finance Ministers of the various American republics during the first Pan-American financial conference.

LOOKS LIKE "WE'RE GOING TO HELL," SAYS SENATOR FESS

"No Government Can Spend Itself Into Prosperity," He Tells Republicans.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 7.—Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, assistant Republican leader in the Senate, predicts Franklin D. Roosevelt will not be President more than three years from now.

It looks, the senior Ohio Senator told Ohio Republican leaders here yesterday, like "we're going to hell."

Senator Fess denounced the administration's monetary course, the operation of the Federal relief program and the national recovery program.

"No Government can spend itself into prosperity," Fess said, attacking the relief administration, which he termed "commendable in purpose but not in operation."

The recovery program is a direct violation of the law of supply and demand, he said.

"We're facing the most stupendous deficit in history and that's only a beginning," Senator Fess charged.

MAN AND WIFE ARE ROBBED OF $150 SAVINGS IN HOME

Geza Borl, a gardener, and his wife, were robbed of $150 savings last night by two armed men who entered their home, 8700 State street, East St. Louis, after knocking on a rear door which was opened by Mrs. Borl.

They demanded Borl's money and when he offered them some coins which he had in his pocket, one of the men struck him on the head with a revolver and demanded more. Mrs. Borl then gave them a key to a dresser drawer, where they found the $150. Before leaving, they bound Borl's hands and those of his wife. They were freed by their employer who heard their calls for help.

CITY SEEKS $219,000 FOR WORK ON BRIDGE

Application for a $219,000 Federal grant for completing the Municipal Bridge for railroad use has been filed with the Public Works Administration by the city. This would augment a $700,000 fund which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is expected to furnish. Total cost of the contemplated work is estimated at $876,200, and the city is allowing a small margin for extras.

Employment for 100 to 280 men a month for nine months, at 80 cents to $1.40 an hour, would be provided.

Included in the proposed work are tracks and deck to finish the new East St. Louis Union Station rail approach; a new southeastern approach at Valley Junction, to connect with the Terminal, Missouri Pacific, Illinois Central and Cotton Belt Railroads; connection with the elevated tracks of the Terminal near Eighth street, for access to Union Statio;n new approach to the Frisco and Missouri Pacific at Twelfth street: rehabilitation of tracks on the main deck and old approaches; an interlocking plant.

The interlocking system and the Frisco-Missouri Pacific lead were not included in the scheme last spring, when the only fund in sight was the RFC loan. An ordinance passed in November, 1932, authorized the city to apply for the RFC loan, but there have been various delays. Last August the RFC sent a contract for signature by the city and the Terminal, but the Terminal has not signed. It is negotiating over an objection to a guarantee of amortization of the loan in case tolls it would pay fell below an anticipated level.

MISSING WOMAN STUDENT REPORTED SEEN IN COLORADO

Roommate Says Her Fears Have Been Allayed by Message From Trinidad.

Miss Mary Douglass, 26-year-old graduate student at Washington University, reported missing from her home since Monday noon, passed through Trinidad, Colo., Tuesday, according to a telegram received today by Miss Ruth Jenkins, who occupies an apartment with her at 6316 North Rosebury avenue, Clayton.

Miss Jenkins, who had requested police to search for Miss Douglass, said her "fears were allayed" and she thinks her friend is on her way to Los Angeles, where she pent 10 weeks last summer.

The message, signed "Grace Conley," stated, "Mary Douglass passed through here Dec. 5."

Miss Jenkins said she notified police after finding a note in their apartment in which Miss Douglass gave directions as to the disposition of some of her property and said she would do "nothing rash" and not to worry about her. She did not state where she was going, Miss Jenkins said, but informed her friend she would hear from her.

When Miss Douglass left she was wearing a riding costume, including a red leather jacket, black boots, and either gray breeches or a black skirt. She had withdrawn $50 from a savings account.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Rails and industrial specialties today led the stock market in a quiet quest for higher levels. Gains of 1 to more than 3 points were scattered throughout the list. While most of the so-called leaders improved moderately, they were not unusually active. The close was firm. Transfers approximated 1,700,000 shares.

Equities had little help from grains, gold or foreign exchange. The domestic gold rate was unchanged and the dollar fluctuated rather narrowly in terms of leading European currencies. Wheat got up a cent or more a bushel at one time, but was only mildly improved at the finish. Some corn, oats and barley futures were up more than a cent. Cotton was diffident and other commodities mixed. U. S. Government securities were a little heavy, but strength was exhibited by some rail bonds.

Shares of Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Norfolk & Western and Delaware & Hudson were up 1 to around 3 points, while the usually inactive New York & Harlem gained 5. Armour preferred spurted 7 points. Advances of 1 to 3 were also recorded by Foundation Co., Electric Auto-lite, American Wool preferred, Vanadium, American Radiator, Auburn, Celanese, Industrial Rayon, American Rolling Mill and Crucible Steel. Gains of fractions to about a point were held by Allied Chemical, American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Case, United Aircraft, U. S. Smelting, Johns-Manville, du Pont, American Tobacco B, Western Union and others.

Wheat closed ½ cent lower to ¾ higher. Corn was up ⅝ to ½ cent and oats held similar gains. Barley advanced ⅝ to 1¾ cents and rye was unchanged to ⅜ of a cent firmer. At Winnipeg wheat edged up ⅛ to ⅜ of a cent a bushel. Cotton was unchanged to up 15 cents a bale. Bar silver was unchanged and silver futures eased.

Sterling, at mid-afternoon, showed a loss of 2¼ cents at $5.09½ and French francs were off .06¼ of a cent at 6.08¾ cents. Guilders declined .70 of a cent to 62.50 cents and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs were down .30 and .12 of a cent, respectively. Canadian dollars held at their previous rate of $1.01⅛.

News of the Day.

That the President in his speech last night did not touch on the administration's monetary program probably was disappointing to some, but occasioned no surprise among those who have been watching closely the developments at Washington. Banking circles, while hoping for some "sound money" pronouncement in the near future, feel that the domestic and international situations are such that a definite stand on the money problem is not likely at the moment.

The recent strength of the dollar in terms of leading foreign exchanges was attributed by a dealer partly to short covering by European speculators because of continued stabilization rumors abroad. At the same time a financial house with foreign connections reports there has been some repatriation of American capital that fled to pounds and francs some months ago due to inflationary fears.

One financial quarter believes that the foreign short position in the dollar is still extremely heavy despite the recent sporadic covering.

Gold Price Unchanged.

For the sixth successive day, the Treasury maintained its gold price unchanged at $34.01 and the dollar again advanced in the foreign exchange market. Sterling at the opening was off 1¼ cents to $5.10½ while French francs slid down .05 cent to 6.10 cents.

Announcement of the Government's new financing, eagerly awaited, disclosed an interest rate higher than had been expected in some market quarters, and it was assumed that the 2¼ per cent one-year certificates would meet a heavy oversubscription.

The gold loss of the Bank of France for the week ended Dec. 1 was 450,000,000 francs, substantially less than for the previous week. The bank's ratio was 79.24 per cent, a small increase.

CORN TAKES LEADERSHIP IN CHICAGO GRAIN TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Corn took the leadership in the grain markets today and averaged higher in price, with persistent buying of small lots a feature.

Pronounced tendencies to hold rural marketing of corn back with the assistance of Government loans attracted much attention. Practically no corn was offered today to arrive in Chicago. A little export business in corn was understood to have been effected at the seaboard.

Corn closed strong, ⅝@1½ cents above yesterday's finish. Wheat ½c off to ½ up, oats ⅝@1½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Commission houses became rather active buyers on setbacks in values. Opening ¼@⅝ decline, wheat afterward rose to above yesterday's finish. Corn started ¼@⅝ off, and subsequently rallied.

Failure of wheat market upturns to hold well led subsequently to some increase of selling that carried prices lower than before, but with rallies again following. In one quarter, monetary conditions were construed as bearish, notably a downward trend of sterling. Attention was also called to the fact that President Roosevelt's address last night threw no fresh light on the administration's financial plans.

Extreme scarcity of rural offerings of corn affected the futures market to a noticeable extent. Advices at hand indicated a disposition of some farmers to put their corn in cribs and obtain Government loans. Dealers inferred that the bulk of corn delivered at shipping points would go to the feeder trade instead of to terminals.

Provisions were responsive to upturns in hog values.

Wheat values had an uncertain tone on the Chicago Board of Trade today, and in the final hour at one time were ⅜ off to ⅜s up compared with yesterday's finish.

The start was lower under commission house selling, based on weakness in Liverpool and a decline in sterling. Good support developed on the setback and prices rallied to a fraction above the previous close. Selling developed on the hard spots due to weakness in Southwest markets as prices had another sinking spell but then rallied. Trade on the whole was of moderate volume.

Liverpool weakness was due to December liquidation. Black Sea shipments were small and included 632,000 bu. out of Russia and 360,000 bu. from Danubian ports. Argentine shipments were estimated at 625,000 bu.

Fair weather prevailed in Kansas, but the forecast is for snow in both Kansas and Nebraska, which, if realized, will remedy the moisture situation.

A 1934 Kansas wheat crop of less than 100,000,000 bu. is almost a certainty according to experts of the Kansas State College. The prediction is based on the fact that aside from August the Kansas rainfall conditions since July have closely paralleled those of 1916, 1931 and 1932. In these three cases, the following Kansas wheat crops were respectively 42,000,000 bushels, 107,000,000 and 57,000,000.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration has begun to distribute flour to relief clients. The flour has been obtained from millers in exchange for wheat. To date, the Government has purchased 500,000 bu. of wheat both cash grain and futures.

WHEAT MARKET IS IRREGULAR IN LOCAL TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 7.—May wheat closed ⅛c higher today after a narrow irregular course. Chicago wheat was a little better, influenced by upturn in corn there.

Winnipeg opened ⅛ to ¼c lower and early was ⅛c up to ⅛c off. The close was ⅛@⅜c net higher.

Liverpool came ½ to ⅞d lower in one cable. The close was ⅞ to 1d net lower.

CORN TAKES LEADERSHIP IN CHICAGO GRAIN TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Corn took the leadership in the grain markets today and averaged higher in price, with persistent buying of small lots a feature.

Pronounced tendencies to hold rural marketing of corn back with the assistance of Government loans attracted much attention. Practically no corn was offered today to arrive in Chicago. A little export business in corn was understood to have been effected at the seaboard.

Corn closed strong, ⅝@1½ cents above yesterday's finish. Wheat ½c off to ⅜ up, oats ⅝@1½c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Grain prices developed firmness today after a wavering start. Commission houses became rather active buyers on setbacks in values. Opening at ¼@⅝ decline, wheat afterward rose to above yesterday's finish. Corn started ⅜@⅝ off, and subsequently rallied.

Failure of wheat market upturns to hold well led subsequently to some increase of selling that carried prices lower than before, but with rallies again following. In one quarter, monetary conditions were construed as bearish, notably a downward trend of sterling. Attention was also called to the fact that President Roosevelt's address last night threw no fresh light on the administration's financial plans.

Extreme scarcity of rural offerings of corn affected the futures market to a noticeable extent. Advices at hand indicated a disposition of some farmers to seal their corn in cribs and obtain Government loans. Dealers inferred that the bulk of corn delivered at shipping points would go to the feeder trade instead of to terminals.

Provisions were responsive to upturns of hog values.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Raw sugar was quiet early today but the tone was easier and sugars were offered at concessions without attracting buyers. Spot prices were nominally unchanged at 3.30, although it was believed that Cubas for prompt shipment could be had at 3.25.

Futures opened at unchanged to 1 point decline and showed further losses later in the morning under liquidation and hedge selling. Houses with producing connections appeared to be the principal sellers, probably against new crop supplies with January contracts selling off from 1.22 to 1.20 and May from 1.33 to 1.30, or 2 to 4 points below the previous close. Shorts and trade interest were credited with buying but only on the scale down, and the market at midday was ruling at or within a point of the lowest. Press reports from Washington stating that Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is giving consideration to the promulgation of a new sugar pact came in for considerable discussion, but as no details were mentioned, it was not considered an immediate market factor.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.50 for fine granulated, but demand was light and only of a routine character.

Futures closed barely steady, 2 to 4 lower; sales, 14,350 tons; Dec., 1.17; Jan., 1.20b; March, 1.24@25; May, 1.30; July, 1.35; Sept., 1.40b.

Minneapolis Flour.

Studebaker's Quadripoise Suspension provides LEVEL RIDING

...THE MILLION DOLLAR RIDE OF 1934

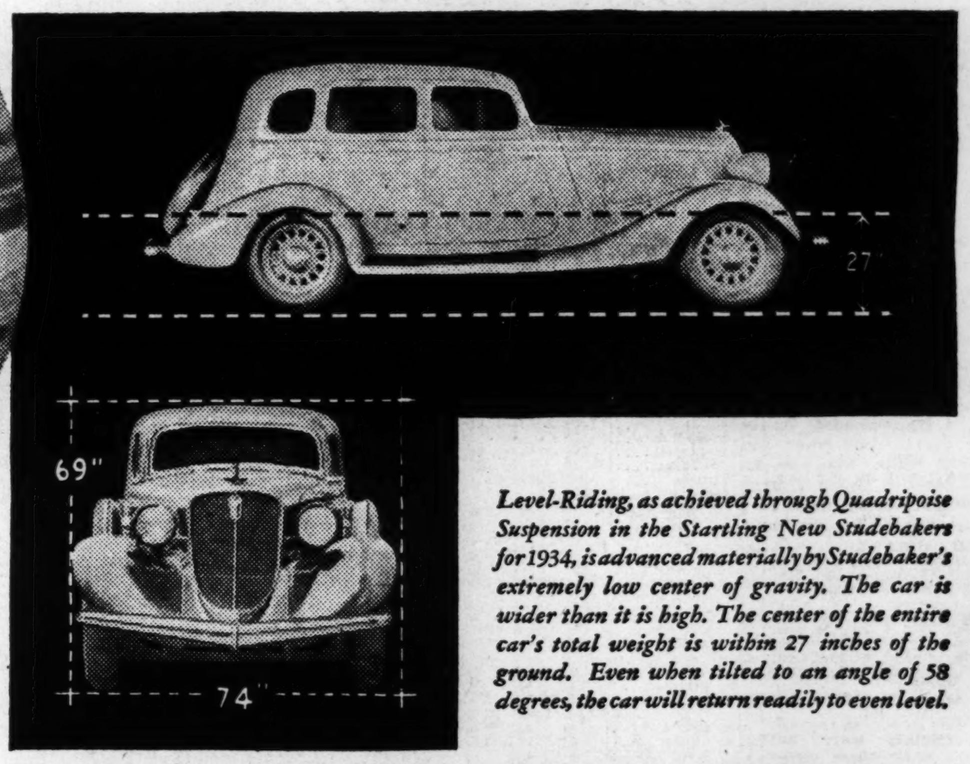
LEVEL-RIDING — Studebaker's latest brilliant contribution to motoring comfort — helped to sell more Studebakers last month than in any other November in eight years.

This million dollar advancement gives you level-riding on the turns . . . level-riding on rough roads . . . at 1934 speeds!

Quadripoise Suspension is the result of the expenditure of more than a million dollars in Studebaker's laboratories and proving ground. It embraces not merely one, but a whole series, of closely related engineering achievements.

This great Studebaker development includes in its scope all four extremities of the chassis, rather than merely the forward half. It embodies the most precisely calculated distribution of chassis weight, body weight and passenger weight.

Five 85% stock Studebaker cars, in the last 500-mile Indianapolis Race, captured 5 of the first 12 places—part of the painstaking program of Studebaker engineering research which produced Quadripoised Suspension.



Level-Riding, as achieved through Quadripoise Suspension in the Startling New Studebakers for 1934, is advanced materially by Studebaker's extremely low center of gravity. The car is wider than it is high. The center of the entire car's total weight is within 27 inches of the ground. Even when tilted to an angle of 58 degrees, the car will return readily to even level.

Why Studebaker Cars Keep Their Balance

As a result, the center of the entire weight of the car is less than 27 inches from the ground! The cars are wider (74 inches) than they are high (69 inches). Any Studebaker will retain its balance, even if tilted to an angle of 58 degrees.

Quadripoise Suspension likewise involves spring placement, spring dimensioning and spring articulation. Springs are spaced further apart—another Studebaker innovation! It includes de-synchronization of the various rhythmic impulses inevitably set up by wheels, springs, motor and chassis. It covers tire sizes and air pressures. And it is affected materially by Studebaker's pioneering use of aerodynamic body design... Studebaker's skyway style.

No Swerving, No Wandering, No Wheel Fight

The net result? A Studebaker ride is unique. The startling new 1934 Studebakers are completely free from shimmy and wheel fight. They never swerve or wander at any speed on straightaway, hills or curves. These Quadripoised Studebakers keep a level keel over rough roads. Rear seats are as free from bumps and jars as front seats. There is a notable absence of pitching, swaying and bouncing. Your Studebaker hugs the road on the turns.

Unseen but notably evident, Studebaker's Quadripoise Suspension introduces the stability of pyramid design—low weight, balanced weight—Quadripoised weight. Studebaker level-riding is a proved fact. Take your Studebaker ride before, or after, you experiment with other motor cars ... you will find none so impressively comfortable on any sort of road at any rate of travel!

Pacific Coast Sunset.
When Men Are Lynched.
A Trial Honeymoon.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1933.)

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Dec. 7.

SOME things you cannot describe though you see them clearly.

Nobody has really described Niagara, the Pacific Ocean, a volcano in eruption, or the wonderful look that a new child brings into this world from the eternity that lies behind us.

It is not possible to describe the sunset seen from this coast looking across the Pacific to the northwest. But for the benefit of those that haven't seen it, you can attempt to describe it, as prairie dogs chatter about an express that has gone by.

The sun has been down for some time, blue black darkness spreads over from the east. There is an evening star hanging high up, in the sky, of such extreme metallic, silver brightness, that it seems to stare at and reproach you. Your impulse is to say, "I haven't done anything, don't look so hard."

There is intensity in the low, red, long line that spreads low across the horizon that you never saw elsewhere. Nothing was ever like that savage dark red, fighting against approaching blackness.

The smooth Pacific Ocean spreads out. a dark, oily purple. Soon the sun will be rising on its other shore, 7000 miles away.

The sky, without a cloud, shows every shade of blue, the long mountain range to the east changing from gray and green to black.

A small lighthouse at the foot of this hill has begun its night's work, sweeping a moving beam across the water. There is not a sound, as the earth turns on its axis, 1000 miles an hour, and flies through space around the sun and with the sun at fantastic speed.

A wonderful machine is this universe, and an interesting corner of it is this Pacific Coast of California.

War veterans of the East have expelled Gov. Rolph of California from their "national advisory board" because he too hastily approved the lynching of two kidnapers, at San Jose, Cal.

It should be remembered that what a man thinks, not what he says, tells what he is.

Tens of millions in this country THOUGHT what Gov. Rolph SAID, although their second thought may have modified their first, which was "thank God those kidnapers are dead."

Gov. Rolph said what he should not have said, occupying high office, but he said what at least a majority of those who voted for him thought when they first heard of the lynching.

If public officials were never guilty of a more serious offense than telling what they really think, there would be no need to worry.

To condone mob violence is a dangerous mistake, Gov. Rolph knows it as well as his critics do. But, he and others when they heard of the lynching thought first of the unfortunate young man, kidnaped, taken to the edge of the water, knocked on the head repeatedly with a brick in spite of piteous appeals, bound with wire and, while still alive thrown into the water. That thought was not calculated to arouse sympathy for the kidnapers.

However, one violation of law, thoughtlessly approved, may lead to others a thousand times more dangerous, and that should be remembered, even when a lynching happens to please us.

Worst of all in that horrible mob outbreak, revealing the savagery that lies so close to the skins of "civilized" men, was the statement of a young man that had bragged about leading a group of the lynchers "we gathered up most of them in the speakeasies, that is why so many of the mob were drunk."

Fifi D'Orsay and Maurice Hill—perhaps you know who they are, the writer does not know—were married yesterday "as a climax to the first trial honeymoon on record."

No honeymoon or marriage "experiment" can be expected to work out well, for it always indicates doubt in one or both and that is enough to spoil the experiment at the start. The least a bride can expect is that her husband shall believe her to be the only woman on earth, as Eve was.

A Two-Bid Situation Which Requires Plenty of Thought

THE relative rank of your suits is a factor of vital importance in your rebid procedure when you have made a two-bid and your partner bids either two no trumps, or three in a suit which is useless to you. For instance you rightly bid two spades on

HAL SIMS

Sp. A K Q J x
Hts. A K O x
Di. A Q J

and the response is either two no trumps or three clubs. Now you gayly bid three hearts, hoping to hear your partner bid four hearts if he has four cards in that suit, or three spades if he has not less than three spades for you and not more than three hearts. However, your wish is not granted—he bids three no trumps, which tells you nothing except that he has less than four hearts and less than three spades. Of course, the matter of game is not what worries you—you were from the start willing to play at four spades, trusting that there would not be five trumps massed in one hostile hand against you. You still do not like to abandon all hopes of slam, as if your partner held the king of diamonds, he could still have bid no differently, but that would be the slam card. Nevertheless, with this kind of suit grouping

You Cannot Probe for That King

because your partner could not read a four-diamond bid on your part as a probe did; he would rightly think that you had 5-4-4-0 distribution, and were compelling him to choose the eventual trump suit for you. If your hand were of this pattern—convert the singleton club into a small diamond — you would bid in just this manner, would you not, in order to ascertain whether your partner held four small diamonds? You cannot use this same bidding at one time to fish for four small diamonds, and at another time to probe for the king. Consequently, with this hand you cannot bid for slam except as an out-and-out gamble. You have no assurance that you can get into dummy even once. To catch the king of diamonds, assuming it to be on your right, you would have to lead that suit twice. Unless the opponents chuck the defense, it may not help you at all if diamond king is on your right. Consequently, the slam would be a bad risk on the cards. Yet at times the gamble would be tempting. For instance, if your opponents were reasonably sure to lead diamonds blindly, just because you had bid the other three suits, your chances of slam would be very promising. You would now need merely not to be unlucky in the spade distribution, and also to find the jack of hearts in dummy or else to be able to ruff the small hearts before either opponent could outruff or overruff the dummy, in order to make six spades, losing only the club. Technically, you would be wrong to slam the hand; psychologically there might be good reasons to risk it if your partner had bid clubs. Of course, if he had bid no trumps and not clubs, you cannot expect anything but a club lead, and then you might be in difficulties even if playing at only four spades, as you will be reduced to four trumps right away.

Could Your Partner Take the Strain Off You?

Of course your partner does not hold both the ace of clubs and the king of diamonds, otherwise he could have bid three no trumps at once or, with five clubs and these two high cards, bid four no trumps over your rebid of three hearts or possibly rebid his clubs. However, he may have the material for a small slam and be able to signify this by making an ultimate move for you on grounds which I will explain tomorrow.

Tomorrow—Bidding in reply to a two-bid.

The MAID PROBLEM in the HOME

By MRS. ALEXANDER S. LANGSDORF

Editor's note: This is the second of two articles by Mrs. Langsdorf, who is well known in St. Louis as a social and welfare worker. Yesterday she discussed the efficient management of the home.

The maid is in the family but not of the family.

NOW let us pass to the problem of the maid in the home. This problem has been forced into our consciousness by the recent Conference on Household Relations held in St. Louis. In this article I do not intend to discuss how much a maid should be paid for service in the home. That will be left to others. Household planning, however, attacks the problem from the angle of justice and square dealing, rather than from the point of view of a maximum amount of work for the least pay possible. What I want to consider are other aspects of the problem. The maid is in her position of being IN the family but not OF it, consequently her comfort, her needs, her rights are all too frequently not given the consideration due them. I have known cases where the surname of the maid was not even known to the mistress of the home. Just how much of the maid's private life has a mistress a right to know is a question you might well ask. The answer is simple: Only so much as the maid cares to relate, with the exception of such information as is needed regarding her physical health in order to protect the family, especially the growing children.

At the Household Employment Conference there came up for discussion the advisability of demanding a health certificate from maids before engaging them. That is an enlightened way of handling the situation, but in my opinion the maid also has a right to inquire about the health of the members of the family group in which she applies for work. A contagious disease is as bad for her to come in contact with as for anyone else.

WHEN a maid is cheerful and contented the machinery in the home runs more smoothly. Of course, her training and experience are factors in the situation, but a willingness to teach is as necessary as a willingness to be taught. Flexibility and a sense of humor is needed on both sides. Too often we forget that we have a social responsibility toward those who work for us. They in turn have a responsibility toward us once they have undertaken our work with a full knowledge of what is expected of them, the wages they will receive, the approximate hours of work and the kind of work they are expected to perform. Trouble comes when these things are not made clear from the start. A maid has a right to know about the physical conditions under which she will live, that is, where she will bathe and sleep.

Now let us turn our attention to skills other than those pertaining to human relationships that are required for good home organization. A carpenter in order to become a good cabinet maker needs greater skill, a physician in order to become a surgeon needs to develop a different technique, and so through all the professions. Did you ever think how many skills are required for good home organization, especially in the maidless home where, in spite of the development of household appliances for lightening labor, the number of the tasks left for the mother is legion. One young woman said to me recently, "My childhood recollections go back to a home in which there was sympathy and understanding of our individual needs, in which there were good books and a sense of beauty as well as order. There was no servant in our home, yet our meals were wholesome and well-prepared, even most of my dresses were made by my mother. In spite of the exactions of attending to the needs of a husband and two children my mother knew about current events, and read good literature. She even was an active member of the church. I often wonder just how she accomplished all she did."

Of course, this particular mother was equipped with the essential knowledge that made her capable of budgeting her time and of meeting not only the physical needs of her family but their spiritual needs as well. She acquired either through experience or through study the tools necessary for carrying on her complicated job. She knew, no doubt, how to secure the necessary amount of co-operation from her family so that there was a division of labor in the home. Perhaps she was also endowed by nature with unusual physical strength, and ability beyond the average to work quickly and well. She certainly had the important determination not to ignore her personal need for mental growth and development.

The problem of budgeting money is one much misunderstood, and in these days of economic stress the question where and how to cut in order to provide for basic needs is a complicated one. Usually those things that lend to richness of living, such as education, music, art, books, are the first to be eliminated, instead of an attempt being made to leave a margin to be used for such vital needs. The so-called middle class suffer most in these directions. Settlement houses offer much for enriched living in the poorer districts. A number of years ago I read in a magazine the story of a family that "emigrated" from a small university town to New York after the sudden death of the husband, a young university instructor. The mother moved with her family of three small children to the lower East Side of New York where she could establish a simpler mode of living uncriticised, and could let her children get the advantages offered by nearby settlement houses in the way of dancing, music and other creative arts.

WE have many kinds of women, the woman who seeks a career because she desires it, the woman who works merely because of economic need, the parasite who takes all and gives nothing in return, the woman who finds her satisfaction within the home and yet finds time for some service to society outside the home, and the household drudge. Of all these women there are three kinds that the child respects least, the parasite, the drudge and the woman so bent on a career that she neglects to give the children companionship when they need it. In my own experience the best mothers are those who divide their time between outside interests, home and children. They are busy people in a constructive way, but it is busy people who after all accomplish the world's work.

So much is demanded of the homemaker, so many qualifications are needed for efficiency and good home organization, that the wonder is that without special training she has done so well. The average bride has been woefully ignorant of the fundamentals necessary for success in the marriage relationship and for that matter the groom has been no wiser than she. Both have had to learn through the school of bitter experience. Since homemaking is a partnership calling for the best that each can give, adequate preparation would do much to make harmonious relationship in that partnership less difficult to achieve. Here and there youth itself, as at Purdue University, is demanding special courses designed to make them appreciate and understand the responsibilities that they will face when creating homes of their own. When youth generally recognizes its needs in that respect, the days of muddling through will be over and marriage and homemaking will become the fine art that they should be.

GOOD TASTE
By EMILY POST

Publicity

My dear Mrs. Post:

MY parents believe that personal press agents, or whatever one might call one who attends to social publicity, is the height of bad taste. However, it is terribly humiliating to my sisters and me to find that whatever entertaining we do is never given more than a paragraph in the social columns of the papers, although our family has been most distinguished for nine generations, whereas little dinners given by the daughters of "the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker" run into headlines. It isn't so much that we want headline publicity, but we hate not being given the prominence that we consider our due. Surely there must be some dignified compromise between the press bureau of the caterers or entertainment managers, who are prepared to furnish so many inches of social write-up with so many dozens of young men guaranteed to own evening clothes. Would a personal note from mother to the society editors cover the situation when we entertain? I suppose we will soon grow up and, as our parents predict, will not mind these little things. At the moment, however, it seems terribly confusing and humiliating to have our rightful position in the press given to these others.

Answer: I am afraid I am rather at a loss to understand what seems to be an incompatable point of view. If your family has for so long been distinguished, how can mention in the press either add to it or take away from it? Of course, if you want to have an especial party written about, you can call the society editor on the telephone and give him the brief details. Just why the society columns neglect you, I have, of course, no idea.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.

JACK DEMPSEY and his bride flew back to Los Angeles to talk business to radio. Lew Brock is paging the ex-heavyweight champion of the world to make a feature picture in which Mrs. Dempsey, who was formerly Hannah Williams, will play opposite Dempsey.

Mrs. Pat Campbell, who caused more upsets in social Hollywood than any visitor who has ever come to our town, has returned. Mrs. Campbell, who calls a spade a spade and who is no respecter of persons, used her wits and her sharp tongue unsparingly. She comes back to movie town to play in Norma Shearer's picture, "Rip Tide."

A new shiny ticket with starring privileges has been handed Bing Crosby by Paramount. That was to be expected since Bing and his songs have meant money in the box office. Paramount admits this new ticket gives their favorite crooner a much bigger salary. Bing's next appearance is opposite Marion Davies in "Going Hollywood."

Paramount has signed him for "Murder at the Vanities," the Earl Carroll play and the "Old Maestro" and his boys will do their stuff before the camera.

The only thing sure about "Registered Nurse" is that Lyle Talbot, who has changed from a rotund young man into a slender, thin youth, has the male lead, and Robert Florey will direct. Bebe Daniels has not yet given her decision to accept the story, and, contrary to reports, Kay Francis will not remain in Los Angeles to go into this Warner Brothers' picture.

HEALTH

For That Tired Feeling

TODAY the prescription for "that tired feeling" usually consists of a mild stimulant. In the near future, however, it is quite possible that the remedy will consist of a bit of suprarenal cortex extract.

For, according to Dr. J. H. Robbins, patients presenting vague symptons, such as low blood pressure, fatigue, depression and gastro-intestinal disturbances, may be suffering from a temporary failure of the adrenal glands.

The adrenal, or, as they are sometimes called, the suprarenal glands, are two small glands of internal secretion situated above the kidneys. The glands have two principal parts, the outer portion called medullary, and the inner portion called cortical.

Cortin has been applied with extraordinary results in a condition known as Addison's disease. In Addison's disease the suprarenal glands are injured, sometimes by a tuberculous process.

However, cortin does not cure Addison's disease. It is merely a substitute treatment, in which a glandular secretion is injected artificially to take the place of that which would have been secreted were the gland normal.

Clinical support of this belief that there may also be some similarity in the effects produced by cortin and by vitamin C is to be found in the report of one clinician who used vitamin C in the treatment of Addison's disease.

This disease produces a characteristic discoloration of the skin which the above referred to clinician reports he was able to cure by feeding the patient lemons. Lemons, as is known, are rich in vitamin C.

Practical House Frock

HERE'S the house dress every woman has been waiting for—it's made like an apron, looks like a frock, and is absolutely the most comfortable thing you've ever worn. Women swear by the reversible coat-like fronts that allow one to hide splashes in a jiffy, and they know how easy laundering can be when a garment will open out flat. A printed percale, gingham or other tubbable fabric would be perfect, and fashion the pretty flared collar of lawn or organdie. The new sewing Instructor is included with the pattern.

Pattern 1661 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 16 takes 4⅜ yards 36 inch fabric and ⅜ yard contrasting.

Foamy Sauce

One cup butter.
Three cups confectioner's sugar.
One-third cup cream.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Three eggs.
One tablespoon vanilla.
One teaspoon lemon extract.
One-half teaspoon almond extract.
One-fourth teaspoon nutmeg.

Cream butter and sugar. Add cream, heat slowly in double boiler and stir constantly until sauce becomes hot and very creamy. Add eggs and beat one minute. Beat well and add rest of ingredients. Serve at once.

Homemade Floor Polish

Kerosene and melted paraffin mixed to the consistency of a cream result in a splendid floor wax which may be used in just the same way as wax, polishing afterward with a flannel cloth. It will be found much less expensive.

Pork Chops with Apples.

Select lean pork chops cut 1½ inches thick. Slice crosswise almost to the bone, making a pocket. Rub the chops inside and out with sugar, salt and paprika and sear in a little butter in a hot skillet. Make a poultry stuffing and fill the chops with it, fastening the edges with toothpicks. Place in a baking pan and on each chop place a ring of red apple, cored but not pared. Sprinkle with sugar, cover and bake slowly for an hour. Make a gravy from the fat in the pan, adding a few drops of Worcestershire sauce.

Cheese Omelet.

Just when the appetite is becoming a bit fed up on fish for each Friday we think of a smoking hot cheese omelet. Six eggs, five tablespoons cold water, six tablespoons grated American cheese, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon butter, a dash of white pepper. Beat eggs well, add water and continue beating until thoroughly mixed. Heat butter in an omelet pan and pour in omelet. Reduce the heat and keep pan in motion all the time. Lift edges with a spatula so the uncooked egg can run down onto the pan. Sprinkle with cheese and when egg is set and lightly browned, fold over half and serve on a heated platter.

CHAPPED LIPS

MENTHOLATUM

I want some more!

TODAY it is no different than when Oliver Twist said "I want some more". Growing children and grown-ups always want some more cranberry sauce or jelly or cranberry pie. You will want more too after you have tried Cranberry Nectar:—

2 cups sugar, 2 apples (cut in eighths), 3 cups water, 2 cups cranberries, 2 oranges (sliced).

Boil sugar and water together for 5 minutes. Add sliced apples and cook slowly for 15 minutes. Add cranberries and oranges; cook for ten minutes longer. Serve cold with meat or poultry, or as a dessert.

Ask your dealer for free cranberry recipe cards. You will be surprised how good these recipes are.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION
By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM confronted with that awful Christmas question—what to give a man for Christmas. Can you help me out? He's a kind of cousin of mine and I haven't seen him for a long time. I have to confess it to somebody; so it might as well be you—I rather dread seeing cousins or family. Some way they always have so much trouble and, well, at Christmas time, you know how you feel.

ELIZABETH.

You give me very little idea of the cousin's age, condition and degree of relationship. But I will try a list for you.

First, though, I must tell you I know exactly what you mean about seeing relatives you haven't seen for a long time. We may be as proud as Punch of our connections, but when it comes to particular cases, well—as you say we dread the conversation which generally runs like this:

"What ever became of Cousin So-and-So, down in So-and-So? I haven't seen him for a long time."

"Mercy! You mean Cousin Fred? Haven't you heard about Cousin Fred? Oh, DEAR. He was swallowed by a whale!"

Gold-filled safety pin for soft collars, sterling silver key chain, white linen dress handkerchief, hand-embroidered monogram, brown calf-skin tobacco pouch, with separate compartment for pipe (he probably doesn't smoke), hand-braided cow-hide belt with plain metal buckle, chromium-plated cigarette holder, Scotch plaid muffler, brown cape-skin gloves, with detachable inner glove of heather mixture wool, stockings in brushed wool, crook handle black silk umbrella, smoked mother-of-pearl dress set, shirt studs, cuff links, waistcoat buttons.

Then there are all the desk appurtenances and the drinking sets and gadgets.

Having given you this list in the hope that he is a live, well-set up male, I hope he doesn't turn out to be low, heavy set, wobbling and bald-headed, with a leaning toward backgammon and reform.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM 14 years old and in the first year high. My mother doesn't like the girls I run with and she won't let them come in the house. As we live in a small town you can't do a thing without the whole town knowing it.

As in most cases there is a boy in this one, too. My mother thinks when I ask to go to see some of the nice girls, I have gone to the boy's house. But I have been there only once, when his sister asked me over to make candy. My mother knows too much about me. The whole town knows she is grouchy; so do I. I intend to run away and go to some of the Western States. I cannot leave quicker than Dec. 15 as I get my monthly allowance then. If you know anyone who is going to spend the Christmas holidays out there, please print it.

MISCHIEVOUS GIRL.

I have printed this letter, not because it is of any consequence at all except to show the ridiculous attitude of some of the girls who defy parents, convention and common sense and plan—to "run away." Where and to whom?

You are about as definite about the "Western states" as you are about the running away performance. You will need your monthly allowance; indeed, you will. And perhaps it will be the last one you get; then what?

Your "mother knows too much about you." I dare say. And also, I dare say, she cares too much about you to indulge you in going with the wrong kind of girls and, at the age of 14, defying all authority, so that you may go and stick your head in the fire some place.

Of course, you would not like to put yourself on that plane, but I can tell you there are girls in the reform schools whose mothers "knew too much about them" and who ran away.

Use your head, your commonsense and, to be perfectly slangy, "Be yourself"—a 14-year-old girl who needs school, development of every kind and to learn some responsibility about her duties.

For That Tired Feeling

TODAY the prescription for "that tired feeling" usually consists of a mild stimulant. In the near future, however, it is quite possible that the remedy will consist of a bit of suprarenal cortex extract.

For, according to Dr. J. H. Robbins, patients presenting vague symptons, such as low blood pressure, fatigue, depression and gastro-intestinal disturbances, may be suffering from a temporary failure of the adrenal glands.

The adrenal, or, as they are sometimes called, the suprarenal glands, are two small glands of internal secretion situated above the kidneys. The glands have two principal parts, the outer portion called medullary, and the inner portion called cortical.

The medullary part secretes adrenalin, about which a good deal is known. The cortical part secretes a substance known as cortin.

Cortin has been applied with extraordinary results in a condition known as Addison's disease. In Addison's disease the suprarenal glands are injured, sometimes by a tuberculous process.

However, cortin does not cure Addison's disease. It is merely a substitute treatment, in which a glandular secretion is injected artificially to take the place of that which would have been secreted were the gland normal.

Clinical support of this belief that there may also be some similarity in the effects produced by cortin and by vitamin C is to be found in the report of one clinician who used vitamin C in the treatment of Addison's disease.

This disease produces a characteristic discoloration of the skin which the above referred to clinician reports he was able to cure by feeding the patient lemons. Lemons, as is known, are rich in vitamin C.

The only thing sure about "Registered Nurse" is that Lyle Talbot, who has changed from a rotund young man into a slender, thin youth, has the male lead, and Robert Florey will direct. Bebe Daniels has not yet given her decision to accept the story, and, contrary to reports, Kay Francis will not remain in Los Angeles to go into this Warner Brothers' picture.

Hoping we do not hear of any more cases of this kind, I remain,

Please accept my thanks for your ready co-operation with me in helping your townsman. It would be fine if all communities felt as much responsibility and community pride as has been shown by you and your city.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

THE St. Louis Physical Culture Club is actively engaged in all sorts of physical and social pursuits such as hiking, swimming, skating, gymnastics. We know you know of our club through one of our members.

We meet this winter on the third Friday of every month throughout the winter, at the Tower Grove Hall at Grand boulevard and Juniata street. Members are from 18 to 35 years old. Our meetings there consist of singing, calisthenics, general business, short talks, dancing and cards.

Our next hike will be held Sunday, Dec. 10. Members will meet at the end of the Cherokee car line at 9:30 o'clock. We leave at ten and return to starting point about 5:30 o'clock. No enrollment or previous introduction is necessary.

Too, I want to take this opportunity to thank you for the inquiries I have received through you. One of the young ladies came on the hike last Sunday and proved quite interesting.

HARRIETTE LENSZLER,
Secretary and treasurer.

I am going to suggest that I believe you would have a better response and it would be safer, to require some kind of reference, from each new member.

Two Dresses for All Occasions

A Style Article by a St. Louis Woman Who Knows Clothes

—By—

MRS. PIERRE LOISEL PAPIN

Mrs. Pierre Loisel Papin is the former Mis Lily Allen. She is a member of the Junior League and is prominent in social and charitable affairs.

HOW many women have included personal clothing in their budgets? I'm sure I haven't. It's an item that can easily be pooh-poohed into thin air or pushed aside with a regretful sigh to make room for actual necessities.

The dresses pictured here are gems for the poor soul faced with the nothing-a-year clothes problem. The dinner dress has a thousand uses. In the first place, it's made of bengaline, which is a boon to your nerves because it doesn't muss. The fact that it is cut high, both front and back, makes it practical, and may I add, smart. It can be worn to the theater, to dinners, large and small, and even to a dance. The slight train and flare at the bottom makes up for the lack of formality at the neckline.

The color is that lovely new Schiaparelli blue, and the dress is very tailored, with the exception of the fluted ruffles about the neck and armholes. To make a long story short, it is just one of those grand rags that you wear and wear, always feel your best in and never seem to tire of.

The other dress is really something! It is of wild blackberry crepe de chine with a circular inset below the knees and an alluring ruffled bib which ties at the back, and has two heavenly flesh colored silk roses at the neckline in front. To let you in on the secret, the bib may be removed and, in the wink of an eye, with addition of good looking lingerie collars and cuffs or even some of the new ruching in a pale flesh color, you are no longer the same person who wears the dead tired dress everywhere she goes.

Both these frocks are excellent examples of smart practicability, the combination of which is rare, indeed.

Reading Delayed

THE child who learns to read late or against his will often remains a poor and slow reader throughout, and is unlikely ever to attain the magic of the world of books.

The reasons for this are not far to seek. For one thing, school readers are not and cannot be adjusted to older children. They are hard enough to make interesting for very little ones, and the child of 8 or 10 who tried to learn from them would soon be bored with all reading by such an introduction. And once having formed a distaste for reading, he would have raised a very real difficulty to be overcome within himself.

Again, reading is a habit, and the earlier it is started the more chance there is of its forming. No one wishes a child to become a bookworm, for the child who is soon runs the danger of neglecting life for another world. In time, he comes to use books as an escape, and avoids the pressure of reality, by hiding in the more congenial world of imagination.

But reading in moderation is of great value, and will not only pass many otherwise boring moments, but also bring the child into touch with a wider range of thought and experience than he can possibly meet in life.

The child who early forms the habit of reading is never likely to be found hanging about and whining that there is nothing to do.

If reading has been delayed too long, say to 10 years, he has become accustomed to seek his amusement either with other children or in some kind of activity, and is lost if he cannot have them. Then reading, instead of being natural, becomes almost as difficult as a foreign tongue.

Good Cookies.

It seems a shame that the child must refuse some sweet offered by a friendly neighbor just because he is not allowed to eat between meals. One mother played a game with her youngster in this way. He was permitted to accept the cake or cookie but must take it home and hide it until after the next meal. He enjoyed the game and later he enjoyed the cookie.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

CORSE PAYTON, poor man, has just been taken to the Bushwick Hospital, where he is without funds and suffering from pneumonia. Surely some of his long time friends will bring him succor. . . . I've felt low all day about Frank Wilstach. Who'll help us collect all those grand similes, now? . . . He was a nice man. . . . Barbara Blair will fly to the Coast to make faces at the cameras . . . Richy Craig Jr.'s widow is stopping with Gloria Grafton at the P. C., if her friends would like to know. . . . Max Baer has been signed to appear at the new Casino de Paree. . . . Who bungled that Jack Kirkland romance, anyhow? It isn't Polly Walters, at all—but his leading lady in "Tobacco Road" (a dead ringer for Polly, anyway). The play opens at the Masque Monday. . . . Kirkland says you're the only one who (when mentioning him) does not add—the "ex of Nancy Carroll." . . . Yesterday Walter O'Keefe's dog bit Mrs. O'Keefe's dog—and then bit Mrs. O'Keefe. Anything for a laugh.

A policeman's widow called. She wonders if you would hint at this. Cop's widows and families do not rate holiday baskets—but the firemen's do. . . . Jane Frohman's husband calls her "Mom." . . . Guy Rennie and Charlotte Dorrance, of the soup tribe, are uh-huh. . . . Con Conrad's new find, Del Campo, sings delightfully—a little nervous, yet, however. . . . The offers are coming in bunches, though. . . . The Show Place is getting over—a good show, too.

Incidentally, that historic Hurdy-Gurdy party at Spivey's, which the society columnists heralded for weeks, came off all right, but when it came time to pay off the charity which was promised the receipts, there wasn't any munyee. So Dwight Fiske paid it out of his own pockets. . . . The theaters took a "bath" this week—business went off in even the biggest hits. Some thought that Monday dived because of Father Coughlin's free show at the Hipp—but nobody can explain the rest of the week. This time of year, you know, is supposed to be the "peak."

Be sure to mention that "Sydney Munden" who fathered so many similes was really Frank Wilstach. . . . Here's an item: Thorley, the florist, once owned the site where stands the Times Building. He was urged to sell the property to Mr. Ochs, the newspaper owner, but he did so only after much persuading—and Mr. Ochs' promise that the name of Thorley would be written on the cornerstone. Which was done—but the cornerstone is on the third floor!

Tell those newcomers who get discouraged easily, that James Melton waited a month for an audition at the old Roxy in 1927—and now looka! . . . Dorothy Hughes, the widow of the late Phil Payne, hasn't passed out of the local picture, as was recorded. Unless they mean she's avoided the Broadway crowd. For four years she's been head receptionist in a large ad agency. . . . Here are some new rackets in town—certain Sixth Avenue shops dig up photos of celebs (from theaters) and peddle them at a nickel each. . . . Then there are several society girls in town who stooge for certain restaurants. The gals take their boy friends to the place—eat the most expensive things—and then get a 50 per cent rake-off. Not bad. . . . Pola Negri called. Feels wretched about your line and that she's really ill. And that you ought to take Gene Fowler's advice — and lie TO a woman — but NEVER about her!—Your Girl Friday.

Mix ingredients. Spread on soft dough. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serve warm with butter.

The Coming Movies

Conducted by
NIE

THE Grand Central, caught as a more or less innocent bystander in the great Grand avenue film battle, gave up the struggle last night, leaving the Missouri to carry on the Skouras banner in the fight with the St. Louis and the Fox. The Missouri today begins a new double feature program with Constance Bennett in "After Tonight" and Dick Powell, Lyle Talbot, Pat O'Brien and Ann Dvorak in "College Coach." Co-starred with Miss Bennett in the former is Gilbert Roland. The two meet in a railway station in Vienna, where Miss Bennett is unable to purchase a ticket, not having the proper currency. Roland saves her from an embarrassing predicament by buying her ticket. Since both are going to the same city, he insists upon accompanying her on the trip. As they travel through Europe a love affair develops, ending unusually when the two discover each other's true identity. In "College Coach" O'Brien is cast as the coach of a successful gridiron team, with Powell and Talbot his stars. Despite the fact that he is able to turn out winning teams, O'Brien is unable to keep his wife, Miss Dvorak, from having affairs with his players, which furnishes the complications for the picture.

THE "double-feature" program at Loew's, starting tomorrow, will be made up of "Should Ladies Behave," co-starring Lionel Barrymore and Alice Brady; and "The Solitaire Man," featuring Herbert Marshall, Elizabeth Allan and May Robson. "Should Ladies Behave," adapted from Paul Osborn's stage comedy, "The Vinegar Tree," concerns a group of people who get into amusing difficulties at a week-end house party. The cast, in addition to Barrymore, Miss Brady and Conway Tearle, includes Katharine Alexander, Mary Carlisle and William Janney. "The Solitaire Man" gives Herbert Marshall a role said to be reminiscent of his "Trouble in Paradise" portrayal. Its story concerns a war hero who is forced to become a thief after several years of financial reverses. The cast includes Mary Boland, who scored a personal triumph in the stage version of "The Vinegar Tree;" Lionel Atwill, Ralph Forbes and Lucille Gleason.

LOUISA M. ALCOTT'S widely-read American classic, "Little Women," comes to life tomorrow on the screen of the St. Louis Theater with Katherine Hepburn, already established as a cinema star of the first rank, in the role of "Jo," one of the most famous characters in the history of American literature. The supporting cast includes Paul Lukas as the kindly professor, Fritz Bhaer; Joan Bennett as Amy, Frances Dee as Meg, and Jean Parker as Beth. Edna May Oliver is also seen in an important role. Customs, costumes, and the heart-warming atmosphere of the '60s are said to be a contrast, indeed, to the usual screen melange of courtroom, machine gun and sex and "Little Women" is being released after having been more than a year in the making. The stage program at the St. Louis will be headlined by Borah Minnevitch and his Harmonica Rascals. Others on the bill will be Tom and Betty Wonder and the Streamline girls.

MARGARET SULLAVAN, fresh from the stage, makes her film debut with John Boles in what is really one of the most absorbing love dramas ever to come to the screen, "Only Yesterday," which opens tomorrow at the Ambassador. In addition to Miss Sullavan and Boles, the cast includes Billie Burke, Reginald Denny, Edna May Oliver, Benita Hume and George Meeker. Miss Sullavan is cast as a naive Southern girl, who meets Boles at a fashionable party, spends one evening of delirious happiness with him, and loses him when he is suddenly called away to war. She has a baby, Boles' child, but when he returns he fails to recognize the mother of his son. Too proud to go to Boles with her story, Miss Sullavan sees him married to another girl, and waits for the day when recognition will come. It never does, for her, but her devotion is rewarded with the story moving to a startling conclusion. On the stage at the Ambassador Vic Oliver will headline the revue with Margot Crangle, Art Henry and company, Dolores, Andre and Dmitri, Edna Sedgwick and the Three R Sisters also included in the show.

WARNER BAXTER returns to the screen at the Fox tomorrow in "As Husbands Go," a romantic comedy based on the stage play by Rachel Crothers. The picture deals with the domestic problem of whether a wife would and should give up a devoted husband for what at the moment appears to be a glamorous new romance. In stage form, the play has been seen twice in St. Louis. It was presented by a traveling company at the American Theater and was produced by the Arthur Casey stock company at the Shubert. With Baxter in the cast will be Helen Vinson and Warner Oland, whose Charlie Chan characterizations have made him famous. Now he plays the role of a Parisian man of the world. Catherine Doucet, who was seen in the chief comedy role in the stage productions, plays her original part in the picture. On the Fox stage, "Doll Follies" will be the attraction, featuring Frank Devoe, with Eddie Willis; Margo and Libby Robbin, Aero Four; Donald Reeves and the Fanchon dancers.

BEAUTY CLINIC

NO matter how tired you are never skimp or hurry your beauty preparations for a party. Have your hair done the day before the party is to take place—your hair will look softer and more natural the day after it is done. Create something different from your every-day coiffure—something a bit dashing. If you are accustomed to wearing your hair severely plain around your face, indulge in a few feather-edged curls at the temples. If the party is to be a very dress-up event, try a jeweled ornament in your hair for a more dazzling effect. It will lift your coiffure out of the commonplace at once.

Good-Night Growls

JELLY BEAR opened one eye a trifle. "Oh, Willy Nilly—Rip—Christopher," he said slowly, "good-night! I am so sleepy."

"Good-night," echoed Honey Bear. "Or rather, I mean good-winter, for our night's sleep will be a long, long one."

"You have forgiven me? You love all of us?" Willy Nilly urged.

"Growl, growl, we love you all," said Jelly Bear.

"Growl, growl, we love you all, repeated Honey Bear, and just as she was curling up for sleep once more she gave Willy Nilly's hand a friendly lick.

"Oh, I am so happy," Willy Nilly said as he came out of the cave. "I feel all right about them now. We'll miss them, but they are never very good company in the winter. They may come out and look around on a warm day, of course.'

"Perhaps if Christmas day is a warm one they'll join us. We'd better hang up stockings for them," said Rip the Dog.

"All right," agreed Willy Nilly, "but I'm sure they won't come out as soon as that even if it is warm. Maybe on a day in early February."

"I hope Santa brings me lots of bones for Christmas."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Willy Nilly, "it won't be long now before Christmas. Well, I've simply got to mend my coat and get the rest of the food in the storeroom right away." He set to work at once. But no sooner had he finished than Christopher Columbus Crow came and said:

"The keys in both pantries are missing!"

A MODERN NEW SERIAL

CHAPTER FIFTEEN.

MRS. ABBOT said good morning to Linda as she came downstairs, and then passed into the kitchen to make her lunch. She always chose an early hour for her midday meal so she wouldn't be in the girl's way. Linda was sitting on a chair she had drawn up to one of the windows, looking rather pensively out over the lake.

At a quarter of 12, 20 minutes later, Mrs. Abbot came out of the kitchen, having finished her poached egg on toast and her tea. Linda was still in the same position before the window, her elbow resting on the arm of the chair, her chin in the palm of her hand.

> Dick and Linda had never quarreled before they went to the lodge, but Linda constantly finds herself in the wrong and expected to do the apologizing. Dick even insists that she cut off her friendship with DR. KIM RALEIGH, who is working on an experiment in Dr. Barry's laboratory cottage. To keep peace, Linda promises not to see Kim, though Dick refuses to consider not seeing his ex-wife, Natalie, who is visiting the CRAWFORDS in a nearby cabin.
> Kim, in love with Linda himself, fails miserably in his blunt effort to persuade Natalie to cut short her visit with the Crawfords. And Natalie frankly tells her hostess that she thinks she is falling in love with Dick again.
> NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"You should be out instead of in, Linda. Why don't you take a swim before you start your lunch?" Had Linda and Dick had another quarrel? Was that why Linda was so subdued, so quiet?

"I was thinking"—— Linda said, not moving her eyes from the water.

Mrs. Abbot went slowly to the stairs, then thinking better of her resolve to go to her room, came over to the window. Perhaps the child needed comforting. It was cruel to see her moping and do nothing about it, regardless of Doctor Barry's instructions.

"Linda, I'll get lunch for you and Dick this noon, and you go out for a swim!" The older woman exclaimed impulsively.

"No, thanks. I have everything planned, and almost ready. I'm not expecting Dick until about 1. He always says 12, but it's usually 1 when he gets back from fishing." The brown eyes didn't turn away from the window, neither did her chin come away from her palm.

"He's fishing again this morning?"

"Yes, with Tom Crawford. They were going to the island."

"What were you thinking about when I came in?"

"Oh—I was thinking that this is my wedding day"—— The brown eyes left the window and met Mrs. Abbot's faded blue ones.

"Wedding day! Linda Barry! Whatever are you talking about?"

"Dick doesn't know it yet—I'm going to tell him at lunch, but mother and dad and Uncle Jim know by this time. I wired them a little while ago—when I'd definitely made up my mind."

* * *

MRS. ABBOT'S hands groped for the chair behind her, and when they found it she sat down hastily, for her knees had become weak and shaky. She couldn't have heard Linda correctly. Something must be the matter with her ears.

"Now what was that? You aren't going to marry—Dick?"

"Yes, I am. Today. I made up my mind this morning. Mrs. Abbot, I'm going to tell him when he gets in, and then we'll have our lunch, and after lunch we'll drive to Shelby, get a license, and be married. Today. I'm not going to wait any longer."

Mrs. Abbot sat with her mouth open, unable to speak.

"I was going to tell you before we went anyway," Linda continued. "But now is as good a time as any."

"You promised Doctor Barry you wouldn't be married until the month here was up—"

The girl moved in her chair impatiently. "I know I did, but it was a silly promise. Dick said so from the beginning, and I've finally seen that he was right all the time. When I tell him, he'll be delighted. He's been urging me to marry him every day since we've been here."

"Your mother and father, Linda—they'll be so disappointed that they can't come to your wedding. They can't get here this afternoon you know."

"I know, but they won't care as long as I'm happy. They like Dick, and they know, anyway, that I was going to marry him. I don't especially want a big wedding. A small one will do just as well, with only Dick and me."

"I don't know what to say, Linda. This is such a surprise—"

The girl smiled. "It was to me, too, this morning, when I made up my mind, but it's the only thing to do, Mrs. Abbot. Dick and I can't go on like this—"

"Like what?" Mrs. Abbot asked, for Linda was hesitating.

"Well, we've quarreled, Dick and I, about such ridiculous things. Dick says we wouldn't if we really were married. I think he's right. Everything will be different when we're married"—

Everything will be exactly the same, Mrs. Abbot said grimly to herself, only a great deal worse, because you won't be able to get out of it. Aloud, she remarked quietly, "Doctor Barry will be so disappointed in you, my dear."

"I can't help it. I've been doing what he wanted me to do for 12 days now. That's time enough for his old experiment which hasn't worked at all. I refuse to experiment any longer with my love for Dick!"

"But why don't you wait until tomorrow? Tomorrow will do as well as today." Tomorrow Doctor Barry, and Linda's father and mother, would come to the lodge certainly. Doctor Barry might be able to persuade his niece to forego this marriage for awhile. He was good at winning arguments from Linda.

LINDA shook her head. "No, I'm going to be married this afternoon. Dick will be home at one, and we should be in Shelby by three-thirty or so. No use trying to change my mind, Mrs. Abbot, because it's all made up, and can't be changed."

Mrs. Abbot saw Linda's chin tilted stubbornly, and decided to say nothing more about Dick and the marriage. She would have called Dr. Barry for his advice, but she didn't dare with Linda in the house to hear what she said.

However, as soon as Dick and Linda were gone, she would phone him. At present there was nothing for her to do but to go upstairs, and wait for Dick to come back from his fishing trip.

Linda was the one who continued the conversation about her marriage as Mrs. Abbot was rising to leave.

"You see, it hasn't been quite fair to Dick and me, this experiment. We've been on edge both of us, flying at each other's throats. We never did that in town—"

"You never were together as constantly in town as you have been here, my dear," Mrs. Abbot interrupted.

"I know, but we never quarreled, either!" Linda returned defiantly. "It was only when we got to the lodge that we started quarreling. And you know me, Mrs. Abbot.

"I never quarrel with anyone, at least I never had until I quarreled with Dick here. Everything will be fine when we're married," she added confidently. No more jealousy of Natalie, Dick would be hers forever and ever and ever.

"I'm glad you're so sure about it," Mrs. Abbot said as she went to the staircase. Poor, blind little fool! Yes, fool, for that's what Linda was this noon.

"I'll come in and see you before we go to Shelby."

"Do, dear." The stairway seemed very long and very steep as Mrs. Abbot plodded up.

Linda went into the kitchen, a new sparkle in her eyes. Mrs. Abbot apparently disapproved of her sudden decision. But Mrs. Abbot was a good deal like Uncle Jim. She had been with him so long that she saw things with his eyes.

DICK had been right from the beginning, when she explained Dr. Barry's experiment to him in town. "A false situation, Linda, at best. Don't you see? We'll be out there living as if we were married, and we won't be. But if you want to do it—"

That's what it was— a false situation. She was glad that she had entirely awakened this morning, although she was sorry she had to break her promise to her uncle. It was the first promise she had ever made him that she had disregarded. He'd know and understand, though, when she explained to him.

Should she tell Dick the glorious news before lunch or during lunch, or after lunch? She couldn't decide. Perhaps she'd tease him at first, tell him she had a secret and make him drag it out of her! Her cheeks were pink as she put on her apron.

Five minutes later, she thought she heard footsteps on the porch, and in a panic rushed into the living room. Dick! And he was early, and lunch wasn't on the table! She'd tell him now!

"Dick!" she cried to the shadow that was approaching the front door.

"It isn't Dick, Linda. It's Kim. Sorry to disturb you, but I must telephone into Shelby. Do you mind?"

Christmas Cake.

It is time to think about a cake for the holiday callers and this is a delightful one. Two cups sugar, three eggs, one-half cup butter, two-thirds cup milk, three cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon mace, one cup chopped English walnuts, three-quarters cup currants. Make a batter of the first seven ingredients. Into a greased loaf cake pan pour some of the batter, then sprinkle with currants and chopped nuts. Continue until the batter is used. Bake in a slow, steady oven until done when tested with a straw.

The California Wines

By HORATIO F. STOLL.

(This is the thirteenth of a series of daily articles by Horatio F. Stoll, noted wine authority, on how to judge, choose, keep and serve wines.)

OVER 80 per cent of all of the wine produced in the United States comes from the vineyards of California. Great variety of soil and climatic conditions enable vineyardists of that State to grow practically all types of grapes found in any part of the world.

Wine grapes were grown successfully in California long before any of the experiments along the Eastern seaboard had succeeded. The first California vines were those of the Franciscan padres, who made the initial plantings in their San Diego Mission about 1770, from cuttings or seed of the Spanish variety brought from Mexico. They were planted behind high adobe walls and jealously guarded by the padres. Some of these original plantings are still thriving vines, the Trinity vine at San Gabriel Mission having a trunk as large as a good-sized tree.

Most Californians recognize Col. Agaston Haraszthy, a Hungarian nobleman, as the father of the modern wine industry in California. Col. Haraszthy had been a skillful vineyardist in his native land, and he devoted his restless energy to the developing of vineyards in California.

In 1861, Col. Haraszthy was sent by the Governor of California to the principal grape-growing districts of Europe, Asia Minor, Persia and Egypt to gather cuttings of grapevines that seemed suited to the soil and climate of California. He brought back more than 200,000 cuttings and established a nursery at Sonoma, from which vines were soon distributed to almost every county of the State.

Thus a thorough test of the grape-growing possibilities of California was made. Later the varieties of vines which Haraszthy introduced were supplemented with vines imported by the first State Board of Viticultural Commissions, the United States Department of Agriculture and the University of California. These plantings account for the unusually wide variety of vines grown in California. This is the secret of the ability of California wine makers to reproduce almost any wine of any region. The number of possible blends is almost limitless.

Numerous experienced French, Italian and German grape growers and wine makers settled in the coast valleys of California, particularly in Alameda, Napa, Sonoma, and Santa Clara valleys. They brought with them the skill and traditions of wine making that are acquired through generations of experience in the culture of the grape.

The interior Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys attracted numerous vineyardists who grew their vines under irrigation. The hot climate and the soils of the interior valleys were found to be especially suited to the production of sweet wine grape varieties, and today the great interior valleys are the source of the heavy sweet fortified wines of California, while the coastal counties contiguous to the Bay of San Francisco produce the light dry wines.

When prohibition went into effect in 1920, California was noted for its fine wineries and wine cellars. Unfortunately, many of the well-known plants were not maintained during the 14 years of prohibition, and the State's production dropped from an average of 40,000,000 gallons a year to about 10,000,000 gallons, intended for sacramental and medicinal purposes.

Most of the vineyards were maintained, however, and today there are 185,000 acres of wine grapes growing in California, enough to produce almost a gallon of wine each year for each man, woman, and child in the United States.

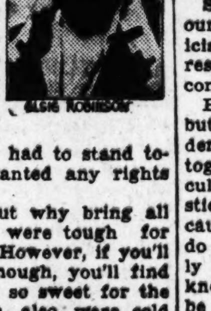
Why Should Women Stick Together?



ELSIE ROBINSON

MAD letters. Why do I criticise women so much? "Women should stick together."

But why should women stick together?

I know what you're going to say. All about their ages and ages of suffering under Man, the Brutal Oppressor. How men have done Us Girls wrong since Adam, the big cry-baby, blamed that apple on Eve. How we've been sold on slave blocks, locked in harems, branded, beaten, deprived of human rights, rated as cattle. And so, of course, women had to stand together if they wanted any rights at all.

Yes, indeed. But why bring all that up? Things were tough for ladies, certainly. However, if you'll dig down deep enough, you'll find that they weren't so sweet for the men, either. Men, also, were sold on slave blocks, branded, beaten, locked in galleys, rated as cattle.

But all that is ancient history. Now it's almost 1934—with Equal Rights, and everything. Yet women are still "sticking together" against the Monster Man. And still they perpetuate the old sex suspicions and antagonisms. Why?

There's a reason. But it isn't a pretty one and it certainly doesn't do us proud, sisters.

WE'RE PERPETUATING THIS "MALE MONSTER" MYTH BECAUSE IT'S A SWELL RACKET.

We know perfectly well that the modern male isn't a monster and the modern female isn't oppressed. To the contrary, the average American Miss, 1933 model, can outsmart and outyank a dozen average males with one arm tied behind her. Yet, to hear us tell it in the divorce courts or over the bridge tables, you'd think we were the Helpless Victims of Man's Ruthless Brutality. All for what?

ALL BECAUSE IT MAKES SUCH A PERFECT ALIBI FOR OUR OWN CUSSEDNESS.

The simple truth is, sisters, that Equal Rights aren't as much of a treat as we thought they'd be. We're quite willing to accept all these new privileges and liberties—but we're not so keen on the responsibilities that go with them.

Slavery might have been confining and humiliating, but it certainly had its points.

We didn't have to keep office hours—or our word. We had unlimited opportunity to lie around and be sorry for ourselves—without having our graft jeopardized by the good-natured, sensible, efficient little secretary down at the office.

But now, under this Equality program, we've got to snap out of our ancient lolligagging and act regular.

AND LOTS OF US DON'T LIKE IT!

Stick together for what?

Stick together so we won't have to grow up and act human!

Stick together so nobody will call our bluff—so nobody will dare criticise us, and make us bear our own responsibilities and face our own consequences.

But men stick together? Yes, but not in the sense which women demand for themselves. Men stick together on long established masculine habits. But they do not stick together on issues merely because they are males. All fathers do not rally around a father merely because he is a father. Men know perfectly well that one can be a husband and father, and yet a tramp.

This fact also applies to wives and mothers. But can you get most women to admit it? Try to do it!

However, don't be too contemptuous, gentlemen. Your own record in this matter isn't unblemished. You realize and despise the little game we're playing—but why do you stand for it? BECAUSE IT FLATTERS YOUR VANITY. You know you're not a monster, but what a bang you get out of being treated as such! And so the razzle-dazzle goes on.

But cheer up, Old Human Race, we're getting somewhere, in spite of everything. Real women — and there are millions of them—ask no odds, seek no exemptions. They are proud of their equality and accept all it implies. They do not demand that "women should stick together." They only demand that human beings should stick together, and that women should be treated as human beings.

So why won't this column help gang the gentlemen? That's why, girls. IF WE DESERVE EQUAL RIGHTS — AND REALLY MEAN TO WORK AT THEM — WHY SHOULD WE NEED TO?

Rickrack.

When edging a doilie or towel with rickrack braid, sew the braid on the material with bright colored embroidery silk, using French knots or a long basting stitch. This makes the braid more attractive as well as good and firm.

A NEW type of drainboard has ridges on its surface to prevent the dishes from slipping. This is one of a number of new articles, among which are dustpan, sink strainer, soap dish and sink scraper. These kitchen aids are made of a thick sheet of flexible rubber, finished to resist water, and while they cost a bit more than the ordinary type of the same utensils, they should last much longer. Also they are shaped to do their work in the most efficient way.

Burn up the soot and save a fourth of your fuel bill, prevent flue fires and insure greater cleanliness, advise the makers of a new soot destroyer. It is claimed by them that one-eighth of an inch of soot on a furnace will cause you to use 25 per cent more fuel, but just scatter some of the soot destroyer over the hot coals or on the hot walls of an oil burner, and it keeps the smoke pipe, chimney and all passages clean.

It seems that a banjo string will cut cheese or butter. But who would want to fiddle around trying to use one when there is a clever slicer to be obtained in non-rusting metal that not only cuts wafer-thin slices but separates the slices from the brick by use of two prongs. It may also be used for eggs, ice cream or other soft brick foods.

If the saturation point has not yet been reached in the interest in the antics of the Three Little Pigs, birthday, convalescent and friendship cards may be obtained with cunning pictures of the brothers and their fierce enemy, the Wolf. Paper napkins also use the theme for decoration, as do some new children's necklaces, bracelets, mesh bags, pocket combs, knives, rings and watches and chains.

A polar bear on the right-hand deck points his nose at a penguin on the left-hand deck of a new set of bridge cards, evidently commemorating Byrd's explorations. Together the back of the decks form one picture, half the arctic sun being on one deck and the other half on the other. "To Arms" is the name of another new design with a black background and bright colored pictures of a very stiff wooden soldier and his doll sweetheart in an embrace which threatens to tip them over. New Scotch designs, a beautiful Indian girl, orchids in two colors, a new ship design and infant prize fighters are other clever new card backs.

Gold cloth may shed its luster over street costumes as fashionably as it gleams for the formal mode, if it chooses neckwear for its medium. Cowl collars, bows or ascots in bright yellow, light and dark gold, copper and silver cloth, in plain and patterned design, all may be used to add their sheen to otherwise dull frocks. In addition to this cloth which used metal threads for its woof, the satins, crepes and taffetas embroidered with metal threads make up equally as modish collars. These may be obtained in white and colors.

An electric pressing device for putting creases in trousers will be just the thing for men if they get a chance to use it when their wives and sisters aren't appropriating the gadget to press pleats and hems in their skirts. This device is an electric heating element in a rod flanked with two wing-like projections between which the article to be pressed is placed. Ties may be dampened and steamed between the wings, also.

Christmas carols brought up to date, the date being this post-repeal Christmas celebration, are inscribed as greetings on a box containing six cardboard coasters. Bibulous elves decorate the box and coasters, and the whole affair may serve as an amusing substitute for a Christmas card.

Recipes for a Luncheon

— By GLADYS T. LANG —

> Mrs. Gladys T. Lang is one of St. Louis' best-known hostesses and her recipes are favorites among people who enjoy good cooking. She is the author of several cook books which have had a wide circulation. All of the recipes which she gives in her articles in the Post-Dispatch have been tried, tested and tasted in her own kitchen. Cooking articles by Mrs. Lang are a regular feature of the Daily Magazine.

The menu:

Ruby consomme
Cheese straws
Luncheon crepes
Pineapple cole slaw
Vegetable (optional)
Coffee
Macaroon peach whip

The recipes:

RUBY CONSOMME.

Buy a double shank soup bone. Place in a kettle with four quarts of cold water, one cup of tomato puree, a large sliced onion, bunch of celery tops, two sliced carrots, a small bay leaf, one large tablespoon of salt and one teaspoon of freshly ground black pepper. Simmer slowly for at least six hours. Strain and let cool, then remove the fat. Replace on stove and let come to a boil. Beat the white of one egg, shell and all, with one tablespoon of cold water until slightly foamy, add to soup and let boil two minutes. Remove from fire and allow to stand a few minutes before straining through a linen cloth. This may be made a couple days before using as it will keep a week in the refrigerator. When ready to use, reduce by slow cooking to two quarts. Add one-half cup of beet juice taken from a can of beets and add more seasoning if necessary. Heat thoroughly. Serve with cheese straws.

LUNCHEON CREPES.

Three eggs.
One cup of flour.
One teaspoon of salt.
Three teaspoons of sugar.
One-third teaspoon of baking powder.
One cup of milk.
One-half cup of water.

Beat eggs light and add ingredients in the order given. Heat an eight-inch iron skillet, melt two tablespoons of butter and, when hot, pour in three level tablespoons of batter and spread evenly. Cook over a slow fire until light brown, then turn and brown on the other side. Stack crepes on a hot platter in the warming oven until desired number are made. Have cooked two pounds of spinach, chop very fine and add salt and pepper to taste and enough cream to make a thin paste. Spread thinly over each crepe and over the spinach place a large tablespoon of hot creamed minced turkey and mushrooms. Roll and over the top sprinkle grated, seasoned Swiss cheese. Place side by side in a buttered baking dish and set in oven to heat, then run under flame to slightly brown the cheese.

PINEAPPLE COLE SLAW.

Shred two cups of cabbage, add one cup of celery cut very fine, one cup of shredded pineapple and one-half green pepper which has been previously parboiled, skinned, then shredded. Toss all together with sour cream dressing.

Sour Cream Dressing.

Two tablespoons of lemon juice.
One tablespoon of salt.
One-fourth teaspoon of whole ground pepper
One teaspoon of prepared mustard.
Pinch of celery salt.

Beat the sour cream with an egg beater until thick and light. Mix in the seasoning lightly. Mix in salad just before serving.

Macaroon Peach Whip.

Six eggs.
One cup of chopped canned peaches.
One cup of chopped pecans.
Three dozen dried and broken macaroons.
One-half cup of brandy and one-half cup of peach juice.
One tablespoon of gelatin.

Soak macaroon pieces in the brandy and fruit juice. Cook the yolks of eggs and sugar in a double boiler until thick. Soak the gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water for 10 minutes. Add this to the hot yolks and sugar and stir until dissolved. Mix in the chopped peaches, nuts and macaroon mixture. Fold in the whites of eggs beater stiff with a pinch of salt. Pour into a rinsed mold and set on ice. Unmold and surround with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Friday, Dec. 8.

AVOID foolish extravagance today and till next Wednesday. Take stock of yourself, intellectually and emotionally plot out the way you are going to use your assets. The winner of tomorrow knows his plan of action today.

A Doubter.

Had an argument the other day with a man who sincerely doubted not only the value of astrology but its very existence. He didn't believe there could be a connection between the planets and man's actions and feelings. He was a sincere seeker for truth—nothing of the wiseguy about him at all. "How could the ray of a planet affect me?" he asked. "It is so far away and I cannot feel it. I walk around at night and I can't feel the light of the stars—so how could they make me do things? I can understand how a locomotive could do things to me if I were to get in its way, but up to now I have been proceeding under the assumption that it was my own ideas I was using, not those of some stars and planets millions of miles away."

Your Year Ahead.

The tightness of money in your personal affairs that you have been feeling in the past few years will loosen gradually after the 7th of December this year, if you will work for results, and if this is your birthdate. Start in earnest to train and develop any inventive or artistic talents you may have now. Danger: June 13 to 24, and Nov. 1 to 14, 1934.

Tomorrow.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Friday, Dec. 8.

AVOID foolish extravagance today and till next Wednesday. Take stock of yourself, intellectually and emotionally plot out the way you are going to use your assets. The winner of tomorrow knows his plan of action today.

A Doubter.

Had an argument the other day with a man who sincerely doubted not only the value of astrology but its very existence. He didn't believe there could be a connection between the planets and man's actions and feelings. He was a sincere seeker for truth—nothing of the wiseguy about him at all. "How could the ray of a planet affect me?" he asked. "It is so far away and I cannot feel it. I walk around at night and I can't feel the light of the stars—so how could they make me do things? I can understand how a locomotive could do things to me if I were to get in its way, but up to now I have been proceeding under the assumption that it was my own ideas I was using, not those of some stars and planets millions of miles away."

Your Year Ahead.

The tightness of money in your personal affairs that you have been feeling in the past few years will loosen gradually after the 7th of December this year, if you will work for results, and if this is your birthdate. Start in earnest to train and develop any inventive or artistic talents you may have now. Danger: June 13 to 24, and Nov. 8 to 14, 1934.

Tomorrow.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 6.

THE gleaming tresses that shine on the head of your favorite movie star are no longer included in the list of essentials to beauty as far as the screen is concerned.

Time-saving wigs that look exactly like the wearer's own hair are coming more and more into use as the stellar temperament wearies of hours spent under the care of hairdressers and yearns for the simplicity of an every-day coiffure for her private life.

In most cases the artifice can be effected by the expenditure of between $300 and $400, the cost of a wig made of human hair.

JOAN BLONDELL, who recently let her hair return to its natural chestnut shade, once before tried to effect this change, just as she was to start in a picture.

The methods she employed not only changed the color of her hair, but made it necessary to crop it closely. She made the entire picture wearing a wig, and nobody was the wiser.

Brunet Gail Patrick's friends down in Alabama may not place her in "Death Takes a Holiday," but if they look closely they'll find her under a smart blond coiffure, so realistic that people here are asking if she has joined the blond brigade permanently.

She hasn't—"Why should I when there are wigs?"

Sylvia Sidney wanted to save that extra hour for sleep in the morning, but art wouldn't permit it. She had a wig made for "Good Dame," but somehow, despite its cost, it didn't look like Sylvia's own hair. So she trots down early each day for the hair-dresser's ministrations.

ANN HARDING'S hair is one of her prize assets in beauty, and she wears wigs only when playing old ladies or young ones with marcels, in "Westward Passage," because Ann won't tolerate a curling iron, that regular wave was produced on a mop of false hair, with Ann's own flattened beneath it.

The once popular custom of bleaching or dyeing as various roles required has gone by the boards. Wigs are too convenient as well as harmless to the natural hair.

Mary Doran used to have a different shade of hair—black, brown, blonde, red—almost every time she met her friends. She dyed it whenever a part dictated. For some time now it has stayed a rich reddish-brown, and what with wigs in favor, it is likely to remain that way.

Chocolate Fudge

Three cups sugar.
One and one-half cups milk.
Three squares chocolate.
Three tablespoons butter.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup nuts, broken.

Mix sugar, milk, chocolate, butter and salt. Boil gently, stirring frequently, until soft ball forms when portion is poured slowly into cup of cold water. Remove at once from stove and let stand 25 minutes. (Do not move or stir the candy during this time.) Add vanilla and beat until candy is very thick. Add nuts. Shape into balls or pour onto buttered dish or waxed paper. When firm cut into squares.

As soon as candy is cold pack into air-tight box.

KOSTO
CHOCOLATE-LEMON-VANILLIN

"I Couldn't Raise Children Without KOSTO!"

—Says Mrs. J. A. Cregan

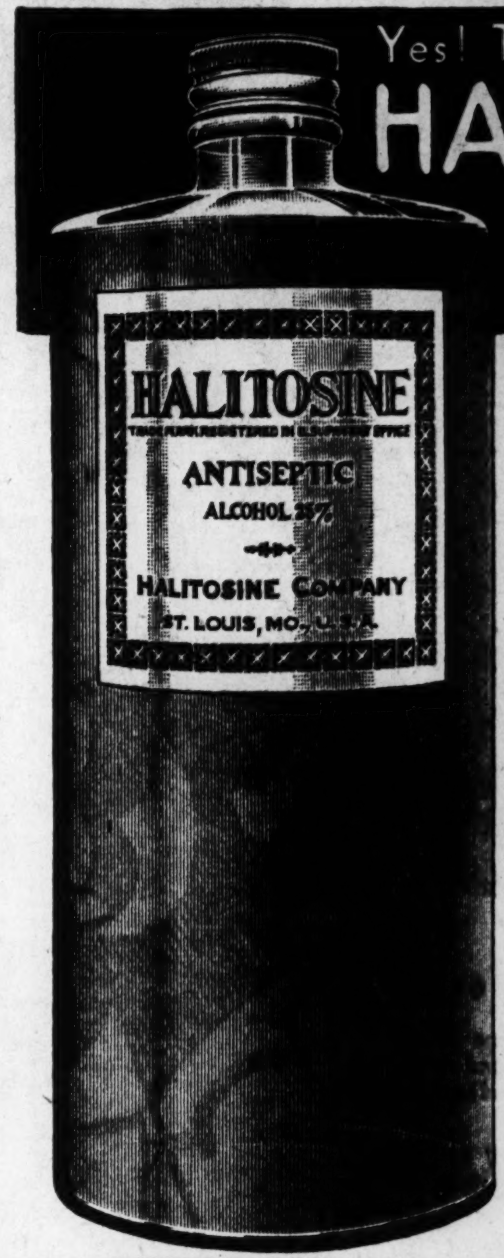
"NO need now for children to protest with quivering lips and teary eyes, while Mother says: 'Eat what's in front of you; grown-up desserts aren't good for little children'," writes Mrs. J. A. Cregan, 4138 Russell. "That's why I buy Kosto. Grown-ups and children both love its perfect flavor—yet it's so good for my growing children. And it makes countless new and beautiful desserts, that are always perfect, in only ten minutes!"

And that's what hundreds of thousands of other busy housewives say! Here at last is a dessert that runs over with healthful substances such as doctors recommend—yet is so tasty that children and grown-ups alike demand more.

Just try any one of the three Kosto flavors. Just add a pint of milk to chocolate or vanillin Kosto (water for lemon Kosto)—and cook for ten minutes according to directions. Serve plain, or with any fruit or cake combination you like—you'll find it equal to the finest desserts you ever made. Only 10c for any flavor—at all stores.

Yes! This Giant Bottle of HALITOSINE 50c

The Large Size Illustrated



You can hunt the whole town over .... watch the ads for bargains and cut-prices .... but if you want the most for your antiseptic money, keep one word in mind .... Halitosine.

Halitosine gives you more for your money because it gives you the famous formula that has been proved best for halitosis, B.O., dandruff and after-shaving.

Halitosine gives you more for your money because it gives you a full pint—16 ounces—for 50 cents, no matter when or where you buy it. Some antiseptics contain only 12 or 14 ounces, yet cost you more than the larger Halitosine bottles.

Halitosine gives you more for your money because the larger bottles and lower prices permit you to use it generously without diluting it and reducing its strength.

Halitosine gives you more for your money because it is sold everywhere at the same fair price—and, size for size, that price is lower than other antiseptics of similar quality.

Halitosine gives you more for your money because it comes to you in two sizes—a giant sixteen-ounce bottle for 50c—a seven-ounce bottle for 25c. You can get Halitosine for these prices whenever and wherever good antiseptics are sold.

THE GROWING GRAVE

The grave of St. Daniar (Daniel) in Samarkand, which is now 60 feet long, 6 feet wide and appears to be filled by a colossus, has grown steadily ever since the Russians occupied the country. The natives believed that the grave is destined to reach the rock opposite, and that the hour of liberation from the Russian yoke will then have struck. The Russian sentries stationed before the grave to prevent the priests from adding to its length were unable to stop the inexplicable growth.

CURRENT EVENTS DEPT.

(Nashville item in the Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

The ladies' class of the Christian Sunday school have been in a contest of some kind and one side had to treat the other. They were to have this feast a few days ago, but the weather was bad and they postponed it. They all went down to Mrs. Eldred's home, who live about 3½ miles south of Nashville. They served weiners and cake and other good things to eat. Mrs. Eldred has a fine modern home with a fine basement under it. The women said that they never did have such fun and good times as they had there. There was quite a bunch down there. Some that belonged to the class didn't get to come.

COAT ROOM GOSSIP FROM WASHINGTON

Due to the illness of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, that department is now in charge of Essie B. Doakes, a stenographer who happened to be reading Gertrude Stein when a national emergency bobbed up the other day. Miss Doakes was immediately struck with the notion that Gertrude Stein might be just the person to outline a currency policy for the nation. It will be recalled that the Stein motto,* "A rose is a rose is a rose is a rose," is just about as clear a summary of the international finance muddle as anyone has been able to formulate. S-o-o-o-o-o-o the whole matter has been referred to an assistant to the assistant secretary of the treasury—which ought to quiet unrest in the Midwest and bring beneficial rains before the winter wheat crop sets in.

Not to be confused with the Maine Stein Song.

2 YES OR NO

3 HAS THE EMANCIPATION OF WOMEN AND ALL THEIR "FREEDOM" BROUGHT THEM REAL HAPPINESS?
YES OR NO

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.*

1. —Some women have this strange urge, often exhibiting violent anger towards a man who attracts them. It is their antagonism against surrender and against masculine domination. When once they snap out of the complex, like a child coming out of a tantrum, their inhibitions leave them like magic and they become like ordinary lovers.

2. Students differ widely as to just what is progress, but Prof. Kimball Young, distinguished author of Social Psychology, says he believes progress does not come "from crushing out the emotions, and substituting the reign of the intellect, but is by an art and philosophy which recognizes the power of the emotions and feelings" in determining human behavior. Most anthropologists believe man's emotions—his love of art, music, dancing, social intercourse, desire for power, sex passions, etc., have been much more influential than pure intellect in transforming him from the Cave Man to the creator of the Century of Progress recently held at Chicago.

3. —Hendrick Van Loon, as quoted in a recent interview, said: "I see women wasting an amazing lot of misplaced energy trying to fool themselves into thinking that their new freedom satisfies them. I can't for the life of me see that it has made them happy. So many of them seem to be outside the whole works, so far as getting any real satisfaction is concerned . . . The women I know who seem to be getting the most out of life . . . are the ones who devote themselves to the business of making a home and helping a husband . . . They smile wisely and look at the world through the happiest eyes I know." I wonder, girls, if there is not a lot of truth in what this big, and usually very wise, Dutchman says.

Journey to Miami Expected to Take About Three Days With Further Stops Contemplated.

THEY PLAN TO BE HOME CHRISTMAS

Noisy Farewell as Police Hold Back Crowds at Natal—Wing of Plane Repaired.

By the Associated Press.

PARA, Brazil, Dec. 8.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, homeward bound for the Christmas holidays, landed here at 12:30 p. m. (St. Louis time) today after a 1000-mile flight from Natal, Brazil.

A light shower was falling as the big red monoplane swooped down on the water. Mrs Lindbergh was at the wireless, reporting to Pan American Airways, for which her husband is technical adviser, as the craft ended the long hop.

Five minutes before the plane landed Mrs. Lindbergh sent this message: "Reeling in (wirless antenna). Raining."

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh made the flight from Natal, 1094 miles, in seven hours, 15 minutes, flying at an average speed of 150.9 miles an hour. They have a distance of 3378 additional miles to cover to reach Miami, Fla.

Pan American Airways maintains large repair shops at Para and it was thought likely that Col Lindbergh would have his plane gone over.

Trip to Miami is Expected to Take Three Days.

NATAL, Brazil, Dec. 8.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off for Miami, Fla., in their big, red monoplane today at 8:15 a. m. local time (5:15 a. m. St. Louis time).

The trip from Natal to Miami was expected to take about three days. The probable route lies along the Brazilian States of Ceara, Maranhao, and Para, across the 100-mile mouths of the Amazon River, by the French, Dutch and British Guianas, northward over the Lesser Antilles and the Bahamas, and across the Caribbean to Miami.

Will Be Home for Christmas.

Mrs. Lindbergh told friends last night that they expected to be home for Christmas.

The course indicated is the regular route of the Pan American Airways for which Col. Lindbergh is technical adviser. It was in this capacity that he and his wife began five months ago the aerial survey of the Atlantic which finally brought them here from Bathurst, West Africa.

Take-Off Is Uneventful.

There the American colony joined admiring Brazilians in a noisy farewell. Sirens drowned out the last well wishes as both the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh shook hands with the Scotchbrooks and Mario Camara, the Government interventor, or official representative.

Boarding the launch which had been at their disposal since they alighted on the Potengy River concluding their South Atlantic flight here, the Lindberghs were taken out to their plane while police held back the crowds lining the river's edge.

It was an uneventful takeoff. Col. Lindbergh inspected the plane, tried the motor and they were away easily, circling once before they headed north.

Discussing aviation with Camara, Lindbergh said he considered the State of Rio Grande do Norte, of which Natal is the capital, "the best south trans-Atlantic aviation base because of its even climate and favorable winds."

Al Smith Takes Beer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Former Gov. Al Smith appeared last night with Mrs. Smith, at the town's smartest bar in the lobby of a Park avenue hotel. The crowd greeted him with the usual applause, then leaned forward as he seated himself to order a drink. What would he have. "Bring me a big glass of beer," Al said.
